

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 551 Why Was He Playing a Passive Role

Cameron brought a disturbance and left as if nothing had happened, while Nina gritted her teeth. He clearly came to make her panic.

But the meeting was about to start, so she could only take a few deep breaths to calm herself down and then went on stage with the creators.

The scene of the meeting was very high, and Nina didn't have time to think about anything else. She concentrated on participating in the event.

As for those who left, the atmosphere was not very harmonious.

After getting into the car, Cameron's grandma, Valerie, raised her hand and poked her grandson on the shoulder, and said angrily, "Look at what you have done. If only you had a decent job!"

Then she put her hand on her chest to take a deep breath. This jerk really ruined her efforts.

Cameron said lightly while driving, "Why are you so angry? What's the difference if I had a decent job? Would she like me in that case?"

Cameron had roughly guessed that Valerie didn't seem to object to him being with Nina.

He didn't dare to confess to his family that he still cares about her. He was afraid that they would find her again. In that case, they would never work out.

She is a strong girl as she said, and she couldn't stand being humiliated again and again.

Until now, he had not dared to reveal his thoughts in front of his mother.

As for his grandparents, he also needed to test it first.

Valerie snorted, "Weren't you guys together before? They all say that first love is the most unforgettable. If you are a decent man, she might choose you again."

Her tone was full of regret, and Cameron noticed it. He slightly hooked his lips and turned on the straightforward mode, "What do you mean? Do you agree with me to be with her?"

Valerie answered, "Why don't I agree? Who doesn't like such a beautiful girl?"

Cameron said lightly, "My mother doesn't like her."

Valerie waved her hand and said helplessly, "I know, but I can't talk to her about this. The relationship between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law is tricky."

"I just ask you one question; do you still like her? If you still like her, I'll support you."

They were playing riddles all night and guessing about each other's minds. At this moment, after hearing her agreement, Cameron chose to confess.

"All I ever wanted was her." Valerie sighed, "Alas, love." She knew that her grandson was still obsessed with that beauty.

From her point of view, ordinary people could never forget a beauty like Nina. Although her grandson seemed to have no desires, he was still a common man. It is not uncommon for him to like beauty.

Besides, there was no such thing as love at first sight in this world.

It's nice to say it like that, but it's actually just judging by appearance. There's nothing to criticize. She had been an "appearance-oriented" person since she was young. A good-looking face came first.

"Since you're still thinking about her, then hurry up and get married." She said, "As for your mother, I don't think she's the kind of person who insists on breaking up loving couples."

Cameron smiled and laughed at himself, "Even if I want to marry her now, she won't agree. Didn't you see her attitude towards me today?"

Valerie was startled for a moment, and then she said, "I like her. She has quite a personality."

Cameron was rather speechless.

Whose grandma was she? Nina ignored him but Valerie praised her for having a personality.

Valerie smiled, "What? Are you jealous?"

She adjusted her position and then said, "At least it means that she is not the kind of girl who will make compromises, and will not lose her dignity and pride for a certain man."

"Women should first become independent individuals before they can love others well."

"Those women who have nothing to do every day just think about marrying into a wealthy family by using her beauty are really the most contemptible. I don't know what your mother was thinking, and I don't know why she thinks Nina is not worthy of you.

With today's achievements, how could she not be worthy of you?"

"Is it because her looks are not as good as you? Or her temperament? Or her income and wealth?" "Her looks are one of the best in the entertainment industry." She said so much great words of Nina that she was tired in the end.

Cameron wanted to laugh while feeling a bit wrong for himself, "Grandma, I now feel that in your heart, it is that your grandson was not worthy of her."

Valerie laughed briskly, "Don't take it to the heart if you are going to form one family. Anyway, I like you two very much." Cameron also smiled.

He likes to hear his grandma's words, family, family, he likes this setting.

Valerie added, "By the way, do you need me to help you go after her? I can invite her to have coffee in the name of fans."

Cameron shook his head, "She would fly to the crew in the afternoon. If there is no business activity afterwards, she will not be back for a while."

Cameron was also very upset when he thought of this. If she was filming other scenes, maybe he could still go to her from time to time, although she might not meet him.

Valerie gave him a suggestion, "Then you can go to visit the crew?"

Cameron added, "She is filming a military-themed drama this time. The crew spends most of their time in the remote mountains, so it is not convenient."

Valerie said angrily, "That's why you are going there. This shows your sincerity, doesn't it?" Cameron raised his eyebrows slightly, "It really does."

Nothing can stop him from her. Is that what he should mean?

Valerie blamed him, "Do you need me to teach you to go after girls?"

Cameron smiled and said, "It seems so. After all, she chased me last time. I was basically in a passive position and I didn't know how to please girls."

Cameron was telling the truth. He used to be the one surrounded by girls; he had never pursued anyone before.

Although he was interested in Nina at the beginning, Nina made a move before him. Now that he thought about his situation, he felt that this was simply his retribution.

And he didn't know that it was him who was owed and abandoned in this relationship, but why was he playing a passive role?

Nina gave up on him for one million before, why was he chasing her now?

Shouldn't he ignore her and wait for her to reconcile with him?

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 552 Both Are Accidents

Valerie said, "Actually, there is nothing to teach, as long as you love her." "You still love her and that's enough."

Cameron nodded and made up his mind. After sending the old lady home, he immediately booked a flight ticket. Even if she didn't see him, he would go.

As soon as the meeting was over, Nina was dragged into her car by Emelia. Emelia couldn't wait to ask her, "What's the matter with you two?"

Nina then told Emelia about her things with Cameron these days, and Emelia was completely shocked.

Nina felt embarrassed, raised her hand to cover her face, and did not speak for a long time.

She didn't plan to be so absurd, but she couldn't control it every time.

Emelia sighed helplessly after returning to her senses, "I should have known for a long time."

Nina said before that she had had an intimate relationship with Cameron for a long time, which frightened her enough.

At this moment, Nina told her that they had been sleeping together twice in the past few days. Emelia was a bit more conservative on such a matter, so for her, this was eye-popping.

But these were not important, the most important thing was that there was something wrong between them.

Emelia stared at Nina and asked seriously, "Though you two are already so close, why da I feel like you are avoiding him?" Nina spread her hands, "First of all, he didn't even give me an explanation. I was angry."

"Secondly, you also know that his mother doesn't like me. I don't want to be targeted by her again. If he doesn't get the support of his family, I don't want to have anything to do with him for the time being."

"Didn't you say you were going to write her a check to buy her son?" Emelia used Nina's words, "Why don't you take action now?"

Nina flattened her mouth, "I really want to do that, but when the time comes, I find that I don't have the courage."

"You know, if I get into such a mess with his mother, he will be the one who suffer the most."

Emelia nodded, "Yeah, it's quite a dilemma for him."

Emelia felt the same way about this, Nina was reluctant to let him suffer this because she cared about Cameron.

She had no choice but to escape for now.

Emelia can understand her.

She also thought that Cameron should give her an explanation. In the past few years, she had not heard from him abroad, which really hurt Nina. In recent years, Nina often felt that Cameron resented her and hated her. She even could not sleep.

"Then what are you going to do now? Why don't you guys have a conversation about it?" Emelia suggested.

Nina waved her hand, "There's nothing to talk about. It's impossible to talk about it at all."

It's not that they haven't talked, but the two of them slept together only after a few words. Besides, Cameron tried to get her to say something first, but what could she say?

Shouldn't he say something? Before Emelia could say anything else, Sherlyn's roar suddenly came from outside, "Nina! Get out now!" Nina hid behind Emelia in despair, "Shoot! She's gonna kill me."

Before the press conference, Sherlyn was busy with other things and wasn't at the backstage, so she didn't know about Cameron.

She learned about it from Sylvie just after the press conference that they had met twice in private. Sherlyn couldn't help but think of Nina's strangeness yesterday.

She said she was busy with something so she didn't answer the phone in time, but actually, she was fooling around with Cameron.

The saying that her sassy trousers match her short hair was an excuse. It was clear that the marks on her body cannot be concealed, so she temporarily changed her dress into trousers.

Sherlyn remembered the various compromise she had made in a low voice with the brand yesterday, and when she thought of waiting for Nina to try on the dress until the end of the day, she almost want to bellow.

Of course, none of these matters. What matters was that they had been like this for a while. What if someone took photos of them?

“Princess Leilania” made Nina famous and became the top actress in internal entertainment. Isn’t she self-destructing if she exposes her relationship at this time?

She heard from Sylvie that it wasn’t a romantic relationship, and Nina didn’t admit that she was dating him, so what was this? Friends with benefits?

Then that was much worse!

Emelia and Nina were chatting in the car, and Julian escorted them outside. Now that Sherlyn came over, Julian took the initiative to open the passenger door for her.

Sherlyn rushed into the car and turned her head to shout at Nina in the back seat, “Do you still want your acting career? You’re risking your future! No, no, I think you want my life!” Sherlyn’s eyes were red with anger.

Emelia comforted Sherlyn with a soft voice, “Sherlyn, calm down.”

It is said that don’t be angry with the person who is smiling. Emelia was so gentle, how could she lose her temper with her, so she just glared at Nina who was hiding behind her.

Nina stuck her head out and said weakly, “That was an accident. Both are accidents, and this kind of thing will never happen again in the future.”

“I swear!” Nina assured Sherlyn and silently admonished herself in her heart.

From now on, she will definitely draw a clear line with him in the future.

Sherlyn sneered and turned to Emelia, “Do you believe her?” Emelia pursed her lips and smiled; she couldn’t answer those words.

Sherlyn said again, "Didn't you love him so much? Didn't you wait for him for so many years? Now that he comes back, he still treats you with all kinds of tenderness, so you should live with him immediately."

"You say that this kind of thing will never happen again, do you think I'm a foolable kid?"

Nina murmured in a low voice, "Who loved him? I don't love him anymore."

Sherlyn rolled her eyes and made it clear that she didn't believe her words.

But then she asked Nina, "Have you taken contraceptive measures?"

Emelia was silent.

Nina was silent too.

This topic was really embarrassing.

But no matter how embarrassed Nina was, she still had to answer. She coughed lightly and said, "Of course I did."

Although it was absurd, she was still sensible and she took good contraceptive measures. If she got pregnant at this time, this military drama will say goodbye to her and the relationship between them will never be set straight.

Sherlyn breathed a sigh of relief, then leaned back into the seat of the car, raising her hand and pinching her temple, which was throbbing non-stop.

While pinching, she complained, "Nina, you are a lunatic." Nina coaxed her, "Okay, don't be angry, I'll fly back to the crew in the afternoon, you don't have to worry anymore." "You'd better stay with the crew and behave yourself. Don't make trouble for me again," Sherlyn warned her.

Then she received a call from Sylvie, "Sherlyn, something's up. When Nina bent down to receive the flowers from the fans, the marks on her neck were photographed. Someone deliberately zoomed in the photo and said it's a hickey."

Sherlyn heard a thunder struck in her head and she was about to pass out. | |

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 553 He Was So Embarrassed

Nina was wearing a suit. Inside the suit was a crop top. The neckline of the top was high enough. Nina had specially checked in advance that, together with the jewelry she wore, the hickeys should be well-hidden.

But she forgot to be a little more careful when bending over.

Got to admit that those people's eyes were really sharp. They were able to notice such a tiny detail and take advantage of it to deliberately attack Nina.

Nina glanced at Sherlyn and said embarrassingly, "Can I say that it was bitten by mosquitos and I scratched it?" Sherlyn gritted her teeth, "It is early May now, you told me there were mosquitoes?" Nina sat in the back seat angrily and said, "I'm an adult. Isn't it normal to have a sex life?"

Sherlyn rolled her eyes at her, "It's normal for you to have a man your age, but now you're openly single, which gives those antis an excuse to slander you. Do you understand?"

"You are the one who said that you are single on Twitter." Sherlyn said with hatred, "Just now when you mentioned the topic of love at the meeting, you also said that you have no intention of falling in love and you just want to work hard for your career!"

If Nina hadn't made such a statement, this matter could be resolved now. She could say that she has a boyfriend outside the circle. She is in a stable relationship with the purpose of marriage. Maybe her fans will resist for a while, or she may lose some fans and some resources, but not have a bad reputation.

But now...

Sherlyn could think of how gloating Nina's competitors were hiding behind the screen, and they would spend a lot of money on various drafts to describe Nina's private life as chaotic.

Emelia said softly from the side, "It's okay to say she had an allergy. The place where Nina is filming was originally humid, and the climate is completely different from our city. It's reasonable for her to have allergies."

Nina agreed with Emelia's statement, "Yes, allergies!"

"And there are people in our crew who are allergic. This excuse should be fine." This is true. Their crew has been filming for the past few days, and several actors have been allergic. But Nina had no allergy at all.

Sherlyn swiped her phone quickly a few times and then made a decision, "I just checked the social media accounts of some of your co-stars. One actor is having allergies, and he also posted on Instagram, so it's solid. The humid climate in that area is indeed easy to cause skin problems, so I asked Sylvie to post a text in the name of the studio, using allergies."

After Sherlyn said this, she felt hollowed out, and she threw herself into the seat, "Please go to the crew quickly. I will cancel some of the recent events for you. Please stay with the crew and don't come out. I've been busy with studio renovations recently, and { really don't have the energy to do public relations for you!"

Nina stuck out her tongue, "Okay, I know, I can't wait to stay in the crew all day." Then she doesn't have to interact with Cameron, right? She hated him now, if he hadn't gone crazy, would she be in such a passive situation?

Sylvie then used the studio's account to post an explanation of his allergies, and the storm on the Internet stopped for a while.

But after a while, Sylvie called again and said, "Nina, the account that commented badly on you last time came to leave a message now, what he said this time was "liar". He is secretly targeting at you, right?"

They explained that the marks on her neck were caused by allergies. If the account commented on a liar, wouldn't that mean that they were lying?

Sylvie was so angry, "Who is this person, why is he looking for trouble all day?" Nina also gritted her teeth angrily, "Just ignore him." Sylvie said suspiciously, "This account is not Cameron's, right?"

"Yes, it's him." Now that Sylvie and the others knew about him, Nina didn't hide it anymore.

Sylvie was extremely depressed, "Then what does he mean? He secretly said this. Does he love you or want to hurt you? Does he want to watch you being scolded by those antis for your private life?"

"He's not willing to let me deny my relation with him." Nina could vaguely guess Cameron's intention to say this, but fortunately, he wasn't too crazy and didn't directly expose her.

Sylvie was speechless, "People need to go around a big circle like this when there is an awkward relationship between lovers?" From Sylvie's point of view, the current state between them was that the young couple was having an awkward fight.

Although she didn't know why they were arguing, she knew that no matter their appearance or temperament, they were a pair destined to be together.

"Who's a couple with him? Who's arguing with him?" Nina frowned, "I can't live with him now!" Sylvie didn't dare to say more and hurriedly hung up the phone.

Sherlyn looked at her angrily and said, "If that is real, I'll write my name upside down."

Nina did not know what to say to that.

Emelia smoothed things out, "Since this matter is temporarily resolved, it's time for lunch. Shall we find a place to eat together?"

Sherlyn waved her hand, "You two go. I still have a lot of things to do."

After she finished speaking, she got out of the car, of course, before getting off the car, she gave Nina a warning look.

Then Nina threw herself into the back seat in relief.

Cameron has only been back for a few days; how could he have turned her life upside down.

“What would you like to eat?” Emelia asked her in a warm voice.

Nina murmured, “There is no trouble that can’t be solved by hot pot!”

Emelia laughed, “Then let’s eat hot pot.”

Emelia then called Julian to get in the car and told him that they wanted to eat hot pot for lunch. Julian found the nearest hot pot restaurant and sent them there.

Unfortunately, when Emelia and Nina just got off the car, they saw a few people who came out of a car not far away, one of whom was Cameron.

The other was his mother, and there was a young and beautiful girl with an artistic temperament.

Anyone who looked at this picture can feel it. This was a scene of a young couple inviting their elder to dinner or the elder trying her best to get her son and the girl she chose together.

Then Cameron also saw Nina and the expression on his face froze.

He was so embarrassed.

With so many restaurants in Riverside City, how did they meet at this one?

He pursed his lips and looked at Nina, and said silently to Nina, “I was tricked by my mother to have this meal, can you believe it?”

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 554 Not the One Who Should Be Guilty

Cameron sent his grandma home, booked a flight ticket immediately, and then received a call from his mother.

Colleen Donovan said on the phone that she wanted to eat hot pot while his father had no time because of a meeting, so she asked him to eat with her.

Except for the whole thing about Nina, Cameron's relationship with his parents has always been harmonious. Randall and Colleen have a very good relationship and they are also very careful in taking care of this son. Therefore, the atmosphere in his family had always been warm and friendly.

He was a gentle and filial child, so he agreed.

It's just that he could not have thought that this time his mother would screw him. When he drove to his mother's workplace, he saw his mother standing by the road with Michelle Byrd waiting for him.

Cameron's face was not very good at that time, he was not a fool, how could he not see the meaning of his mother's arrangement.

Colleen took Michelle and explained to him, "Cameron, Michelle just happened to come to me and said that she wanted to give me a few paintings. I thought it was noon, so I suggested that we had a meal together to express my gratitude..."

Colleen said in a very guilty tone at the end, because her son's eyes staring at her were really sharp.

She was doing this for him, okay? She thought, he just didn't feel anything about Michelle for now because he didn't know her well, so she arranged this lunch.

She believed that he would be attracted to her after knowing her. In her opinion, Michelle was a good girl in terms of appearance and conduct.

If he liked her and his love life was stabilized, he would be motivated in his career and he wouldn't be doing nothing all day like this anymore.

Out of politeness, Cameron did not get mad in front of them, but he felt it was necessary to find a chance to tell Michelle clearly that he had no intention of dating her and asked her not to waste time on him.

The hot pot restaurant was chosen by Colleen. This restaurant was quite famous in Riverside City. She liked the taste of it very much, but encountering Nina was something that she did not expect.

At this moment, the two groups of people are standing in front of the car, looking at each other not far away with different expressions.

“How about... let’s eat at another restaurant?” Emelia asked Nina in a low voice.

Nina stared at the man not far away, smiled, and said, “No.”

Why?

The person who pestered her was Cameron, and the person who pestered her while taking other women to dinner with his mother was also him. No matter how she looked at this situation, she was not the one who should be guilty, so why should she avoid it?

Then Nina took Emelia’s arm and walked towards the door of the hot pot restaurant. Julian locked the car silently and followed behind them.

Julian felt some sympathy for Cameron. He has been through this. At this time, there were other women around him, even if he had ten mouths, it would not be easy for him to explain.

After they three entered the restaurant, Cameron and the others made a move. The moment she saw Nina, Colleen instinctively turned her head to look at Cameron, her son looked normal.

But the more he didn’t respond like this, the more worried she felt.

Many years ago, when Nina accepted her check, he was full of resentment, and she saw it all. It stands to reason that when he saw Nina now, his expression should be very angry, but he was so calm as if he didn’t know her.

This was not normal.

But in this situation, Colleen couldn’t speculate what was wrong, so she greeted Michelle, “Let’s go, hurry up or there will be no seat later.”

She took Michelle and walked away first without mentioning Nina and the others just now.

When Michelle was pulled away by Colleen, she turned her head and looked at Cameron inquisitively.

Perhaps it was because of a woman's keen sixth sense, Michelle could feel the low air pressure around Cameron at that moment. Obviously, there was something between them, not as Colleen said that they had nothing to do with each other after returning here.

What Colleen said to her was that Cameron had long forgotten about Nina, and did not mention her after returning.

This was a little different from what she saw today.

And the glamorous Nina was not far away, the look in her eyes was unusual as well. She felt that there was anger in Nina's eyes...

But no matter what happened between them, it would not affect her decision, which is: this time, she was hell-bent on winning his heart.

She had been in love with him for a long time, but she couldn't show it because they were studying in different countries in the past few years.

In addition, she learned from her parents that Cameron and Nina had little to do with each other and that there were no other women around him over the years, so she concentrated on her studies.

As for that Melanie Blanchard, Michelle didn't take her to heart.

Cameron has been with that Melanie for so long, and they had not been together, which is enough to prove that he did not like her. And Melanie was just a spoiled little girl, brainless and with no talent, which was completely not her opponent.

For her, becoming a better self was enough to match such a perfect man like Cameron.

Now that she has achieved academic success and has a decent and small career, it is time to pursue the person she loves wholeheartedly.

In fact, today's lunch was also her plan to approach Cameron. She had long known that Colleen is very satisfied with her, so she deliberately came to Colleen on the pretext of giving a painting as a present to her. She thought that if Colleen wanted to get them together, she would never miss this opportunity.

Sure enough, Colleen invited Cameron to eat hot pot together.
Of course, it was definitely an accident to meet Nina here.

Cameron was the last to walk away. At this moment, all he could think was the cold and indifferent look from Nina just now.

At that moment, he felt a sense of guilt that he was caught cheating.

He didn't do any bad thing and he didn't have any intimacy with Michelle that he shouldn't have.

On the way, he wanted to take out his phone several times to call Nina to explain, but he felt that it would just turn into some lousy excuses, so he stopped for the time being.

Because of Nina's identity, they chose a box to stay in.

As soon as she entered the room, Nina said angrily, "Unlucky wretch that I am! Just want to have a good meal and I meet people I hated."

She hated Cameron, and she hated Colleen too.

As for that girl who looked like she could quote any famous literature at any time, she hated her even more.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 555 Just a Worldling

Julian, who helped Emelia pull out the chair, said without changing his face, "Michelle Byrd, female, 27 years old, studied abroad for eight years, university teacher, professional painter. The Byrd family and the Dauster family are old friends. Their relationship is very good, and she is the most favored daughter-in-law candidate in his parents' eyes."

Nina rolled her eyes.

Emelia was stunned.

Emelia first came back to her senses. The first thing she did was to pinch Julian's forearm crossly.

She had always been gentle, but this time she couldn't help. She was so angry because of his words. He was stabbing in Nina's heart.

That woman seemed to have a good relationship with Cameron's family and Emelia tried her best not to mention her so that Nina would not feel uncomfortable, but Julian came up to give them a detailed introduction.

Emelia was so pissed.

Julian took a seat beside Emelia and explained somewhat innocently, "What's wrong? Know your enemies, right?" That's why he told Nina the woman's information in such detail.

Emelia gritted her teeth and didn't even want to talk to him.

Nina, who was on the side, finally spoke, in a very disinterested tone, "Where is my enemy?"

Julian raised his eyebrows, "So you don't want Cameron anymore?"

Nina snorted, "I mean I am invincible wherever I go and I don't even need to fight, she's already defeated.

"So, I don't need to know who she is. I don't need to know her at all."

Julian was speechless this time.

Nina is really a big star whose actions are too unreasonable. He thought she said that there was nothing to fight meant that she doesn't love Cameron anymore, so there was no need to fight with her.

Unexpectedly, she said that she was invincible. Julian felt that a woman's mind was elusive, and Nina's was even more difficult to guess. He felt more and more sympathetic to Cameron.

Nina then explained, "Of course, I don't want him now, so I don't have to know about that woman." Nina pursed her lips and smiled brightly at Julian, "Thank you, Mr. Hughes, for being so considerate."

Nina accentuated the word "considerate", clearly mocking his meddling, and Julian immediately received dissatisfied looks from Emelia.

He hurriedly took the menu and ordered dishes with his eyes down. He just really wanted Nina to get to know that Michelle and he didn't mean to hurt her.

While Julian was ordering food, Nina casually took out her phone and randomly searched the name of Michelle Byrd on the Internet, and her information popped out quickly.

Nina looked at the artistic photo of Michelle and couldn't help sneering. It turns out that his family liked this kind of innocent and tender woman.

But what they didn't know was that although Cameron dressed up to the nines, he was actually pretty crazy in bed. That Miss Byrd might be frightened by him in bed.

Raising her hand to smooth her short hair, she closed the page and went on Twitter again.

The news and rumors about her on Twitter were still a hot topic, and Cameron's comment had been roasted as well. As always, his direct message inbox must have been crammed with all kinds of messages now.

Last time Nina wanted to help him to delete, but this time she didn't bother to care about him, and she was quite happy to see him being attacked by her fans on the Internet. She was one with her fans. They scolded him and that was as if she had scolded him as well.

Cameron also stayed in a private box, but as a man and a junior, he did not act like a gentleman at all.

After sitting down, he ordered food without considering Michelle's preference or Colleen's taste. He just lowered his eyes and ordered a bunch of food. Anyway, Colleen glanced at the dishes he ordered. There was hardly anything she liked to eat.

As for Michelle, she was even more depressed. She didn't eat seafood while Cameron ordered so much.

In order to break the ice, Michelle took out a few tickets from her bag, handed two to Colleen and another to Cameron, and said shyly, "Cameron, I'll hold an art exhibition at the Olympic Center the day after tomorrow. I sincerely invite you to come to the exhibition with your parents."

It stands to reason that with an elder like Colleen present, Michelle should have said to her if she invited her, but when she said these words, her eyes completely fell on Cameron's face.

Obviously, the invitations to his parents were just claptrap. The person she most wanted to invite was Cameron.

And Colleen also acquiesced to her behavior. She held the ticket and didn't answer. "Sorry, I won't be around on that day." Cameron didn't take the ticket handed over by Michelle.

Michelle was embarrassed for a while, but the reason he gave made her unable to say anything, so she had to withdraw the ticket in her hand, and forced a decent smile, "Okay then, that's really too bad."

Colleen said dissatisfiedly, "Why? Where are you going?"

Cameron's reply was very official, "I have something to deal with in another city." Colleen became even more dissatisfied, "You don't have a job now. What business do you have out of town?"

In Colleen's opinion, Cameron has no reason to leave Riverside City, He just came back from abroad, didn't he? When he said that he was going to another place was simply an excuse for him not to go to the exhibition.

Cameron looked at his mother and replied lightly, "Do you need me to show my ticket?"

He took out his mobile phone and tried to show her his record.

Colleen's face stiffened, then she waved her hand and said, "No, you don't need to do that."

Colleen was still sensible, knowing that if she really checked Cameron's phone, it would damage the relationship between them more or less.

In desperation, Colleen could only turn her head to look at Michelle with a smile to help smooth things out, "Well, what a pity for him. Michelle's exhibition must be very pleasing to the eyes."

"It's that he doesn't have the chance to see that. Let's ignore him." Colleen comforted Michelle.

Michelle snapped out of her disappointment and said with a smile, "It's okay, there'll be other opportunities to visit my art exhibition in the future."

When she said those words, her eyes fell on Cameron's face with a deep look. Cameron frowned slightly and an extremely uncomfortable feeling filled his heart.

He glanced at Michelle and said indifferently, "You don't need to invite me again in the future. I majored in biology and I can't appreciate such high art."

Then he added, "I'm just a worldling. I like those things that most men like."

The implication was that he only cared about women and sex.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 556 Only You

Cameron's words made Michelle's smile fade away.

He said he could not appreciate such high art to show he didn't like her.

Colleen glared at Cameron to warn him to mind his language.

Cameron picked up the phone and stood up, "You eat first. I'm going out for a cigarette."

“What? Cigarette?” Colleen exclaimed from behind, “You smoke?”

Colleen Donovan couldn't believe it.

In her eyes, her son was always an obedient child who had never smoked or even played video games as he grew up.

He had never developed such bad habits though a lot of other boys around him began to smoke or drink alcohol back in the school years.

But now Cameron said he would go out for a cigarette.

Cameron simply ignored what his mother said and left the room.

After he closed the door behind him, Colleen took a few deep breaths to calm down.

Michelle gave her a cup of water and said, “Don't get angry, Mrs. Dauster. It is quite normal for a man to smoke, isn't it?”

Michelle knew exactly what was in Colleen's mind.

Colleen drank a mouthful of water and sighed, “I didn't know he smokes. He has never smoked before he got back from college.”

Colleen could accept that her son smoked. But she just failed to accept that her son would change so fast.

Michelle continued, “He had been studying hard these years so he might have learned to smoke to relieve his pressure.

Colleen patted her hand and said, “You're so sweet. Every single word you said is what I want to hear, Michelle.” Michelle smiled timidly, “Thank you, Mrs. Dauster.”

Colleen thought of Cameron's attitude toward Michelle and started to criticize her son, “Cameron has always been a quiet and introvert kid. He didn't know how to please a girl. Please be more patient with him, Michelle.”

Michelle smiled, “I won't, Mrs. Dauster. But I like his personality and his firm attitude. It means he won't get seduced by other women easily.”

Michelle's words had won Colleen's heart. Colleen asked her, "You really think so?" "Of course," Michelle said sincerely, "I know he doesn't like me. But I think I will move him through persistence."

Michelle had a glimpse at Colleen and continued, "Nina Sanchez became his girlfriend in this way, didn't her?"

As she mentioned Nina, Colleen's face seemed a bit weird. She didn't want to mention Nina, especially in Michelle's presence.

"You don't have to mention her. she could not be compared with you." Colleen then changed the topic.

Michelle didn't finish her words.

Colleen didn't like Nina and Michelle knew that.

But now thinking of Cameron who had just went out and the presence of Nina in this restaurant, Michelle felt quite disgusted.

Nina had abandoned Cameron for money and now she tried to approach Cameron again? Otherwise, why she would come to this restaurant?

Other people who didn't know them much all thought it was Nina who wooed Cameron because Nina was merely beautiful but Cameron had a promising future as well as money.

People thought Nina laid her hands on Cameron for his wealth, but they didn't know Cameron was actually deep in love with Nina.

But in Michelle's eyes, Nina was nothing more than a gold-digger.

Though Nina had already become a famous actress, Michelle still thought she didn't deserve Cameron's love.

Cameron got outside the room and went to the end of the corridor. He didn't come out for a smoke. He just wanted to leave Michelle and his mother for a while. He didn't smoke much in his daily life. When he was in good mood, he would smoke, but in most of the time he didn't smoke.

He stood at the end of the corridor with one hand in his pocket and one hand holding his phone.

Before he could figure out whether he should call Nina to explain the Michelle thing or get in their room to explain directly, he received a message from Julian, which read, "Nina got out for a call."

Cameron smiled and then thanked Julian. Then he saw the door of the room opened and Nina got out in black short blouse and black sweatpants with a phone in hand.

Now it was quite popular for young girls to dress like this. Her white and slim waist and her hourglass figure would be shown clearly in this way.

The one who phoned her made her so annoyed that she didn't realize someone was standing at the end of the corridor.

Cameron saw the beauty walked toward him slowly and squinted. From her voice and attitude, he knew it was her parents that called her.

Cameron knew much about her parents. He knew they were greedy and they treated their daughter so bad. In their mind, their daughter was nothing but a tool to earn money.

Before Nina became a famous actress, they even wanted to sell her after she graduated from high school. They didn't care who she would get married with. They just wanted money from her and her husband.

After Nina started her career as an actress, they treated their daughter as the piggy bank.

Luckily, Nina didn't let them do whatever they wanted. She would give them a little something they wanted, but she also knew how to decline their rude requests.

Cameron knew all these things from Viggo. He also knew what Nina had done in recent years.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 557 Worst Parents in the World

Cameron could still remember a rainy evening during the vacation before he entered college. He received a call from Nina right after he took a shower at home. That afternoon, they had just met in his house. At that time, they were so in love with each other that they wanted to spend every seconds together, except that they still dared not stay out at night.

He answered the call and was about to tease her that she even began to miss him right after she left him. But her shaky voice stopped him, "Help, Cameron, I need your help."

Then she mentioned a hotel's name and continued in a trembling voice, "My parents drugged me. They want to sell me to an old man. I just knocked him down with an astray. Save me, Cameron. He is bleeding. I don't know what to do."

He instantly felt heartbroken, and he rushed out of his house in pajamas. His parents thought he was crazy, but they still drove him to the hotel Nina mentioned.

He took Nina out and called the ambulance to take the old man. Possessed by anger, he even wanted to find Nina's parents and beat them up, but his parents stopped him.

That's how his parents knew about his relationship with Nina and knew why he would choose a different college.

His mother secretly found Nina a few days later and gave Nina one million dollars.

That's why Nina broke up with him.

Whenever he thought of how Nina trebled in his arms with a pale face, he wanted to have her parents killed.

How could they be so malicious?

How could parents treat their own daughter in such a cruel way?

The call Nina received now was dialed by her parents. Her mother Marisa Midgarden was crying, and her father Dominic Sanchez cursing on the other side. And, of course, she was the one cursed by her father.

Marisa said while sobbing, "Please, please help us, Nina. The creditor had found us out and smashed whatever they could in our house."

Nina said in an indifferent voice, "It was Cory who was in debt. What do you call me for?"

Her mother had just told her that her younger brother Cory Sanchez had lost a lot of money through gambling online and borrowed a lot of money from a loan shark. Now he couldn't repay the money, and the creditor had found her parents at home. So, Dominic and Marisa called her for help.

Nina felt quite funny when she heard this. But then she knew her parents were exactly the kind of person who would do this shameless thing. Then she chose to ignore them.

Her indifference made her mother burst into another round of tears. Then Dominic took the phone and shouted at Nina, "Nina! We brought you up and that's how you pay us back? You want to witness who we are killed by the creditor?"

Nina strolled towards the end of the corridor and said, "Firstly, Cory made you to suffer such thing, not me. You should go and blame him. And I don't believe the creditor will kill you. You won't lose your life. Maybe one or two limbs, I suppose."

"Nina!" from Dominic's cry Nina could tell that her father was now outraged.

She smiled and was about to say something to fight back. But before she could do that, she found someone standing at the end of the corridor. His face was veiled by the sunlight but she still recognized who he was.

He was as elegant and perfect as a Greek sculpture.

That's exactly what in Nina's mind when she met Cameron for the first time. Now he was still as perfect as he used to be.

And then thinking of the miserable situation she was in and the night when she was almost ruined by her parents, she felt quite hopeless.

Nina knew why Colleen looked down upon her. She didn't deserve his love. Now she felt extremely agonized but quite sober.

So, she quickly calmed down and ignored the one standing beside the window. Then she continued, "And, if you want to pay the money back for Cory, you can just sell one of your houses, right?"

"I've bought you two houses and a villa for Cory, oh, and those three cars. Sell them and you'll have money. That should be enough to clear the debt. I've already fulfilled my own responsibility and I won't give you one more penny."

That's true. Nina knew what she had done for her younger brother and her parents these days. Her parents hadn't spent a single dollar for her since she graduated from high school. And they didn't want her to enter the college.

Her figure and her face had given her a chance to do some part-time jobs as a model for commercials. But back then, she still couldn't be compared with those famous movie stars.

She knew from she was quite young that her parents wouldn't pay for her tuition for college. So, she would do whatever part-time jobs she could to earn money.

And then she became quite confident when she worked as a model for commercials. Lots of directors and photographers had praised her beauty and recommended her to start a career as an actress. Then she knew what kind of future she would choose.

Otherwise, she wouldn't have chosen to become an actress due to what she experienced in her family.

What her parents wanted was only money. They were even afraid that their daughter was too good looking and would start a relationship before marriage, which would make it harder for them to find her a rich husband.

They had never planned for her future. They just want to make her get married soon for money.

In other words, they wanted to sell their daughter.

In the first a few years when she started a career as an actress, Marisa often called her to curse her. She urged her to get married. And after cursing her, she would shamelessly ask her daughter for maney.

By then she could only play some little characters and was not rich. But she still gave her mother whatever she asked.

After all, she was their daughter and they had brought her up. She thought it was her responsibility to pay them back.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 558 Blemishes

After she became famous and rich, her parents found her and asked her to buy a huge villa for them and Nina agreed instantly.

And then there was a second villa for her younger brother for his future marriage and Nina also agreed to buy one for him.

And the villa owned by Cory was also bought by Nina on his 18-year-old birthday as a gift.

Her parents were extremely happy and thought Nina lived her younger brother so much. But they didn't know Nina was doing this to say goodbye, to break off with them in the future.

Nina knew her younger brother was also a bastard.

As she became more and more famous, Cory tried to rely on his sister. Nina didn't want herself to be bound by Cory so she directly gave a villa to him.

But seldom did she buy anything for herself. She only bought a house in Riverside City for herself and later another house in the capital to meet Emelia. She lived a quite frugal life.

She saved the money she earned. At first, she did this in a fit of anger as she wanted to throw at Colleen a 10 million check to humiliate her, but then it gradually became one of her habits. She felt safe as she saw the number on her bank account.

Only money could give her the sense of safety.

Marisa took the phone again and begged her while sobbing, "How could we sell the house? It took us a lot of money."

Nina sneered. It did take them lots of efforts to get the house from her.

"Cory was still a child. He was deceived. Please, help him, Nina, I beg you. I promise I'll teach him a lesson," Marisa tried so hard to persuade her how arduous it was for them to get the one million.

Nina said coldly, "He is already twenty. And you said he was still a child?"

"What did you do to me when I was twenty? You even tried to sell me to the old man for money when I was only 18!" Nina's words made Marisa fall into silence.

Nina continued, "I can pay for his tuition. But I won't pay for his mistake. If he was deceived to gamble online, why didn't he stop when he had lost 10 thousand? why didn't he stop when he had lost 100 thousand? He didn't stop because he thought I will make up for him. Then he is too naive. So are you. I won't pay that money.

"You can sell one of you houses to pay for him or let the creditor torture you. Or you can simply wait for Cory to go to jail. I think he need to learn something in there."

"Nina!" Marisa shouted, "How could you curse your brother!" Nina said indifferently, "He owed other people money so it is quite natural for him to get into jail. I'm just telling the truth."

"Bitch!" Dominic cursed again as if he had gone mad, "You want to have your career ruined? You said you've been single all these years, right? I can tell your fans you've already had sex with Cameron Dauster! See how shameless you are!"

Nina was stunned.

She felt cold all over her body.

It had never occurred to her that her father would say this only to get money from her.

As her parents, they even threatened to ruin her.

Actually, she didn't cherish her career so much.

She had planned to retire someday and that's why she chose to establish her own studio.

But she wanted a decent retirement, not to be forced by her father.

Casual as she appeared to be, she was in fact a pretty aggressive person.

Dominic's words had finally irritated her no matter whether he said those subconsciously or had planned to threaten her.

Now in her mind, they didn't deserve her help anymore. Nina wouldn't lend a single dollar to them whatever happened.

Suddenly, someone pressed his hand on her shoulder and then held her in arms. A man's warm and worried voice rose, "Are you alright?"

He didn't ask what happened to her, which meant he had known who was phoning her. Nina felt embarrassed and pushed the man away before she shouted to Dominic, "You can do whatever you want. But you know very well that what you'll get if I were ruined, dad."

Then Nina hung up the phone directly.

She knew how to deal with her father. She didn't forget to warn Dominic that they would end up getting nothing if they tried to destroy her.

Then she put a without letting Cameron see it. She turned away and scoffed, "Why are you here, Mr. Dauster? Aren't having dinner with that gorgeous lady."

She thought she didn't deserve his love.

Her parents and her younger brother were the blemishes in her life.

So, she chose to draw the line between them in such a cruel way.

She had checked the background of Michelle. Her parents were both professors in college. They would have made good friends with Cameron's parents. Maybe that was also part of the reason why they would choose her as Cameron's future wife.

Nina just couldn't imagine how her parents would get along with Cameron's. And Michelle was also beautiful and talented. She was a romantic artist, which would make a perfect match with Cameron.

Though Nina's words did hurt Cameron, he still took a step toward her and asked, "It's your parents, right?"

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 559 The Most Beautiful Woman

Nina didn't want to talk about her parents with Cameron, and she didn't want to stay here with him. So, she ignored him and turned away.

But Cameron pulled her back and pressed her against the wall like people did in romantic stories.

But Nina didn't feel it romantic, especially at this moment when she felt depressed. She just thought she was assaulted, and she wanted to slap Cameron.

But at last, she refrained herself from doing so.

Then she looked up at him and said in rage, "It's none of your business." With his eyes fixed on her affectionately, Cameron promised her, "If they had bullied you, I would bully them as revenge."

Cameron knew he should respect Nina's parents. But after he witnessed what Dominic did to her daughter that evening, he knew what kind of person her parents were.

They even tried to do such an evil thing to their own daughter.

If Nina was weak and unable to protect herself and if she didn't stun that old man, Cameron couldn't imagine what she would have experienced.

If she had been assaulted by that old man, she might have committed suicide.
Whenever he thought of that evening, he wanted to kill those people.
He didn't care whether Dominic was Nina's father or not. He must let him pay for it.

Hearing Cameron's words, Nina sneered.

How stupid he was!

Didn't he think she was just the same as her parents? Why did he still love her?

Michelle's family life was much happier than hers.

Nina didn't say anything and tried to push him away. Then she suddenly caught sight of Michelle getting out of the room booked by Cameron. Michelle naturally saw how close the two were and felt hurt.

Her face instantly made Nina feel disgusted. The face belonged to a woman who pretended to be poor to win sympathy from her man.

Due to the trouble made by Dominic and Marisa, Nina was now in a terrible mood. The bitchy face of Michelle had inspired a desire for mischief in her mind.

She put on a faint smile and glanced at Michelle before holding Cameron's face in her hands.

Then she quickly pressed her soft lips to the man's cold lips.

She loved to play the role of a malicious woman.

In the TV series which made her famous, her role was a malicious bitch who was always with some ulterior motives to trap other girls. Her gorgeous face and the unique charm of the character impressed a lot of the audience.

Though the role had become one of the most loathed characters by the audience, she had made herself a famous actress because of this TV series.

After that, she played several different roles of a malicious woman.

And in the series in which she cooperated with Harry Zink, she finally got rid of such roles. But her role was still an able woman.

Suppose Emelia didn't recommend her to play the role in "Princess Leilania". In that case, the audience might remember her as an actress who could only play malicious women or super villains.

Now Michelle looked just like the bitchy-faced woman in the TV series.

She didn't want to start a relationship with Cameron again. But now, what she wanted was to irritate Michelle despite what outcome her hug and kiss would cause.

It was pretty thrilling for her to irritate such a phony.

Cameron felt quite surprised why Nina would stroke his face so affectionately just after she showed no interest in him. And more to that, Nina even took the initiative to kiss him.

Cameron was stunned. He had never expected that she would kiss him. But, before he could figure out what to do now, he was enchanted by Nina's charming eyes and then took her waist subconsciously.

He didn't notice the presence of Michelle. All he cared about now was Nina.

After Nina pushed him away, Cameron heard something and turned back to find Michelle running away with her hand covering her mouth.

Obviously, she had witnessed what they had done.

Now Cameron knew why Nina would kiss him, but he didn't feel angry. In his mind, Nina would do this because she still loved him.

Otherwise, she wouldn't have tried to irritate Michelle.

But it had never occurred to her that Nina turned away straightaway as she saw Michelle had run away. And Cameron pulled her back again.

Now she was pretty good at provoking others. After taking her back, he didn't ask anything but held her head in his hands. Then he kissed her again even more violently.

Nina felt as if her tongue were swallowed by him. She knew she had to fly back to the shooting site, so she stopped Cameron's foot. Though Cameron stopped his kissing, Nina was still in his arms and unable to get rid of him.

Cameron knew he couldn't continue the kiss. Nina was a famous actress after all. She would get in trouble if she was caught sight by other people.

So, he said what Nina wanted to know with his eyes fixed on her, "My mom deceived me into having dinner with Michelle." Nina rolled her eyes to show she didn't trust him. Cameron said in rage, "So, is that who I am in your eyes?"

"No, I don't know who you are actually," Nina had a glimpse at him and continued, "Men are all the same. They only love beautiful, seductive girls.,

Cameron smiled as she said this and then took her jaw to say, "Who do you think it's the more attractive girl here? If I'm exactly that kind of man, then that's why I chose you."

In other words, he didn't think Michelle was pretty.

In his eyes, Nina was the most beautiful woman in this world.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 560 None of Your Business

Actually, Cameron said these words to express his love for her.

Nina also didn't expect Cameron could say these words. Cameron seldom said sweet words in the past. Nina was the more active talker when they were with each other.

Cameron always believed that actions sounded louder than words.

His words had made Nina feel much better.

But she didn't show any joy and snorted, "Maybe for you, Michelle is charming in some other ways. Her character, or her perfect family background..."

Cameron moved closer and interrupted her, "So you wouldn't believe my words anyway?"

Nina didn't say a word and Cameron continued, "I don't care about that woman so I don't think I have to explain. But you should have something to tell me about Douglas Cleveland. What's his relationship with you? What did he say these on Twitter?"

Nina didn't expect him to change the topic so fast. Now it was her turn to answer that question.

And, what did Douglas said online? He just liked one of the twitters she posted.

So, what did Cameron mean by asking this?

Nina glared at him and said, "It's none of your business.

Then Nina shook his hand off and got back to her room.

Cameron didn't follow her but stayed where he was and looked at her from behind.

He wouldn't let her parents or Douglas Cleveland go.

When he got back to his room, Michelle hadn't got back yet. He sat on his seat and began to eat. He hoped Michelle was shocked by the scene she had just witnessed and chose to give him up.

But Colleen didn't see that. She saw Michelle had gone out for a while and said, "Where is Michelle? She said she was going to the washroom."

Cameron didn't answer and Colleen continued, "Didn't you see Michelle out there?"

"No," Cameron lied with a calm face.

"What happened to her?" Colleen took out her phone and was about to call Michelle.

Then the door was opened and Michelle got in. Cameron didn't tell anything wrong from her face and he began to doubt whether Nina's action worked.

inally, you're back, Michelle. I was quite worried about you." Colleen placed her phone on the table and heaved a sigh of relief.

“I saw an acquaintance out there and had a little chat with her,” Michelle said with a faint smile. But she empathized the word “acquaintance” with her eyes fixed on Cameron.

She hoped through doing so, she could find a sense of embarrassment on Cameron’s handsome face. But Cameron didn’t show anything on his face.

And she also caught sight of the mark of lipstick on Cameron’s lips. Then the scene of how Cameron kissed Nina in his arms popped up in Michelle’s mind again.

She didn’t expect Cameron, a gentleman in daily life, would be such a good kisser. As she saw how he kissed Nina, she blushed, but she was pissed too.

She just couldn’t accept the fact that she couldn’t get Cameron.

So, after she cried and ran away, she finally got back to this room. She was confident that she would be the one who won his heart at last.

Cameron didn’t expect Michelle would get back to this room. But he didn’t care what she would do and continued to eat. Michelle then started a conversation with Cameron’s mother.

When Nina got back to her seat, Emelia said astonishedly, “What happened to you, Nina? Your lips are injured!” Nina was silent.

What?

Cameron even bit her lips when he kissed her?

The kiss did hurt her. But she didn’t know her lips were actually injured.

Now as Emelia was asking her, Nina couldn’t help rubbing her lips embarrassedly. But before she could explain, Emelia nodded and said, “Oh, I understand.”

Emelia had got married. From the embarrassed expression on Nina’s face and the presence of Cameron in this restaurant she could know what had just happened.

Nina must have encountered Cameron as she answered the call.

But was that a coincidence? Cameron was also in the corridor as Nina received the call.

Though Emelia often got confused during her pregnancy, she was quite smart today. She turned to Julian who often poked one's nose into others' business in recent days.

Looking into her eyes, Julian felt a sense of guilt.

He didn't expect that his wife would find out the culprit behind all these things.

But he was also a man who was adept at disguising. He moved closer to his wife and said in a low and gentle voice, "What happened?"

He knew Emelia liked him to speak in this voice the best. So, he chose to speak lowly to stop Emelia from asking more.

This little trick often worked on Emelia in the past. But today Emelia didn't get fooled by Julian and even pinched his legs violently, which almost made him jump from his chair.

But he still remained quite calm so that Nina wouldn't notice his change. If she knew it was him who informed Cameron to get to the corridor, she wouldn't let him go.

Emelia didn't say anything more. But then she took her phone and texted a piece of message to him and warned, "We'll talk about it later at home."

Staring at the message, Julian felt quite terrible.

It was so hard to be a matchmaker.

But actually, he would do this to "drive" Nina away from Emelia. If Nina got in a relationship with Cameron again, she would spend her time with Cameron and leave Emelia to him.

Now he just wanted Emelia to be his Emelia, not anyone else's. Hh hd