

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 591 A Call from Marisa

Generally, those who fall in love would live a happier life. However, Nina always had trouble with her relationship, which almost killed Sherlyn.

“Nina, I’ve had my say. Now that you don’t listen to me, you have to deal with whatever happens to yourself.” Sherlyn was in a state of anger.

Nina didn’t take it seriously, but said, “Don’t worry. I know what I should do.”

With a sigh, Sherlyn hung up the phone.

Nina friended Douglas on WhatsApp again and explained that she didn’t defriend him on purpose.

Douglas replied aggrievedly, “I thought you hated me and would never talk with me.”

After chatting with Douglas for a while, Nina learned that Douglas was very worried about her after he knew that she was in a coma. He kept sending her messages that he wanted to visit her in Jamelaton.

This probably annoyed Cameron, so he defriended Douglas with Nina’s phone.

Nina quickly explained, “No. I took too much medicine and always felt dizzy, so it is very likely that I defriended you by accident.” It was not a convincing explanation.

But Nina couldn’t tell Douglas the truth.

“As an apology, I want to invite you to dinner another night,” Nina continued.

Douglas thought it was a good chance, so he said, “There’s no time like the present, so I’ll go to Jamelaton now. In case you change your mind, how about having dinner with me tomorrow.”

Douglas had invited Nina to eat with him many times, but she didn't agree. Now that she took the initiative to offer it, Douglas decided to go to Jamelaton as soon as possible. He was afraid that she would change her mind later.

Nina smiled and replied, "Okay."

Douglas was over the moon. He immediately booked a ticket.

Nina didn't hate Douglas. Although he was a playboy and had had many girlfriends, he was indeed a pleasure to hang out with.

Different from other rich men, Douglas was not arrogant at all. Instead, he was approachable and always grinned. On the contrary, Cameron always put on a cold face, so Nina felt more comfortable with Douglas.

Nina had asked Douglas why he still liked her after going abroad. As a playboy, he should have met many women who were better than her.

Douglas's reply made Nina lost for words.

Douglas said that he liked Nina because she was rebellious and always gave him a cold shoulder. He thought it was not interesting to date those who were too gentle and submissive.

Hearing this, Nina thought Douglas must be a masochist.

Douglas accepted this comment with a smile. The colder Nina was to him, the more he found her interesting and adorable.

One always craved what he couldn't get.

The next day, Nina was meeting Douglas at a restaurant that attached importance to its customers' privacy. Jamelaton was not a small city, so it was hard to find such a decent restaurant.

After finishing work, Nina returned to the hotel room and simply tidied herself up. Just as Nina was about to go out for the appointment, she received a call from her mother, Marisa Midgarden, who was crying out on the phone, "I'm going to kill myself, Nina."

Nina was very calm about this because she knew what happened.

Nina asked calmly, "What's wrong?"

Marisa roared, "Do you know what happened today? An extremely coquettish woman came and said that she had been with your father for several years. She even asked me to divorce your father!"

"What a bastard your father is! I have had a hard time bringing you up and contributing a lot to our family, but he cheats on me!" Nina took the phone a little away from her ear and remained silent with an indifferent look.

Exactly, Marisa only cared about Cory. On the contrary, Marisa paid no attention to Nina, so Nina had to make a living as a part-time model since she was a middle student.

Marisa continued, "No wonder your father always told me that he had no money and kept urging me to ask you for money. It turns out that he gave all his money to that bitch!"

"I hate him. I'm going to kill him and then myself!" Nina didn't believe this at all.

Marisa and Dominic both cherished their lives, so Marisa wouldn't kill Dominic at the cost of her own life. Nina was even certain that Marisa would not divorce Dominic no matter how furious she was. As a coward, Marisa couldn't make a difference.

Therefore, Nina said indifferently, "Since he cheats on you, why not divorce him?"

As expected, Marisa said, "What are you talking about? I can't get them satisfied. I will never divorce him, and then they will never be able to get married."

"Now that you don't want to divorce, you have to bear it yourself. I'm busy, so I'll hang up." Nina hung up the phone without any hesitation.

Nina could guess why Marisa called her. Marisa wanted Nina to ask Dominic to break up with that woman. Nonetheless, Nina decided to stay out of it.

In fact, Nina was responsible for it.

Dominic caused trouble for Cameron's parents. He wanted to ruin Nina's and Cameron's reputations. Thus, Nina decided to teach Dominic a lesson.

Nina knew that Dominic had a mistress. Even if Nina only went home once a year, she could find something wrong with Dominic. It was obvious that Dominic didn't love Marisa anymore, but Marisa felt that she had a great marriage.

Nina hired an investigator and asked him to follow Dominic. Very soon, Nina was told that Dominic had a mistress.

Dominic's mistress had worked as a prostitute before. After she was not young, she began to flirt with Dominic and asked him for money.

Dominic was tempted by her appearance, so they hooked up with each other for a few years.

Nina was not surprised at all. She was not angry with Dominic's derailment, nor did she sympathize with Marisa. After all, she had no feelings for them.

But Nina hedged her bets by asking the investigator to keep an eye on Dominic. Every once in a while, she would receive photos and videos of Dominic and her mistress.

In order not to embarrass Dominic and Marisa, Nina hadn't intended to expose this to anyone. Nevertheless, given what they did to her, Nina didn't want to think for them anymore.

Nina went to Dominic's mistress, gave her same money, and asked her to tell Marisa everything. Dominic's mistress agreed without hesitation.

As long as Dominic's mistress kept fighting with Marisa, Dominic wouldn't have time to trouble Nina and Cameron anymore.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 592 Nina, How Dare You!

After hanging up the phone, Nina took Sylvie to dinner with Douglas.

“Nina, are you really going to have dinner with Douglas?” Sylvie walked beside Nina with an unwilling look.

While walking, Nina said, “Of course. I’ve even asked you to make us a reservation in the restaurant.” “But…” Sylvie didn’t like Douglas at all.

As a rich playboy, Douglas was popular among many girls, but Sylvie, who always behaved herself, hated Douglas very much.

Thus, she didn’t want Nina to be in touch with Douglas.

Compared with Cameron, who loved nobody but Nina for so many years, Douglas was not a good choice for Nina.

Nina waved her hand to stop Sylvie. “Don’t say that. Douglas is already waiting there. Hurry up.”

Sylvie had to follow Nina into the van.

Douglas was a man with a very outstanding appearance. In an extravagant suit, he looked super handsome.

After Nina walked into the private room, Douglas complained with a shrug, “It’s really hard to meet you for a meal.”

Nina smiled, and Douglas continued with concern, “Are you feeling better?”

“I’m much better now.” Nina said as she sat down, “I just need to be careful with the diet and have some rest. It’s not a big deal.” Douglas nodded, and then exclaimed, “You look beautiful even when you are sick.”

Sylvie couldn’t bear to hear this, so she quickly got up and said, “The dishes have taken such a long time. I’m going to ask the waiter about it.”

Sylvie would be disgusted if she didn’t leave here quickly.

Douglas glanced at Sylvie’s back and said to Nina, “Your assistant doesn’t seem to like me.”

Nina gave an embarrassed smile. "No, she was hungry, so she couldn't wait any longer."

Nina thought Sylvie was too partial to Cameron. Sylvie kept trying to help fix things between Nina and Cameron. On the contrary, Sylvie always gave a cold shoulder to Douglas.

Douglas smiled, "As long as you don't hate me, nothing else matters." Nina couldn't help rolling her eyes. If Douglas continued to talk this way, she might be annoyed as well.

While waiting for the dishes, Douglas asked, "By the way, how is that love show going on? Do you need me to do you a favor?"

What Douglas was long on was money. No matter who the new investor of the show was, he would pale when compared with Douglas in money. Douglas would help Nina if she chose.

Nina was frightened and quickly waved her hand to refuse. "No, thank you. I'm indeed having some health issues, so it is good for me to quit the show."

Douglas said disconsolately, "I really hope you could be on that show. I pay to be a participant, but a man cut in front of me.

"To teach that guy a lesson, I tried my best to find out who he was, but the crew didn't tell me anything about him." Douglas was super angry when he said this.

Nina just wanted to change the topic. "Well, don't be angry. I have quit the show, so it doesn't matter who he is."

"That's true." Douglas quickly recovered from his anger. "If you were on that show, we probably couldn't eat together now.

Once we were taken picture of, our rumor would spread, and it would affect the show."

Douglas could always comfort himself. He soon forgot what was annoying.

The food was quickly served. Sylvie hurriedly ate a little and got out of the private room. She thought it was inconvenient to stay inside, and she also needed to see whether any paparazzi were taking pictures.

After Nina was trending on the Internet because of her sickness, countless paparazzi were attracted to Jamelaton for her popularity.

Hence, it was audacious of Nina to eat outside with Douglas. Once they were photographed, it would be another trending topic.

Sylvie even made up the title in her mind, which was “Douglas Cleveland, the young master of the Cleveland Group, made his way to pursue Nina Sanchez.”

Nina and Douglas didn't eat for a long time. Considering that Nina needed rest and she had to work the next day, Douglas walked out of the restaurant with Nina.

Douglas knew that Rome wasn't built in a day. He did appreciate it that Nina agreed to eat with him. Douglas decided to take it slowly and believed that one day he would win her heart.

Before Nina got into her van, Douglas asked, “When will you return to Riverside City? I'd like to invite you to dinner then.” Douglas wanted to take Nina to a romantic dinner, which most girls favored.

“If I don't need to attend any business activities, I'll stay with the crew all the time,” Nina replied.

Douglas sighed in disappointment. “Well, then I'll ask you when you are available.”

Nina waved goodbye to Douglas, turned around, and got into her van, while Douglas then got into his car and left.

After returning to the hotel, Sylvie covered her chest and said, “Fortunately, you were not photographed. I have been looking around and saw no paparazzi.”

Nina raised her eyebrows.

Nina had wanted to be photographed so that Cameron could know that she had dinner with Douglas. And then Cameron would be annoyed.

That was what Nina wanted. Cameron deserved it!

Without saying anything, Nina put down her handbag and went to the bathroom to take a shower.

Not long after Nina turned on the shower, Sylvie screamed and wailed, "Damn it! You are photographed!" Sylvie was going to have some kind of breakdown.

A minute ago, Sylvie, who was picking up the stomach medicine for Nina, glanced at her phone and was shocked. The picture of Nina waving goodbye to Douglas at the restaurant's door was trending online.

Sylvie almost fainted when she saw the title, which was almost the same as what she made up. It was "Douglas Cleveland, the young master of the Cleveland Group made his way to date Nina Sanchez."

Nina said only a few words to Douglas at the door. However, in the angle of the picture being taken, they seemed to be in a great relationship. The public would be easily misled.

This picture sent shockwaves throughout the Internet.

Some people commented that Nina quit the show because she was dating Douglas. She was no longer single, so she couldn't continue to participate in the show.

It was such a trending topic that Cameron, who was far away in Riverside City, saw it as well.

Cameron was overwhelmed by fury. He thought, "Nina, how dare you!" 101 II. 1

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 593 Get Married Tomorrow

How dare Nina eat with Douglas!

She totally ignored what Cameron said.

She was driving him crazy on purpose.

Also, Cameron felt heartbroken.

Cameron threw his phone aside in anger, scratched his hair, and kept pacing back and forth.

In the end, Cameron stopped and took his mobile phone. He quickly texted Nina and then waited quietly beside the bed.

Considering what Nina did, Cameron decided to put all his eggs in one basket.

In the bathroom, Nina turned a deaf ear to Sylvie's screams. Nina agreed to eat with Douglas because she wanted to be photographed. And then Cameron would be driven mad when seeing the picture. Everything went as she planned.

After taking a shower, Nina walked out of the bathroom in a bathrobe. Sylvie complained, "I told you not to have dinner with Douglas, but you didn't listen to me. Look, you have been photographed."

"Those entertainment reporters are really good at inventing a story. They are definitely going to win an Oscar." Sylvie was very angry, but Nina said lazily, "It's not the first time they do so. They can do whatever they like." After all, the entertainment reporters did best in gossiping.

Sylvie stomped her feet. "Nina, you shouldn't be so calm."

What those people commented on the Internet was scathing. Nonetheless, however anxious Sylvie was, Nina didn't take it seriously at all.

Nina ate the medicine that Sylvie prepared for her and then said, "Everything is okay today, so you can go back and rest. Just calm down, or you will get wrinkles."

Words failed Sylvie.

Sylvie thought everything would be easy if Nina could listen to her.

After Nina took the medicine, Sylvie planned to leave as soon as possible.

Hardly had Sylvie reached the door did Nina say through gritted teeth, "Cameron, you bastard!"

Sylvie was startled. She quickly turned around and rushed back, asking, "What's wrong? What happened?" Nevertheless, Nina grabbed her phone and said, "It doesn't matter. You can go home now."

Before Sylvie could say something, she was pushed out of the room, so she shook her head and left.

A few minutes ago, Cameron was berserk, but now Nina almost freaked out.

Nina was irritated by the picture from Cameron.

In the picture, Nina was sleeping soundly on the bed. However, a closer look revealed that she was resting on a man's arm. Although Nina was dressed in pajamas, the others would get the wrong idea.

Nina was going crazy. She didn't expect Cameron to take such a photo while she was asleep.

What a despicable and shameless man! Nina kept cursing Cameron in her heart.

After a while, Nina calmed down a bit, so she called Cameron aggressively and roared, "Cameron, what do you want to do?"

Compared with Nina, Cameron said slowly and calmly, "Go to the courthouse and get the marriage licenses with me, or I will post this picture on the Internet."

Hearing this, Nina almost fainted from anger.

Nina thought that Cameron was just a maniac after coming back. He was not who he used to be.

"What's wrong with you?" Nina couldn't help complaining, "You pervert! How dare you photograph me when I was sleeping!" "You leave me no choice, Nina." Cameron said with emotion, "You shouldn't have dined with Douglas."

Nina was lost for words.

She shot herself in the foot.

Nina had intended to annoy Cameron with that. On the contrary, it nearly drove her mad that Cameron threatened her with a picture to get married to him.

Nina thought she shouldn't have eaten with Douglas! She did regret it! Overwhelmed by rage, Nina squeezed the phone and said, "It's a deal!" Anyway, Nina wouldn't suffer from getting married to Cameron.

Instead, Cameron's parents would be pissed off.

Nina tried to get away with Cameron because she didn't want to implicate him or affect his relationship with his family. Now that Cameron didn't care about that, Nina didn't worry about it anymore. There was nothing scary ahead.

With his outstanding appearance, good temperament, and a well-built body, Cameron could always distinguish himself from the others.

Although Cameron insisted that he was unemployed, Nina was sure that he had something to do with Camcien Lifetech.

Even if Cameron had nothing to do with Camcien Lifetech, Nina could support him. Nina saved a great deal of money over the years, so they could live a wealthy life.

The most important thing was that Nina did love Cameron. She had always dreamed about marrying him. Therefore, she wouldn't suffer from the marriage.

Cameron didn't expect Nina agreed so quickly, so he fell silent.

Nina snorted. "What's the matter? You're afraid?"

"Not at all." After Cameron recovered from the silence, he squeezed the phone and said, "I will wait for you at the Riverside City Airport tomorrow morning, and you should take the earliest flight back."

In fact, Cameron couldn't wait any longer. He wanted to take Nina to the courthouse right now, but it was almost midnight.

Even if he wanted to get the marriage licenses, the staff members were off.

Nina replied with a sneer and planned to hang up the phone. She wouldn't chicken out.

Cameron stopped her. "I know it is not convenient for you to make it public, so I will ask the staff members in the courthouse to keep it a secret for the time being."

"You've been despicable enough to force me to marry you, so you don't have to pretend to be considerate." After that, Nina hung up the phone.

Cameron was not annoyed by her sarcasm at all. Instead, he enjoyed her coquetry and the way she said.

Cameron could tell that she was not angry but was being sarcastic.

Besides, Cameron was over the moon, so he didn't bother to be angry with Nina. He beamed with pleasure when thinking that they were getting married tomorrow.

After Cameron recovered from the joy, he hurriedly made a call to Lucien. Over the years, Lucien was well-associated in both the business world and officialdom of Riverside City, so Cameron asked Lucien to tell the courthouse to keep a secret about his marriage with Nina tomorrow.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 594 All I Have Belongs to Her

"What?"

"You and Nina are going to get the marriage licenses tomorrow?"

Hearing what Cameron said, Lucien, who had just laid down on the bed, was frightened and fell off the bed.

Lucien felt he had suffered a lot from being Cameron's friend. Cameron always did something stunning.

"I remember you were just dumped by her, right?" Cameron had been so heartbroken that he nearly jumped from the top floor of a building.

Cameron ignored Lucien's words. "This is not the point. I need you to do me a favor tomorrow." Lucien got up from the ground, lay down on the bed again, and said tremblingly, "I need some time to calm down."

Leaning on the head of the bed for a few seconds, Lucien scratched his hair and said, "By the way, since you want to get marriage licenses, do you need to do a pre-nuptial property notarization first? You are the boss of both Camcien Lifetech and Tymers Entertainment, you are much wealthier than her..."

Cameron said without hesitation, "No, all I have belongs to her."

Lucien said with a shrug, "What if she divorces you in the future? And you will have to give half of your wealth to her. That's a great deal of money."

Cameron said crossly, "I will prevent it from happening. I don't want you to mention this anymore." Words failed Lucien.

Taking a deep breath, Lucien continued, "What if you don't like her anymore in a few years? By then, you will still have to give half of your wealth to her. And she could survive on it and won't need to do anything for the rest of her life."

Cameron said annoyedly, "I have been obsessed with her for so many years. Why do you think I can fall in love with any other woman in the future?"

Cameron would be satisfied if he could get married to Nina.

As for other women?

He wouldn't even look at them.

"Cameron, you haven't lived with each other. I'm afraid you will hate each other after living together for a while." Lucien was as careful as a babysitter. He couldn't bear it that Cameron was so brainless in love.

Lucien would be quiet if Cameron was an ordinary man. However, Cameron was a billionaire. Besides, he was very young and would have a promising future.

It was a little stupid of Cameron not to do a pre-nuptial property notarization.

“Cut the crap. I’m the one to get married. Mind your own business.” Cameron didn’t even know how to explain it to Lucien.

Lucien always thought Cameron was an immature and irrational man.

Cameron had made up his mind to love Nina forever since he was seventeen years. Otherwise, as an experienced businessman, he wouldn’t have been so obsessed with Nina.

Cameron fought all the way for Nina.

He studied hard and started companies so that he could protect Nina. As a female star, she needed a strong financial support.

Even if Nina was almost the most popular, she would be gradually taken over in the entertainment industry, where only the youngsters were favored.

Cameron’s current achievements were enough to support Nina. Nina could continue to live a superior life without being ridiculed.

Nina was a tough cookie, so Cameron worked hard to earn enough money to give her a decent life.

Hence, Cameron didn’t need the property notarization.

Cameron couldn’t wait to show and give everything he had to Nina, if Nina wanted.

Lucien was lost for words, so he said with a shrug, “Well, whatever you want, you can have it.”

As Cameron’s friend, Lucien wanted to strive for the greatest interests for Cameron, but Cameron didn’t appreciate it at all.

“I’ll tell the courthouse about it. Just leave it to me.” Lucien said as he patted his chest. He was able to deal with that, and it seemed to be the only thing he could do for Cameron now.

After hanging up the phone, Cameron walked over to the safe in his study. He entered the password, opened it, and took out an exquisite box. He opened the box and inside was a dazzling array of diamond rings.

These were collected every time he earned money over the years. As long as he saw a good-looking one, he would buy it, thinking that one day he would put it on Nina's finger in person.

Therefore, each of these diamond rings was invaluable and meaningful to Cameron.

Some of the diamonds were bought at auctions or tailor-made by jewelry designers. Some were of limited edition or were even designed by Cameron personally.

Cameron hadn't expected that Nina agreed to marry him.

But fortunately, he had made these preparations in advance, so he could give the rings to Nina tomorrow.

Cameron decided to give Nina all of them as a wedding present.

The phone on the side rang. Cameron took it and found it was a voice message from Nina. She said in an expressionless voice, "You should wear a white shirt tomorrow."

Cameron couldn't help chuckling. He quickly texted with his slender fingers, "Okay." On second thoughts, Cameron sent Nina a smiling emoji, but Nina didn't reply.

On the other end of the phone, Nina couldn't help rolling her eyes at this emoji.

Nina could feel that Cameron was in a good mood, but she thought he shouldn't be that smug, so she didn't want to reply to him.

Nina asked Sylvie to book both the earliest flight to Riverside City tomorrow morning and the flight back in the afternoon.

On the one hand, she didn't want to spend any time with Cameron after getting the marriage license. On the other hand, she was too embarrassed to be absent from work.

When Nina called the director to ask for leave, the director was obviously very unhappy.

Nina swore to the director that she wouldn't ask for leave until all the work was done after she came back.

Nina would probably be the first woman who buried herself in working after getting her marriage license.

However, Nina thought it was a good way to torture Cameron for he threatened her. Cameron had better prepare himself for the coming ups and downs.

Sylvie was very curious about why Nina suddenly wanted to return to Riverside City, so Sylvie asked after booking the plane ticket, "Nina, why do you suddenly want to return to Riverside City? Is something wrong? Have you told Sherlyn about it?"

"I have some private business to deal with." Nina made an excuse.

Nina did not dare to tell Sylvie and Sherlyn that she was going to get marriage licenses with Cameron. They would kill Nina if they knew it.

Nina intended to hide it from Sylvie and Sherlyn until she came back.

Nina had no choice. If she refused, Cameron would probably post that picture on the Internet.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 595 Nina Comes Back

Nina made up her mind that she would force Cameron to delete that picture when seeing him tomorrow. Besides, she would go through his phone to see if he saved any other such kind of photos.

Nina did regret that she had put too much trust in Cameron. How dare he photographed her when she was sound asleep.

Nina had thought that she would have difficulty falling asleep. However, she had a great sleep that night.

Nina instinctively fell asleep after she realized that she needed photographing in the courthouse tomorrow. An actress always attached great importance to how she looked in the picture. Hence, she had to have a good sleep so that she would look refreshed the next day.

On the contrary, Cameron stayed up all night.

Cameron was overwhelmed by the joy that he would get married to Nina tomorrow. What was more, he was afraid that it was just a dream, so he didn't dare to close his eyes.

The first time Cameron failed to fall asleep, he got up and ironed the white shirt he was going to wear tomorrow. He was so meticulous that all the wrinkles were removed.

After going to bed, Cameron tossed and turned for a long time and still couldn't fall asleep. He got up again and took the box with the diamond rings to his bedside, for fear that he would forget to bring it tomorrow.

After that, Cameron remained wide awake. Seeing that it was getting increasingly brighter outside, he got up and put on his clothes, took the car keys, and drove straight to the airport.

Even though Nina's flight would land in a few hours, Cameron drove to the airport. He acted as if Nina would escape.

Nina had a good trip to Riverside City. She came back alone with only a large bag. Before the plane took off, Nina received a text message from Cameron, "I'm waiting for you at the airport."

"OK," Nina replied. Besides this, she didn't know what to say. The plane hadn't even taken off, but Cameron was waiting at the airport. What a fool!

In order not to be photographed by reporters, Nina walked through the VIP exit to the parking lot. Getting into Cameron's car, she told him to drive away quickly.

Fortunately, Nina's coming back was very sudden. No paparazzi knew about her flight, so she could meet Cameron in secret.

Cameron was reluctant to drive away at once. Even though it had only been two days since they last met, he felt as if a century had passed. Thus, he just wanted to hold Nina in his arms for a while.

After Nina fastened her seat belt, she found that Cameron did nothing, so she urged, "What are you doing? We should leave here right now."

After Nina finished saying this, she raised her eyes and looked Cameron in the eye. The affection burning in his eyes shocked Nina, so she quickly looked away.

Nina was wearing a bucket hat that covered most of her face, so Cameron couldn't see her face after she looked away.

Considering that they would be found by paparazzi, Cameron calmed down and drove out of the parking lot.

After the car was on the highway to downtown, Nina took off her hat and turned to look at Cameron. She asked in confusion, "Why do you look so tired?"

Nina found it when she got into the car, but she was scared by the affection in Cameron's eyes, so she didn't dare to ask about it.

Cameron squeezed the steering wheel, thought for a while, and said, "I stayed up all night last night."

Cameron deliberately told Nina the truth so that he could win her sympathy. Sometimes it was not embarrassing for a man to do so.

"You didn't sleep all night?" Nina was stunned. Thinking of her good sleep, she suddenly felt a little sorry for Cameron, Cameron could read her mind, so he continued, "I arrived at the airport at 4 AM." Nina opened her mouth wide but couldn't speak.

"You are too excited," Nina closed her eyes and muttered.

Something must have gone wrong with Cameron's brain.

Why did he get to the airport before dawn?

Cameron replied, "I'm afraid that you will go back on your word."

Nina sneered, pursed her lips, and fell silent.

She did think so on the way here. She had even wanted to escape.

After the silence, Nina looked out the window and said calmly, "It's up to you. After all, you know how your family will respond."

Cameron's family disagreed with them being together all the time, not to mention that Cameron was getting married to Nina. She didn't even dare to think about how furious his parents would be.

On the contrary, Nina's family would be totally in favor of their marriage. After all, the Dauster family was very powerful, so to some extent, Nina was marrying into the purple.

Even in the future, Nina's family might ask for money from Cameron in every possible way. Nina felt upset when she thought about it. She would try her best to stop that.

"I will never backtrack," Cameron said in a low and firm voice. Hearing this, Nina pursed her lips.

Cameron continued, "I have never regretted every decision I made about you, and never will I in the future."

Tears began to well up in Nina's eyes. She was moved and didn't know what to say. She leaned against the car window in silence and didn't dare to look back, for fear that Cameron would see her red eyes and that she would cry.

Why was Cameron so nice to her? Why was he so affectionate towards her? Cameron should have a better option.

The car entered the expressway. While stopping at the red light, Cameron held Nina's hand and said in a soft voice, "I need to go home first. I should wash up and change clothes."

"Okay." Nina was fine with that.

Cameron stayed up all night, so he needed to wash up. After all, they were getting married, so he should take it seriously.

The car passed Cameron's apartment where Nina had been before and stopped in front of an elegant and quiet villa by the sea.

After getting out of the car, Nina took a look at the surrounding environment. She looked up at the magnificent villa, raised her eyebrows, and asked, "You live here now?"

"Yes." Cameron replied, "This is my property." Nina glanced at Cameron meaningfully.

Now that he had such a villa, he shouldn't be as poor as he said.

Cameron pretended not to know what Nina was thinking, but walked over, held her hand, and entered the villa.

Cameron didn't want to tell her the story of Camcien Lifetech and Tymers Entertainment for the time being. It was a happy day today. If Nina was annoyed, it would be a wet blanket on their wedding day.

Therefore, Cameron decided to talk about it with Nina another day.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 596 You Are My Princess!

After entering the villa, Cameron went upstairs to the bathroom. Nina began to look around the villa. After that, she took out her vanity mirror from her handbag and made up for herself.

An actress always attached great importance to her makeup.

After washing up, Cameron changed into the white shirt as Nina ordered and went downstairs. He chose the most concise one and matched it with tailored black trousers. The moment he slowly walked down the stairs, Nina felt he was just a Prince Charming.

Nina was fascinated by Cameron the first time she saw him. When he walked past her in the white school uniform, her heart was beating quite fast.

Later, covering her chest, Nina turned her head and whispered to Emelia that she wanted to chase Cameron. Emelia was so shocked that the milk tea fell on the floor with a crash.

Many years passed. Nina's affection for Cameron didn't fade at all.

To hide her nerves, Nina quickly looked away.

Cameron walked over, wrapped Nina in his arms, and said softly, "We can live here in the future. What do you think?"

"No." Nina refused without thinking. "If I live here, the paparazzi will follow me here, and then our relationship will be exposed." "It will also disturb you." Nina was more worried about this.

"It doesn't matter. You are my wife." Cameron was overwhelmed by the joy that they were going to get the marriage licenses.

Nina felt very uncomfortable about Cameron's words, so she immediately glared at him and protested, "We haven't got..." Before Nina could finish her words, Cameron leaned over and kissed her lips fiercely, so Nina could not speak.

Nina was held in his arms and couldn't break free. He held her so hard that he almost rubbed her into his body, which was the way he showed his desire and longing for her.

After the kiss, Nina's makeup was ruined and her clothes were wrinkled.

Nina complained angrily, "You wrinkled my shirt!"

Nina was going to be photographed in it. As a woman who always paid attention to how she looked, Nina couldn't bear to see her shirt wrinkled.

Cameron put his arm around her waist and said, "Go upstairs to the dressing room. I'll help you iron it." Nina angrily shook off his hand and rushed upstairs.

Cameron took a deep breath to calm down and quickly followed Nina upstairs.

Cameron felt it was so torturous. He really wanted to leave Nina in the bedroom if it weren't for the fact that they were going to the courthouse.

In the dressing room, Nina took off her shirt and began to iron it. Her figure was slender and enchanting. When Cameron stepped in and saw this, he got horny at once.

“I’ll wait for you outside.” In the end, Cameron turned around and fled.

“You deserve it.” Nina knew what was going on in his mind. If Cameron hadn’t held her and kissed her, he wouldn’t have suffered from that.

Nina snorted while ironing her clothes. She was very confident about her charm, so she was very satisfied with Cameron’s response.

After ironing the shirt, Nina put it on and went downstairs slowly.

Just as Nina was about to ask Cameron to go, he walked toward her with a delicate box in his hand. “Here’s the ring.
They’re all for you.”

“All?” Nina glanced at Cameron in confusion and wondered what he meant. Did he mean that there were many rings in the box?

Nina took the box over and opened it. She was stunned that more than a dozen diamond rings were neatly placed inside.

The diamond rings shone so brightly that she even couldn’t open her eyes.

Cameron was probably the first man in the world who propose with so many rings.
Nina was lost for words.

Taking a deep breath, Nina warned herself not to be tempted by these gorgeous diamond rings. She raised her eyebrows and asked, “You have even borrowed money from me. You shouldn’t be so rich.”

“That was just an excuse to approach you.” Cameron answered and then asked her seriously, “Do you like them? Pick one and wear it.”

“No.” With a pop, Nina closed the box and gave it back to Cameron.

Cameron was heartbroken and asked, “Why?”

Nina shrugged and said, "They're too expensive."

As one of the most popular stars, Nina could tell some of the rings were global limited editions at first sight.

Her instincts told her that these rings were priceless, so she didn't dare to receive them.

If Nina was asked to pay for these rings in the future, she would spend the rest of her life doing that.

Cameron put the box back into Nina's hands. "We are about to get the marriage licenses, so all I have is yours now."

Cameron even ignored the property notarization, so he didn't care about how much these rings cost.

Hearing this, Nina said, "By the way, should we do a property notarization first?"

Nina was sure that Cameron was related to Camcien Lifetech. She had read on the Internet that Camcien Lifetech was a big company, so she felt that they'd better do a notarization for the sake of Cameron.

What was more, Nina got married to Cameron for love rather than money. Thus, she would feel less uneasy after doing the property notarization.

"No." Cameron refused without thinking, and then deliberately asked, "Are you worried that I will take your property?" Nina was amused by his red herrings. She smiled and said, "It's up to you. I'm not the one who may burn his fingers." "I'm not doing it."

Cameron was relieved as Nina didn't insist that they should do a prenup.

Cameron reopened the box, put his arm around Nina's waist, and said, "Even if you don't want them all, you should at least choose one as the wedding ring."

Nina nodded and thought what Cameron said made sense. Now that they were about to get married, she could accept a wedding ring.

Nina raised her hand and decided to pick out the ring whose diamond was smaller than the others. However, Cameron had chosen one from the box and said, "What about this one? I think it looks good and fits you."

Words failed Nina.

Cameron must've done it on purpose.

The ring he selected didn't have the largest diamond but it has a rare pink diamond. Therefore, it must be the most expensive one.

That pink diamond was flawless, gorgeous, and elegant.

Just when Nina was stunned, Cameron quickly put the ring on her left ring finger, so fast that Nina didn't have time to refuse.

It was said that each pink diamond belonged to a princess, and Nina was Cameron's princess.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 597 The Marriage Licenses

Nina looked down at the pink diamond ring on her fair finger, and her eyes got a little moist.

Cameron's care and affection for her did move Nina.

Nina couldn't refuse. However, looking at the dazzling diamond ring, she was quite upset, "But I can only wear it for a while."

Nina would soon be flying back to the crew, so she couldn't wear such an expensive ring. Even if she didn't need to work, this ring was too heavy to wear, so she would have to put it away in the future.

Nina could also wear it on some formal occasions. Now that they were going to get their marriage licenses today, Nina didn't take it off for the time being.

"It doesn't matter." Cameron hugged Nina in his arms and said coaxingly, "You can take it off when you go back."

Cameron knew that this ring was too heavy to wear. It didn't matter whether she wore it or not. What mattered was that he wanted to give her the best in the world.

“Why didn’t you wear one?” Nina looked at Cameron’s slender ring finger and protested dissatisfiedly, “Cameron, do you want to continue pretending to be single?”

Cameron said with resignation, “I’m waiting for you to buy one for me. And then I will wear it every day.” If so, those who coveted Cameron would give up when seeing the ring.

Nina rolled her eyes. “You borrowed one million from me. Why don’t you buy a ring for yourself?”

Cameron chuckled in a low voice, “No, a man should wear the ring her wife buys for him.”

Nina gave up, so she had to grit her teeth and nod. “Okay, then just wait. I’ll buy one for you.”

Cameron was asking Nina for a ring in disguise. What a shameless man!

Although Nina looked annoyed, she got into the car, took out her mobile phone, and sent a few messages to Jean.

Jean Hilgard was in total charge of Lorlene Jewelry now, so Nina could ask Jean to design a ring for Cameron.

Even if Nina had endorsed for Lorlene Jewelry recently, she still wanted to let Jean design a new ring specially for Cameron. Considering that Cameron gave her such an expensive diamond ring, Nina wanted to give him a custom ring in return.

Nina decided to hide it from Cameron for the time being, so she texted Jean rather than call her. Jean was very curious, so she quickly replied.

“Why do you want a ring for men? Does Cameron come back?” Jean was not in Riverside City now, so she didn’t know about Cameron’s return, but she instinctively guessed that the man Nina gave the ring to was Cameron.

They all knew how much Nina loved Cameron.

After reading Jean’s reply, Nina was lost for words and wondered why Jean got it at once.

Thinking of this, Nina replied, "Apart from Cameron. I have many other choices!"

Jean asked, "Come on. Don't tell me it is Douglas. You have just eaten one meal with him. You don't have to marry him, right?"

Nina's friends were all clever, so Nina said, "Don't ask me anything. You just need to design the ring."

Jean replied with a smiling emoji and said, "I will design it with all my heart, but you should tell me what this man is like, such as his appearance, temperament, personality, and character, so that I can make the best for him."

"He is good-looking, wise, elegant, and charming," Nina replied without hesitation. After sending these words, she realized that Jean could tell it was Cameron at a glance. After all, Nina had shown Cameron's photo to them before.

"Got it," Jean replied with a tittering emoji. She was convinced that the man was Cameron.

Nina thought for a while and added, "I will say something in our chat group later."

Nina had a chat group with Emelia, Jean, and Maisie who was far away in Grafstin. They often chatted in the group when they were free. After getting the marriage licenses, Nina decided to send the picture to the group to tell them that she was married.

Although, as a female star, Nina should keep her marriage a secret, Emelia, Jean, and Maisie were her best friends. Nina believed that they would keep this secret.

While Nina was chatting with Jean, Cameron was concentrating on driving.

Cameron had no intention of peeping at what Nina was talking about. When he stopped at the red light, he caught a glimpse of Nina's phone screen and saw the word "ring".

A smile played on his lips. What a dishonest woman!

Nina seemingly was reluctant to buy Cameron a ring, but she put it into action.

The car quickly drove to the courthouse. After parking the car, Cameron and Nina walked in from the back passage.

Because Lucien had already arranged everything in advance, Cameron and Nina quickly got their marriage licenses.

However, before Nina could take a look at them, Cameron took them from her.

“Hey, I haven’t seen what they look like inside,” Nina protested.

She looked cute and funny, so the staff member who was responsible for processing was amused.

When the staff member knew that Nina, one of the most popular actresses, was to get married, she was shocked and imagined quite a lot.

An actress’s husband was always stereotyped as an actor, or a wealthy but old and greasy businessman.

To the staff member’s surprise, Nina would marry such a handsome and elegant young man. Although the man was not well-known, he looked as distinguished as an elite.

Besides, Nina and this man were in a sweet relationship. What a perfect couple!

The staff member could feel the strong love in the eyes of the man when he looked at Nina. As for Nina, although she looked more rational, she was very dependent on the man.

When Nina failed to remove the pen cap, she handed it to the man subconsciously.

The staff member observed that they must have dated each other for a long time.

However, she knew few rumors about Nina these years. Who was this man?

The staff member was told to keep it confidential and couldn’t inquire anymore. Thus, however curious she was, she quietly finished the processing and blessed Nina and Cameron in her heart.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 598 Blessings from Nina’s Friends

Cameron quickly put the two red marriage licenses into his pocket. He took Nina's hand and said, "You don't need to read them. They are just two papers."

Nina glared at Cameron angrily and thought what he said was bullshit. Those were marriage licenses! Cameron was afraid that Nina would tear them apart. But the marriage licenses remained legal even if they were torn apart.

Cameron ignored Nina's protest. After thanking the staff member, Cameron held Nina's hand and decided to leave. Nina pulled out her hand angrily and walked away first.

Cameron followed Nina with resignation, which amused the staff member again.

It was the first time she saw a couple argue with each other here.

After getting to the parking lot, Nina got into the car and reached out to Cameron. "Give me your cell phone." Cameron raised his eyebrows, knowing what Nina was going to do.

Cameron obediently handed it over and then explained, "I only took one photo."

"I don't buy it," Nina replied as she skimmed through the photos on his phone.

"I'm telling the truth." Cameron's tone was very sincere. "I was angered that you ate with Douglas. Otherwise, I wouldn't have threatened you with it."

Cameron wasn't willing to threaten Nina at all. Instead, he just wanted to dote on and take care of her.

Nevertheless, Nina kept staying away from Cameron and even ate with Douglas. Hence, Cameron had no choice but to force Nina to marry him, and he would never do that anymore.

"Do you mean it's my fault?" Nina snorted and quickly finished flipping through all the photos. She didn't find any special photos.

When Cameron took his mobile phone, he held her hand, and said earnestly, "I really want to marry you, so I have no choice but to do that."

Nina rolled her eyes. "You'd better think about how to tell your parents about it."

Nina was legally individual after she bought her own apartment. And so was Cameron when he studied abroad. Therefore, they could get married without their parents' permission.

They couldn't always hide it from Cameron's family, but Nina was afraid that Cameron would be kicked out of the Dauster family.

"Let's talk about it when you're free." Cameron explained, "You are busy in the crew now. Given your body condition, you can't suffer from anything now."

Nina pursed her lips, glanced at him, and said with a nod, "Then take me to the airport."

Nina thought what Cameron said made sense. She couldn't suffer anything now. She also needed some time to receive the fact that she got married to Cameron.

Although Nina looked calm, she was overjoyed inside. However, as a well-trained and experienced actress, she could remain calm,

If she was alone, she would be shaking all over.

Words failed Cameron.

He had intended to spend some time with Nina, but she was going back now.

Cameron had planned to start the car and leave. Nonetheless, hearing what Nina said, he stopped the car and turned to stare at her. "Did you do this on purpose?"

Nina said with a shrug. "When I asked for leave today, the director was annoyed. Before, I had already taken two days off when I was ill. I can't let the whole crew wait for me.

Cameron fixed his eyes on Nina and asked, "What time are you supposed to leave?"

After hearing Nina's reply, Cameron raised his hand and glanced at his watch, saying, "There's still time for you to have lunch with me."

Nina said, "I can't eat on the plane." Cameron glared at her. "Is this what you'll do to your stomach?"

Nina was lost for words. She was frightened by his fierce look. In order not to offend Cameron, she compromised. "Well, it's up to you."

"Then go back with me. I can cook for you," Cameron said as he started the car.

Nina was shocked. "Seriously? It's too late."

Nina thought, "He is making a fuss! Why not just stop somewhere for lunch?"

Cameron added, "I have meat and vegetables at home, so it won't take long to make some dishes." Cameron was good at cooking. He learned it so that he could take good care of Nina after they got married.

It was the first day they got their marriage licenses, so Cameron was determined to celebrate it by cooking.

Nina didn't know what to say but kept silent. Anyway, she needn't do it herself.

After they returned to Cameron's villa, Nina began to surf the net with her mobile phone on the sofa, while Cameron walked into the kitchen and started to cook.

Nina had a hard time taking the marriage licenses from Cameron. Nonetheless, after she took a few photos of them, Cameron took them away. Nina sent the photos to the chat group where Emelia, Maisie, and Jean were, and prepared herself for their stormy response.

Emelia and Maisie almost freaked out. Maisie sent a voice message, "Emelia, how are you? I am so flabbergasted that I feel like the baby in my belly is about to pop out."

Nina chuckled. She forgot that Emelia and Maisie were pregnant.

Emelia replied, "The bowl fell off my hand a minute ago."

Emelia was telling the truth, Emelia was eating some soup when seeing the photos. The next second, she was shocked and the bowl in her hand fell to the ground. It shattered all over the floor. Julian hurriedly cleaned the fragments up, for fear that Emelia would get hurt.

Emelia could feel that Julian was almost driven mad by what Nina did these days. He probably wanted Nina to quickly marry Cameron so that she wouldn't stimulate Emelia.

Jean returned calmly, "I guessed it when you asked me to design a ring for a man."

"Congratulations! You finally get what you want. I hope you'll be happy forever." Jean was the calmest.

Nina was amused by Jean's reply. As Jean said, Nina did get what she wanted.

"Congratulations to you and wish you have a lovely baby!"

"Congratulations to you and wish you have a lovely baby!"

Emelia's and Maisie's blessings were the same. Nina was amused again. These pregnant women did think alike.

"Thank you, but I won't consider having a baby before I am 30 years old," Nina said firmly. After all, few actresses chose to have a baby before they were 30 years old.

For her career and future life, Nina had made up her mind that she wouldn't have babies for the time being.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 599 Kind of Sweet

"Why did you two get married in a flash?" Emelia and the others asked Nina this question in the group chat.

Nina looked at the phone and fell into a trance for a while.

Was their marriage a flash one?

Judging from the time between their reunion and getting the certificate, it was indeed a flash marriage.

But judging from the time they had fallen in love with each other, it wasn't a flash marriage at all.

“What are you guys talking about?” Cameron came out of the kitchen. He walked over from behind the sofa and leaned closer to speak to her ear.

Nina put away her phone, “I was just telling Emelia and the others about our marriage.”

The corners of Cameron’s lips rose slightly. Although they can’t make it public now, she shared this with her best friends, which represented her affirmation of their relationship.

It was enough for him, he said affectionately against her fragrant cheek, “When you finish your work, we’ll invite them to dinner.” “Okay.” Nina didn’t refuse and it was still a long time before she was finished.

“Is lunch ready?” Nina tried to sit away, to distance herself from him.

He hugged her from behind and was so close to her, making her heart beat faster and her face hot.

“There is one more dish left. I just come out and check on you.” How could Cameron let her escape?

Across the back of the sofa, he kissed her gently.

If she wasn’t in a hurry, Cameron really didn’t want to let her go. It’s not that he didn’t hold any grudges in his heart. It was clear that on the happy day when the two of them got their certificates, she booked a plane ticket back to the crew without any hesitation.

Therefore, the kiss was turning ruthless and he almost want to devour her with desire.

“Are you a dog?” Nina, who was released later, complained while covering her stinging lips.

Cameron was not annoyed at all, he touched her red lips with his thumb and said, “You were making me angry.”

Then he went back to the kitchen to cook. Nina was so angry that she waved her fists a few times at his back.

The lunch is relatively light. He was considering Nina's fragile stomach while also satisfying her diet rule about restricting calories as a female star. The two ate face-to-face by the huge dining table. It seemed as if they were back to those old years.

But at that time, they didn't eat so politely, they were sticking together even when they were sitting, and they couldn't bear to be separated just for a moment.

As soon as Nina picked up the chopsticks, she saw Cameron patting his leg and asking her, "Would you like to sit over?" "Stop it," Nina said to him.

If she sits over, they won't finish this meal.

Those who knew Cameron would never have imagined that this man could hide such a wicked side under his gentle appearance,

Before Cameron could say anything else, Nina warned him again, "I'm telling you again, you'd better behave and eat your food, otherwise it's gonna be a mess. I'm in a hurry, and you're the only one who suffers."

Cameron had no choice but to give up, but his tone couldn't hide his grief, "Am I the first man to be left alone in an empty room on the first day of his marriage?"

Nina smiled smugly, "Well, you are the one who decided to marry a busy star like me."

Cameron wasn't annoyed at all, and said with a slight smile in his eyes, "It doesn't matter. Just remember to compensate me when you're done."

The compensation was staying in bed for three whole days.

Of course, he was only muttering to himself in his heart. If he said it, he was afraid that the woman opposite would schedule the work until the next year.

Nina glanced at him suspiciously, thinking how did he become an easy compromise?

She was a little unused to it.

Cameron put some vegetables on her plate and changed the topic, "Hurry up and eat. I'll take you to the airport later." Nina is very smart and this topic can't continue, otherwise, he will suffer in the end.

When lunch was almost over, the phone that Cameron put aside suddenly rang and Nina saw the name of the caller ID “Michelle Byrd” at a glance. She even admired her own f good eyesight.

She raised her eyebrows, pretending not to see and continuing to eat with her head down.

To be honest, she used to be quite wary of Michelle, but now... she didn't care about her and that Melanie Blanchard at all.

Cameron and his heart belong to her now, why would she care about other random people?

Cameron glanced at Nina, who didn't care, and he didn't know whether he should be happy or upset at the fact that she didn't make a fuss about this.

But he felt really disgusted by Michelle. He thought that was very clear about his rejection. He didn't know what she was insisting on.

So when he answered the phone, his tone was very displeased and alienated, “Miss Byrd, what's the matter?”

Cameron's sense of boundaries was absolutely great. When they didn't get the certificate before, he could still call her “Michelle”.

As soon as they got the certificate, he immediately called Miss Byrd.

Nina wanted to laugh when she heard it, she could imagine the black face of Michelle on the other end of the phone.

As Nina expected, Michelle's face was indeed darkened, and she was speechless for a while in shock.

After a long while, she murmured, “Miss Byrd?”

Her tone was filled with undisguised injuries and grievances, she couldn't understand why Cameron suddenly changed like this.

She learned from Colleen that Cameron had returned to Riverside City with them, so she guessed that he must have had a quarrel with Nina. She thought this was her best opportunity, and she had to seize it, so she quickly made a call.

But she didn't expect that Cameron would call her "Miss Byrd" indifferently when he answered it, which made her feel completely cold.

"What can I do for you?" Cameron asked impatiently when Michelle didn't speak.

In fact, he knew what she was doing. She was just looking for various excuses to ask him out, but he still deliberately asked about something official and made it clear that he pretended to be confused and didn't want to pay attention to her thoughts.

If it wasn't for the friendship between their parents, he would just hang up now.

.." Cameron was ruthless and it was hard for her to speak for a while. She has pride and self-respect as well. She has been hurt by him again and again.

"Sorry, I still have something important to do here, so I'll hang up first." Cameron lost the last bit of patience and hung up the phone.

And what he called the important thing was to accompany Nina to lunch. No, it should be to accompany his wife and lover to lunch.

His words pleased Nina very well and she couldn't help but laughed. Was it important to dine with her?

Well, she admitted it was kind of sweet.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 600 To Meet You

Cameron hung up the phone and looked at Nina's smiling eyes, he couldn't help but snorted softly and said, "I thought you were really that calm."

Nina was amused by his resentful tone. She didn't expect him to be so childish in these trivial matters, even to the point of being fussy.

Did he think she was as stingy as he was? Just because she had a meal with Douglas Cleveland, he asked her to get married with him.

Isn't she indifferent to Michelle because of the confidence he gave her? He didn't even come up with this meaning, which was really humiliating to himself as a straight-A student.

She took a bite and said teasingly, "I didn't expect this Miss Byrd to be so persistent."

Cameron replied gracefully, "Not as persistent as Douglas Cleveland, who has been abroad for several years and still misses you."

Nina was speechless.

However, how did he know that Douglas had chased after her before?

And how did he know that Douglas has been abroad for several years?

Thinking of this, she looked at him thoughtfully and said, "Why do you know so much about Douglas Cleveland?"

"Who knows himself well and knows the enemy well shall win. How can I not know my rival in love?" Cameron knew that Nina was testing him, so he calmly changed the subject.

Nina didn't get a real answer but she just gave up. He can do whatever he likes, anyway, for the rest of her life, whether he is poor or rich, they will be together.

What kind of career and how much wealth he has, she didn't need to care about it.

Was it possible to get a divorce only because he had nothing?

Or would she be so happy because he was so rich?

No, she knew very well that was not the reason.

If she really thought like this, she wouldn't have gotten with him without hesitation. Because she had to catch the flight, Cameron drove Nina straight to the airport after lunch.

After the car arrived at the airport, Nina got out of the car and ran away without looking back, because there were too many reporters and media at the airport, and she was afraid of being photographed by them.

Cameron watched her slender figure disappear and he could not hide the disappointment on his face.

He took the phone and sent her a message, "Can I visit you if I miss you? No one will know about that." She just left and he couldn't stop missing her and going crazy.

When Nina arrived at the airport lobby, she received a voice message from Cameron. She was speechless for a while, but the sadness in the man's tone was so pitiful. Then she thought about it and replied, "There will be a brand event two weeks later."

Sherlyn said before that she should stay on the crew to concentrate on filming and not make any trouble, so she was only assigned a small amount of work. Her next event was set for half a month later.

Although it was only a short day, they could meet.

The event was in the afternoon, she would fly in the morning, stay one night, and then return to the crew on the earliest flight the next day, so one day off would be enough.

"I'm going to meet you," Cameron replied to her almost without thinking.

Nina couldn't help laughing while holding the phone. He was so impatient.

"Okay." After replying to Cameron, Nina hurried to check-in.

After Nina disappeared at the security checkpoint, Michelle received a message from Nancy Baldwin.

"Michelle, my colleague saw Nina at the airport. Isn't she filming with the crew? When did she return to Riverside City?" Nancy sent a voice message along with a photo of Nina at the airport.

Nina was wearing a fat black T-shirt, ordinary jeans, a large fisherman hat, and fashionable sunglasses. It was the simplest outfit, but it was inexplicably dazzling in the crowd.

Nina was originally wearing a white shirt, but considering the tiring flight, she took a black T-shirt from Cameron's closet and put it on. She also liked a oversize style of dressing. Wearing a black T-shirt on her is not too outrageous.

She believed that she was wrapped tightly enough. The fisherman hat and sunglasses almost covered her whole face. She never thought that she would be photographed, so when she read the text message sent by Cameron, she didn't try to hide her smile.

Little did she know that her sweet smile was so such an eyesore in Michelle's eyes. Michelle recognized the black T-shirt Nina was wearing at a glance, which seemed to belong to Cameron.

The last time she had a hot pot with Colleen and Cameron, he wore this top and she was very impressed because she liked that brand as well.

But later, because Nina endorsed the brand, she never bought it again.

She noticed this shirt at the time because she was puzzled that Cameron say that he was a jobless person and how could he afford to buy clothes with such a big brand?

And she had another guess in her mind at the time, that Cameron was not actually a person who admired these big brands, and the only explanation was that he was supporting Nina's endorsement.

Did he love Nina so much?

To personally support her endorsement?

Looking at Nina's undisguised smile in the photo for a long while, Michelle sent back a message to Nancy, "Not even you reporters know her whereabouts, how would I know?"

“Well, that’s right,” Nancy replied to her, “It’s really strange, no one took pictures of her when she returned, and it looks like she came back this time by herself, her assistant and the driver were not together. And it wasn’t her agent who picked her up, she was acting so mysteriously, what for?”

It stands to reason that a star like Nina is always stirring up a crowd almost every time she travels. And it is necessary to bring an assistant. Almost all media reporters know her assistant Sylvie and basically seeing her was like seeing Nina.

But this time Nina was alone and Nancy felt extremely strange.

Michelle’s face was already very grim at this end. Although she didn’t want to admit it, Cameron’s impatience when she called him just now was enough to show that he should have been with Nina at the time.

But didn’t he break up with her?

Why are they together again?

If they hadn’t been together just now, it would be impossible for Nina to wear his clothes.

And Nina secretly went back behind everyone’s back, what did she do with him?

Michelle couldn’t figure it out. Depression and unwillingness in her heart made her have the urge to cry, why? Why did Nina always better than her?

Is it because she doesn’t have the glamorous and attractive energy of Nina?

Maybe it is because she was so broken down, she decided to take a risk, thinking of this, she sent a voice message to Nancy in a sobbing voice, “Nancy, I need to do one thing, can you help me?”