

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 611 Asked for it

Cameron and Colleen insisted on exposing the matter. Anxiously, Michelle's father turned to Randall for help. "Randall!" "We have been friends for so long. Please, don't let them do it. Save some face for us."

Randall shook his hand indifferently. "Your daughter didn't care about our reputation when she asked Dominic to make trouble in where Colleen and I work. So, I don't think there is anything wrong with Cameron's decision."

Michelle's father couldn't say anything. Randall then continued, "Michelle is your daughter. Her mistake is partially your fault. You failed to teach her well. Therefore, you should face the music."

His words had made his attitude clear. He approved Cameron's idea of exposing the matter.

The Dausters were determined. Perhaps because of that, or because of the consequences, Michelle's mother couldn't take it anymore, she let out a scream and passed out, her hand covering her chest.

The living room fell into chaos. In the end, Michelle's mother was taken away by the ambulance. Michelle went to the hospital with her father too.

Colleen stood in the living room, feeling empty. She couldn't believe what had happened this night. Meanwhile, Randall stayed beside taking care of her. He talked with her and brought her water once in a while.

Cameron went to the kitchen and prepared some simple dishes. After it was done, he called his parents to the dining room to finish the meal.

Colleen looked at the dishes. They were nice. Then she looked at his son. He was calm. She wanted to speak but failed to do so. She didn't know where to start.

Cameron understood his mother, so he started the conversation by saying, "I know you feel bad for having slapped me. But I don't mind it. So don't be sad. We shall treat it as if it never happened."

Colleen's eyes became red when she saw her son being so considerate. She sobbed, saying, "I am sorry."

She had never hit Cameron. He had been the best child since he was young. Compared to other parents, Colleen and Randall never needed to worry much about Cameron. They had always been proud of their son.

Cameron was very mature. He knew what was right and what was wrong. He didn't need his parents to teach him.

The slap must have been harsh for him, and it broke Colleen's heart too. She couldn't be more regretful. She was out of her mind. She felt humiliated by Dominic's accusation. That was probably the reason she lost control of herself and slapped Cameron.

"Since Cameron forgave you, everything is alright! Stop thinking about it," said Randall, coaxing his wife.

Cameron served food on Colleen's plate, showing his forgiveness with his action. Colleen tried the food in tears.

A short while after, Colleen said, "How about inviting Nina home for dinner? I'll cook, and apologize to her." Colleen wanted to show her acceptance of Nina through action.

After the series of shacks, everything became clear to Colleen. She should trust his son. He wouldn't choose the wrong person.

After all, he had never made the wrong choice ever since he was a child. They never needed to worry about him.

She should have believed in her son that the girl he chose was a good person.

Fortunately, it wasn't too late. She would repair her relationship with Nina and try her best to be a good mother-in-law.

“She is in the crew filming; she won’t be back in a short while. I’ll bring her back when the time comes.”

Then he put down his fork and look at his parents, saying seriously, “Thank you for accepting her, she will be a good wife, As well as a good daughter-in-law.”

Randall rolled his eyes and mocked, “Good wife? Good daughter-in-law? I remember she said she said she won’t see you again.”

Randall and Colleen were still thinking about the displeasing departure from Jamelaton. Cameron smiled proudly. “She loved me so dearly. She couldn’t bear living without me.”

He decided not to tell his parents that he and Nina had married for now. After all, they had just accepted Nina and they hadn’t recovered from the chaos.

Brando and Colleen were speechless. They couldn’t believe that their usually serious son would say something like this.

Cameron resumed eating; he didn’t say anything else.

But Randall and Colleen were impressed by Cameron’s smile when he mentioned Nina. They had never seen him smile so happily during his growing up.

Randall and Colleen looked at each other in relief. The atmosphere of the dining room became amicable. Cameron had never enjoyed a meal with them ever since they tried to match-make him and Michelle.

Although they hate Michelle, Randall, and Colleen went to the hospital to visit Michelle’s mother. After all, they had been friends for decades.

Meanwhile, Cameron’s lawyer exposed to video with a statement.

Entrusted by Mr. Dauster, this is a statement on the “hug” between Mr. Dauster and Miss Byrd:

1. Through personal verification with Mr. Dauster and diverse verifications, the above article is purely fabricated by Miss Byrd and her friends.
2. The false news had violated Mr. Dauster’s reputation.

3. To protect the legitimate rights and interests of Mr. Dauster, please delete or revoke the relevant information on the relevant websites. Mr. Dauster will pursue legal accountability for whoever refuses to do so.

4. Mr. Dauster is married. He is devoted to his wife.
Hereby we declare.

The statement, together with the video made everything clear. Cameron's contempt for Michelle was obvious in the video.

Everybody could see that Michelle threw herself at Cameron and Cameron pushed her away right after.

Cameron was innocent.

People thought it was a sweet story, but it turned out to be a disgusting one. So, they went to Michelle's Twitter to insult her. The comments were mean. But Michelle deserved it.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 612 She Is the Best

Michelle had attracted a lot of followers with her sweet look and wonderful painting. But now, they all turned against her. The more they loved her at that time, the more they hated her now.

They even found out about Michelle's parents. People threw eggs and splashed paint toward Michelle's studio. The Byrds couldn't stay in Jamelaton.

When people threw their anger at Michelle, Cameron was again on the trending list. His handsome face was attractive enough, but now, he had shown himself as a devoted person. People loved him even more. When someone found out that he was a top student, women were about to be crazy.

They couldn't believe that such a perfect man existed in the world.

His look was perfect. His temperament was unparalleled. He was a talent. And above all, he was devoted to his wife. He was simply perfect. He was one in a million.

“What type of woman would be worthy of him?”

“Gosh! Look at him. His body is perfect! Look at that triangle back, those long legs. He is better than those actors, idols, and whatever.”

“Oh my God, I am going to be crazy! I’m so envious of his wife. I’ll be more than happy if my boyfriend has one of his merits.” Difference from women’s admiration, comments from guys kind of smelt like jealousy.

“This kind of genius usually had a bad taste for women. Don’t expect too much, his wife is probably ugly.”

Nina, who was at Jamelaton, was speechless seeing this comment.

Ugly?

The word never existed in her dictionary.

Cameron, on the other side, let out a cold smile. Then he opened the page of the person who left the comment. He smiled even deeper when he found that person was Nina’s fan.

The guy addressed Nina as his goddess. Cameron couldn’t help but imagine what would happen once the guy found out that he had called Nina “ugly”.

Cameron called Nina after the video and the statement was released. At this time, naturally, Nina had known it online.

Cameron told Nina how he had exposed Michelle in front of their parents. Nina applauded upon hearing that. “Good job, Cameron!”

“Are you happy?” Cameron looked at her deeply through the phone.

“Sure! I like seeing bitches humiliated.” Nina was thrilled. She wished she was present when it happened.

As an actress, she had done many things like this over the years.

Nina liked punishing those who were pretentious and bitchy. Sylvie had even jokingly called her “the detector of bitches.” Cameron smiled, “I’m glad to hear that.”

He would be happy as long as she was.

Nina was moved by his affectionate gaze. She felt like drowning in it.

She couldn’t figure out how did Cameron become so flirty after a few years. He was cold in the past and she had to take the initiative all the time.

Now, just looking at him, she blushed.

Cameron then put on a serious look, saying, “My mother wanted me to bring you home for dinner. She wanted to apologize to you.”

Nina had just taken a sip of water, hearing this, she almost spat it out.

“What did you say?” she asked in great surprise.

Seeing Nina choked, Cameron was kind of helpless, and at the same time worried. He said, “My mother wanted to apologize to you. She had realized that you are a good girl.

She wanted to get along with you. She is no longer against us.”

Nina was stunned. She couldn’t speak one word. She had never imagined such a day to come.

She had never imagined that one day Colleen would invite her for dinner and apologize to her. She had never imagined that one day, she would be accepted.

It was unreal. It felt like a dream.

The biggest problem in her heart was that Colleen didn’t like her, and she didn’t want Cameron to be caught between her and Colleen, so she resisted Cameron’s approach again and again.

“Is it a little unreal for you?” Cameron immediately knew what Nina was thinking.

“Yes...” Nina choked up as soon as she answered. She quickly closed her eyes to prevent Cameron from looking at her red eyes.

It was hard to be accepted by Cameron’s parents. Nina didn’t shed tears easily, but she couldn’t stop crying at the moment.

Cameron was so distressed that he wished he could be by her side at the moment, holding her in his arms while she cried.

However, he couldn’t. He could only comfort her with words, “You are such a nice person, so how could they not like you? They’ve been blinded by people before. That’s all.”

Randall and Colleen knew Michelle earlier, and they were friends with her parents. That was why they liked Michelle so much. But now after knowing Michelle’s lies, they could finally treat Nina without prejudice.

Nina wiped the tears from the corners of her eyes and turned to Cameron. “Your mother doesn’t have to apologize to me, she didn’t do anything too far. And I understand that she was only caring about you.”

Colleen was mean when she gave Nina the check. But apart from that, she didn’t do anything to Nina. In Jamelaton, Colleen slapped Cameron, not Nina.

“She said she wanted to apologize to you. She had made up her mind. You just need to accept it.” Cameron knew Colleen well. He knew that once Colleen was determined to be good to someone, she would do it no matter what.

She wouldn’t feel okay without apologizing to Nina.

“I see. You got your stubbornness from your mother.” Nina jokingly said, erasing the serious atmosphere brought about by the topic. She was very smart, very sensible, and very understanding.

But she knew how to cover herself.

She looked carefree, yet she was more sensitive than many.

Cameron smiled too. He loved this girl to the moon.

He knew that she was the best.

“I haven’t informed them that we’re married. We’ll tell them when you are back.”

Cameron added.

“Couldn’t be better this way.” Nina was relieved. To be honest, although she was glad that Colleen accepted her, she was unprepared to face Colleen and Randall officially.

So, it’d be better not to tell them for now.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 613 The Best Wedding Gift

“I miss you.” Cameron suddenly said. Nina’s heartbeat raised.

She blushed and protested through the phone, “Cameron, what have you gone through abroad these years? You weren’t like this in the past.”

“How was I like in the past?” Cameron asked, lifting his eyebrows.

“You were cold, reticent,” Nina complained. “I was young to pester you. Now if someone treated me so coldly, I wouldn’t even look at him twice.”

Cameron smiled. He said in an affectionate tone, “Therefore, I corrected myself.”

Nina pursed her lips. Cameron continued, “I was active too in the past, didn’t you feel it?” Nina disagreed. “When? I’ve never felt it.”

“In the night,” Cameron murmured.

Nina was speechless.

He had become a shameless guy. He was no longer the shy boy.

Yet he was right.

He was indeed more than active about some sort of things.

Cameron took Nina's shyness as agreement. He then concluded, "I was active too in the past, only in a different way. But no matter what, my love for you has stayed unchanged."

Nina faked a cough. She felt unease upon hearing such an affectionate confession.

To be honest, she wasn't really used to the flirty Cameron now, She kind of missed the old, reticent top student Cameron.

Teasing him was fun.

Now she was the one being teased all the time.

"You are not used to it?" Cameron said, "It's okay. You will."

He acted cool in front of her because he knew she liked it. But now, he had made her his wife, he would spoil her, of course.

Nina didn't know what to say. So, she wanted to end the call. "I'm going to sleep. Let's stop here. Tomorrow, I have a tough scene to shoot. It's going to be exhausting."

"Good night." Cameron knew that she had a hard time making this show. So, he didn't want to keep her late.

However, Nina wasn't sleepy at all. She rolled around in bed thinking about the fact that she had been accepted by Colleen.

She wanted to call Emilia to tell her the good news, but then she thought that Emilia, as a pregnant woman, might have slept, so she still didn't call to bother.

The next second, however, Emilia's called. She asked worriedly, "What the hell is going on with Cameron and Michelle? Now everybody knew about it."

Emelia knew that Colleen wanted Michelle to be her daughter-in-law and that Michelle's parents had a deep friendship with Colleen and Randall, so she was surprised to see the news on the Internet.

Now, Colleen and Randall were unlikely to be friends with Michelle's parents. Nina then told Emelia about what happened tonight, and that Colleen had accepted her.

Nina thought Emilia should be happy for her, but Emelia fell silent on the other end of the phone. After a while, she suddenly cried.

Nina was startled. She asked nervously, "What's wrong? Why did you suddenly cry? This is good news for me, aren't you happy?"

"I'm so happy. This is joyful tears!" Emelia cried even louder when she finished.

No one knew better how painful it was not being recognized. Hearing that Colleen had accepted Nina, Emelia was so happy.

Perhaps being pregnant had made her more sensitive. She lost control of her tears.

Nina was relieved to hear that.

"It's so nice..." Emelia choked up on the phone, "You can finally be with Cameron."

Although she knew that Nina and Cameron had married, Emelia also knew that there was still something in Nina's heart and she wouldn't be truly happy.

Emelia knew that Nina was not a selfish person. She wouldn't base her happiness on Colleen's suffering.

If Nina had been selfish, she would have eloped with Cameron.

Nina also sighed, "Yeah, finally we can be together."

Thinking of this, Nina suddenly had a lyric in her mind, "If you can't see each other again with red eyes, how about blushed face?"

Fortunately, after that year with Cameron, she could still face him with a blushed face.

He was still the person she loved after all these years.

After ending the call with Nina, Emelia threw herself into Julian's arms and cried, tears wetting Julian's pajamas.

Julian sighed silently many times while putting his arms around his wife and comforting her.

He thought that since Nina and Cameron had married, nothing should affect Emelia's mood much. Yet only a few days after, she was moved to tears again.

He felt like he must owe Cameron and Nina in his last life.

Emelia said to Julian, sobbing, "They are finally together, otherwise, I am losing hope for love."

Emelia was just expressing her relief. She didn't mean anything else. Yet to Julian, there was something.

Julian pursed his lips, thinking, "Don't you believe in our love?"

Yet he didn't ask in the end.

He once disappointed her deeply in love.

To change this heavy topic, he thought for a moment and said, "Since they are married, shouldn't we think about what to send them as a wedding gift?"

Emelia lifted her eyes from Julian's arms and smiled, "I have already prepared the gift." Julian was confused, "When?" He was with her almost twenty-four hours a day now, why hadn't he seen what she had prepared?

Emelia said, "It is the copyright of this campus novel I wrote. I will give it to them for free, they'll decide whether to adopt it into a movie."

Julian was speechless.

Now he understood why Emelia refused to sell the copyright to him or Viggo. It turned out she wanted to give it to Nina for free.

Emelia explained, "I said long ago that this novel is for Nina. I didn't make it clear because the thing between her and Cameron wasn't settled. After all, if the thing didn't work out between the two, Nina's future husband wouldn't be happy if Nina got the copyright. But now since she and Cameron are together, it's going to be the best wedding gift."

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 614 Deep Relationship

What else could Julian say?

He agreed with whatever Emelia said now. All he wanted was her happiness.

Just as everything was going well with Nina, Andrew Sonfield was having a video call with Jillian Harrison.

Jillian's face was full of amazement. "What? You've met Cameron, the guy on the trending list?"

Andrew said while thinking, "Yes, I saw him talking with Sylvie, Nina's assistant. And it felt weird."

He was there to visit Nina. He saw Cameron and Sylvie just when he walked out of the elevator. Cameron was unfriendly to him.

Jillian asked in confusion, "Do you mean his wife is Sylvie?"

Andrew was speechless. After a while, he said, "If so, why would they keep it secretly?"

Andrew suspected that Cameron's wife was Nina. That explained why Cameron was hostile toward him.

And Nina was famous, that was why they kept their relationship secret.

"Nina?" Jillian exclaimed, then she said indignantly, "She doesn't worth it!"

As a has-been, Jillian liked checking the trending topics. She naturally saw the news about Cameron and Michelle, as well as how perfect Cameron was.

Although Cameron's occupation has not been announced, his aura as a genius and as a devoted husband was great.

Upon hearing that Nina might be Mrs. Dauster, Jillian instinctively became jealous.

She thought that Nina was brainless and she didn't worth such a man.

Thinking of Cameron's affectionate confession to his wife in the statement, Jillian became more jealous.

She used to laugh at Nina's brainless. But now, she had started to imitate Nina's style.

But however hard she tried, it was fake. That was why it didn't work.

Andrew was slightly impatient. "Whether she deserves it or not, we now have to analyze what her relationship with Cameron is."

"What's that expression?" Jillian sensed Andrew's impatience and instantly got angry.

"Have you fallen in love with Nina? Are you throwing tempers at me now?"

"Andrew, I warn you, I am your girlfriend now." Jillian said ferociously, "Without my connections, you won't be in this crew." Her words got Andrew. He pursed his lips and became silent.

Indeed, without Jillian, he wouldn't get the chance of being in this drama. Few in this industry could become famous just by one show. Most of the actors, including him, remained unknown even after they were thirty.

He worked together with Jillian the year before last year and after that, they became couples.

Jillian was famous at that time, so she demanded their relationship be secret. And because Jillian was more successful, Andrew didn't have a voice in this relationship.

Jillian had always blamed Nina for her failure. She believed that Nina had stolen her resources and that as long as Nina's career ended, she would be successful again.

So, she managed to get Andrew this chance to work with Nina. She asked him to approach her, and seduce her. When the time comes, she would expose her relationship with Andrew and accuse Nina of being a slut.

No one in this film industry could survive once they were accused of being a slut. That was why Andrew had tried his best to please Nina. However, Nina didn't buy it, which was frustrating.

Jillian had described Nina as a shameless person in front of Andrew, saying that it should be easy to seduce her. However, things went the opposite way. Nina avoided him.

Perhaps realizing that she had been too mean, Jillian calmed down a little, and said with an easier tone, "Why did you say that there is something between Nina and Cameron? What makes you think so?"

"I saw Cameron and Sylvie that day. But they didn't act like a couple." Andrew said slowly.

"And, the most important thing was that Nina took a day off. As far as I am concerned, she didn't have any activities that day. So, what did she do? And she returned secretly the same day. I think she went back to Jamelaton for something that couldn't be known."

"She went to the courthouse and get married?" Jillian guessed, "with Cameron?"

But soon she shook her head. "No way. She is famous, she can't possibly get married now."

Jillian didn't believe Nina would do so. Once an actress was married, or even just having a boyfriend, the audience might feel weird seeing her being a couple with someone in the drama.

And once this happened, they would dislike the drama. That would be devastating.

It was for this exact reason, that Jillian refused to make her relationship with Andrew public. Andrew agreed with her. It was the same for an actor.

So, they couldn't believe that Nina would get married at peak of her career.

Besides that, although Cameron seemed to be a genius, no one knew what he did. Why would Nina, a most famous actress, marry someone like him?

Because he was handsome?

For Jillian, physical appearance was important, but money was more important when it came to marriage. She never talked about getting married to Andrew, because she didn't think Andrew was worth it.

She would never understand that for some people, love was the only thing that mattered in marriage.

Nina had married Cameron for love.

"It was just my suspicion. You might better investigate their relationship if you are to defeat Nina." Seeing that Jillian wasn't convinced, Andrew decided to shut up.

He didn't have much evidence. But as a man, his instinct told him that there must be something between Nina and Cameron.

"If there is nothing else, I'll go. It is going to be a tough day tomorrow. I need to sleep." Andrew explained and then hung up the phone. His wish of getting rid of Jillian became stronger. I I

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 615 Fight

Michelle's mother was alright. She passed out only because she had a stroke, caused by the anger.

After the doctor said that there was nothing serious, Michelle's parents left the hospital in a hurry. Since Cameron had exposed Michelle online, they couldn't face anyone.

Returning home, they resigned overnight. They planned to take Michelle to a place where no one knew them.

They wouldn't let Michelle decide this time. They had to take her away. They regret trusting Michelle too much in the past.

Michelle refused the proposal. Every girl liked living in big cities like Jamelaton. However, her parents forced her to close the studio and leave with them at the soonest time possible.

Michelle didn't sleep that night. She still couldn't believe that Cameron was married. Did Nina come back to Jamelaton in a hurry to marry Cameron? Michelle couldn't let go. But there was nothing she could do.

She was a laughingstock now. Everybody despised her. She lost Colleen's favor. She was notorious now. She would never have anything to do with the Dausters. Thinking of this, she buried herself under the blanket and cried.

The next day, she went to the studio to pack her stuff, covering her swollen eyes with sunglasses.

Outside the studio was a mess. Someone wrote cursing words on the window. Seeing this, she couldn't help but tremble.

A young girl in fancy clothes rushed over and slapped her face, saying, "Fucking bitch! How dare you seduce Cameron?"

Michelle was caught off guard. Her glasses fell and her exhausted face was now exposed. Yet she calmed down shortly after.

She repressed her anger and looked at the girl in fury, asking, "Who are you to hit me? Are you Cameron's wife?" Michelle provoked the girl on purpose, she was sure that Cameron's wife was Nina.

From the girl's tone when she mentioned Cameron, Michelle knew that she must admire Cameron. So, she provoked her, even just to revenge for the slap she had taken.

As expected, the girl's face turned pale. "I don't need to be Cameron's wife to hit you, slut!"

Michelle sneered. "Since you are not. Then you have no right to hit me." After that, she grabbed the girl by the collar and slapped her face violently.

The girl was stunned. She never expected Michelle to fight back. She covered her face, paused for a moment, and rushed to Michelle again,

Michelle was angry enough to see her studio ruined. She took it all out on the girl.

She had already become notorious. She didn't care about it being worse. And the girl started it in the first place, she wouldn't let her go. So, they fought in front of the studio.

Lucien came from afar. He separated the girls and shouted, "Stop!"

Lucien got a call from Melanie Blanchard this morning. She said she was going to hit Michelle. Lucien tried to stop her but failed.

So, she rushed over anxiously.

Michelle and Melanie all looked like a mess now. Their hairs were shattered. Michelle lost one high heel.

Michelle didn't expect to see Lucien here. Lucien was currently famous among the social circle in Jamelaton. Many girls wanted to marry him.

He was said to have been raised from low. His parents were just average people, and he had built Camcien Lifetech from scratch. So, his parents wouldn't be hard to deal with. Apart from that, he was a fun person. He knew how to please girls.

But Michelle didn't care about him. All she wanted was Cameron.

Michelle was stunned at the moment because she suddenly realized that since Lucien knew the girl, and this girl knew Cameron, Lucien must have known Cameron as well.

She thought of Camcien Lifetech, which was related to Lucien, and a guess popped into her mind. She murmured to Lucien, "What is your relationship with Cameron?"

Before Lucien said anything, Melanie said with a disdainful face, "You don't even know this?" "Camcien Lifetech was co-founded by Cameron and Lucien. They were classmates, friends, and partners in work." Lucien failed to stop her. Melanie said everything.

Lucien glared at Melanie but didn't say anything. Anyway, Cameron was already planning to disclose his relationship with Camcien Lifetech, it was just a matter of time.

Cameron felt that since he and Nina were already rightful, he should stand up and show his power so as to better protect Nina,

Michelle was stunned, she felt complicated for a while.

She had believed Colleen's words and thought that Cameron was unemployed for the time being. She had no idea that he was actually one of the founders of the famous Camcien Lifetech.

Michelle was jealous and remorseful. What a proud and excellent man she had lost! If she married Cameron, she would be the wife of the boss of Camcien Lifetech.

But now, it all belonged to Nina. Michelle regretted being so imprudent. She should have approached Cameron carefully and slowly.

Michelle stood there silently. Lucien saw through what was going on in her mind, yet he didn't bother to pay attention to her.

Instead, he turned to Melanie and shouted, "What are you still doing here? To be laughing at?"

Out of respect for his mentor, Lucien had always been polite to Melanie, but he couldn't stand it today when Melanie came to fight. Therefore, he yelled.

Startled by Lucien's fierce expression, Melanie hurried to his car.

"Wait a minute." Michelle suddenly called out to her.

Melanie paused in confusion and then looked back. Lucien looked at Michelle with a slight frown of warning.

His intuition told him that Michelle was plotting something again.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 616 Nina Is the Only One

Lucien hurried to interrupt her, "Michelle, before you speak, you'd better think about your situation." Michelle sneered and said, "You're right. My situation couldn't be worse. I have no fear now."

Michelle thought that even if she were to leave Jamelaton, even if she were to quit the fight, she wouldn't let Nina and Cameron live happily. She would tell Melanie who the so-called Mrs. Dauster was, so that Melanie could go to Nina to continue the fight.

She could tell from Melanie's slap just now that Melanie must be tricky to handle. She couldn't wait to see Nina being hit.

However, little did she know that Nina was good at martial art. She was sent to a martial school by her parents when they didn't want to care about her. And since then, Nina had always been practicing. She was in the kickboxing club at school.

If Melanie was to fight with Nina, she better asked for God's blessing beforehand.

Michelle looked at Melanie and said, "I know who Mrs. Dauster is.

Lucien's face turned grim slightly. He didn't expect Michelle to be so vicious. She planned to stir up dissension before leaving. Melanie immediately asked curiously, "Who?"

"A famous actress surnamed Sanchez." Michelle finished speaking before Lucien could stop her. Then she gracefully walked into her studio with a triumphant smile.

Melanie immediately guessed, "Nina Sanchez?"

Having been living abroad, Melanie knew little about the film and TV industry here, yet having stayed at Jamelaton for just a short while, Nina, the actress, has been deeply rooted in her mind. Nina was too famous.

Also, many of the staff of Camcien Lifetech were fans of Nina, both male and female. Some even had Nina's posters or photos on their desks. Melanie knew about Nina even through them.

"Don't listen to her, she's crazy," Lucien said as he grabbed Melanie's collar and tucked her into the car.

Melanie did not intend to give up. She searched on her phone and was finally sure about the so-called Mrs. Dauster. "It must be Nina Sanchez!"

Nina was the only Sanchez among the popular actresses now. Lucien didn't know what to say. Melanie suddenly exclaimed, "I see!"

"That new star studio at the upstairs of Camcien Lifetech belongs to Nina, right?" Melanie gasped. She pointed to a picture of Sherlyn standing side by side with Nina on her phone and said, "I recognize her. She is Nina's agent. She came often."

Sherlyn came over a lot lately to supervise the construction. Sometimes they met in the elevator. Melanie was wondering why would there be a star studio upstairs. Now she knew that Cameron had done it for Nina, and also for himself.

It would be much easier for them to meet. And it also reduced the risks of being caught by reporters.

Lucien didn't expect Melanie to think of Nina's studio upstairs, now, he couldn't hide anything for Cameron anymore. So he just kept silent and focused on driving.

His silence confirmed Melanie's guess. Melanie was about to cry. She was so sad when she knew that Cameron had taken fancy to someone else.

But she believed that as long as she held on, Cameron would see her one day. However, Cameron didn't even show up at Camcien Lifetech these days.

And all of a sudden, she heard on the news that Cameron had gotten married. She was almost crazy.

She called Lucien in the middle of the night, wanting to know from him who the so-called Mrs. Dauster was. Lucien said he didn't know.

"Why? Why?" Melanie was about to cry.

Lucien said kind of helplessly, "Cameron and Nina had been in love since they were in school. It's no surprise that they got married now."

However, Melanie refused to listen. After a short while of silence, she said, "I am going to be an actress."

"What?" Lucien was shocked. He almost lost control of the steering wheel. Melanie was such a trouble-maker. He regretted having invited her back to from abroad.

Melanie said seriously, syllable by syllable, "I am going to be an actress and compete with Nina!"

Melanie was confident in saying so. She was good at singing and dancing. As the youngest child of the family, she was never asked to be successful in academics. She was pretty good at art.

Her family was engaged in academics, she didn't think about being an actress. Yet today, stimulated by Nina, she suddenly had the wish.

Lucien controlled himself from cursing.

He took a deep breath and parked the car on the side of the road. He looked at Melanie solemnly and said, "If you don't stop making fuss everywhere, I won't keep you Jamelaton. I am afraid you'll have to go back to your parents. I can't take care of you, nor do I want to anymore."

Melanie was pissed off. "Do whatever you like, I'll go find the company myself!"

After that, she slammed the door and got out of the car, leaving without looking back.

Lucien was so angry that his vision went black. He called Cameron helplessly, telling him about what happened between Melanie and Michelle, and told him that Melanie wanted to be an actress.

Cameron replied indifferently, "Again, you invited her here, you'll handle it yourself."

Lucien was speechless. Indeed, he asked for it.

He grabbed his hair, begging Cameron for help, "She said she is going to be an actress. What am I going to do with her?" Cameron said, calmly still, "Why would I bother?"

Lucien said, "Aren't you in control of Tymers Entertainment? Can you ask Viggo to take her?"

"No," Cameron said curtly. "How am I going to face Nina if I did so? How would she think of me if she knew that I was helping some other actress?"

"Besides, I founded Tymers for Nina. How could it serve another woman?"

Lucian shrugged. "But there are other actresses in Tymers."

"Viggo signed them, purely out of commercial concerns. It has nothing to do with me."

"In Tymers, I care only about Nina." Cameron started again, "Don't mess with Tymers or get me into trouble, or I won't forgive you."

He had gone through great hardship to be with Nina, He wouldn't allow anything or anyone to affect their relationship.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 617 Given Away

Cameron's attitude was clear. Lucien had to give up the idea of getting Melanie into Tymers Entertainment.

Before hanging up the phone, Cameron reminded Lucien, "I know you are very respectful to our teacher, but Melanie has nothing to do with us, neither me nor you. We aren't obliged to take care of her all the time."

"She's an adult. She should be responsible for what she does. If she wants to be an actress, let her be. Whether she'll become successful or not relies on herself."

Cameron sneered after saying this. His laughter was full of contempt and disgust. It was obvious that he didn't think Melanie was comparable to Nina.

Being an actress was a tough job. Few would make it.

Melanie had never experienced the hardships of living in the world. She was not for the film and TV industry.

Lucien replied, "I get what you mean. I'll call our teacher and ask him to decide where shall Melanie go." "Okay." Cameron ended the call.

Cameron knew Lucien very well. He knew that Lucien was very serious. Lucien's family wasn't rich. Their teacher had helped him a lot when they were abroad. That was why Lucien took care of Melanie so carefully.

However, Cameron thought that since Lucien didn't have any feelings for Melanie, he should stop.

Cameron had asked Lucien if he liked Melanie, Lucien was startled by the question and almost fell off the couch. He said that he had no interest in Melanie. He took care of her just to pay back his father's favor for him before.

Now Melanie wanted to be an actress. Lucien should stop bothering himself with her issue.

The next day, before Nina got up, she got an audio message from Cameron. "Are you awake? I need to tell you something. It's important."

Cameron should have woken up not long ago. His voice was husky and alluring.

Nina replied, "What's it?"

Seeing that she was awake, Cameron instantly called her by video. Nina didn't answer it.

Cameron then sent a question mark, asking why she hung up the video call.

Nina said unhappily, "I haven't even washed my face. I look like a mess. I am not answering it now." "I've seen you in a worse state," Cameron called again.

Nina couldn't do anything. She rubbed her hair and connected the call, showing only her eyes.

Cameron was speechless.

Cunning girl!

Yet just her eyes were attractive enough.

Nina looked at the man in the video, who was half leaning on the head of the bed in a relaxed posture. His robe was loosened, maybe a little bit too much. Nina knew what he was thinking at a glance. He was trying to seduce her again.

She coughed, asking, "Aren't you cold up on the neck?" "Nope, it's hot." Cameron then loosened his collar even more.

Nina snorted, "Dress properly, will you?"

"I am your husband now," Cameron said, lifting his eyebrows.

"Fine." Nina sneered, rolling her eyes.

Cameron smiled and then stopped joking, and said somewhat regretfully, "I made a mistake on the statement. I put in the end that I am married, my parents and my family must have seen it."

Nina sat up from the bed abruptly upon hearing this.

She was relieved when Cameron said that he didn't tell his parents about their getting married. She was thinking about staying on the crew for a while to be mentally prepared. She wasn't ready to face Colleen.

How stupid she was! She didn't realize that when she saw the statement.

"Then what shall we do now? Your parents must be angry, right? Did they call you?"

Nina worried that Randall and Colleen would beat Cameron again.

Getting married was an important thing. They shouldn't keep it from their parents. Nina's parents didn't count, because they didn't worth it. Yet Cameron's parents should be informed.

Cameron said, "The weird part of the whole thing is that they didn't call. They remain silent." Nina breathed a sigh of relief, "Maybe they didn't see your statement?"

“My uncle saw it, and even if my parents didn’t see it, my uncle would have told them.”
Cameron explains, “My uncle sent me a message this morning.”

“What did he say?”

“Congratulations!”

Nina almost fainted.

This means that Joshua did see it, and it means that Colleen and Randall also know about it. “Then why didn’t they call you? Could it be that they were too angry to talk to you?” Nina felt powerless. She didn’t know what to do.

Looking at the helpless girl in the video, Cameron comforted, “No matter what they’re thinking, nothing would change the fact that we are married. We’ll face it together.”

Nina was moved. She slowly calmed down.

He was right. They were married. There was nothing they couldn’t face.

Cameron added, “My mother has accepted you. She wouldn’t make things difficult for you or be angry with you again. I’ll call them and ask how they think.”

Nina glared at him and snorted, “It’s all your fault!”

He forced her to marry him. Otherwise, they wouldn’t be so passive now.

Cameron laughed. “I’ll do whatever to get what I want. I don’t care about others.”

He didn’t care if his parents were going to beat him again. He had married the girl he loved.

And he was sure that Colleen and Randall wouldn’t do that. They had accepted Nina, and therefore, they would treat her well.

Nina sighed quietly, “It’s a miracle that Camcien Lifetech has come to this day.” Nina casually mentioned Camcien and waited for his reaction.

Cameron raised an eyebrow and stopped hiding it. "You knew everything."

Nina said grumpily, "Am I an idiot to you?"

She had long been suspicious, but she had never mentioned it in front of Cameron.

Last time Sherlyn said that she met a girl in the parking lot who asked Lucien about Cameron's whereabouts, doesn't that mean that Cameron and Lucien know each other?

It proved that Cameron had something to do with Camcien.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 618 A Fool in Love

Cameron answered her with a smile, "Mrs. Dauster is very clever in my heart. She is not stupid at all.

Nina snorted, "Give me back my money!"

He was a billionaire, yet he asked her for money. That was shameless.

Cameron said, "Forget about the money. Now all my possessions are yours. You can take as much as you want."

Speaking of this, Nina recalled that they didn't sign the prenuptial agreement. Now since he admitted that he was the other partner of Camcien Lifetech, Nina asked, "Why didn't you make the premarital notarization?"

She felt it was unfair to him. She was rich as an actress, but her wealth was nothing compared to his.

"Do you think our relationship is measurable by money?" Cameron was unhappy to hear that.

Why didn't he do it?

Because he trusted in them. He believed they would be together forever. Their interests would combine. They would be one.

Nina understood what he meant. she lowered her eyes to defend herself, "I didn't marry you for your money. But what if something happens between us one day? "

"There won't be such a day!" Cameron interrupted her fiercely, "I would never return single unless my wife is dead. Divorce and broke-up don't exist in my dictionary."

Nina was speechless.

She said helplessly, "Do you have to go so far? I was just saying if..." "Not even!" Cameron remained aggressive.

Nina glanced at him obliquely, he could be gentle as hell, yet at the same time overbearing.

"Forever is a long time," She tried to say something, but Cameron interrupted her again.

"Do you think so?" Cameron stared deeply at her, "But for me, life is very short, and we have been separated for many years. Now you don't think about how to cherish our life together yet thinking about breakup with me?"

"Nina, how can you be so heartless?"

Nina was speechless, she was just reminding him.

He would and give up everything for love, so would she.
As long as they loved each other, nothing else mattered.

Nina and Cameron couldn't figure out why Colleen and Randall had remained silent after knowing that she and Cameron had gotten married. The fact was, they didn't dare to call Cameron.

They didn't see the statement immediately last night. They were exhausted after returning from the hospital.

They heard it from Joshua. He called them just when they entered the door.

Colleen was shocked. "What? Married?"

Her mind went blank. She didn't understand what she heard.

Joshua said, "Just check the news."

Colleen hung up the phone in a hurry and looked up the news immediately.

She saw that Michelle was exposed and then saw the statement. At the end of it, it said that Cameron was married.

She read it out loud. Hearing it, Randall almost fell off the stairs.

They looked at each other in silence for quite a while.

They couldn't believe that Cameron had married without telling them. They didn't even know who his wife was. They knew it was most likely Nina, but what if it wasn't her.

Cameron had become more and more difficult to read. Michelle's thing had made them exhausted, now they heard that Cameron suddenly got married, or secretly married.

"It's Nina, right?" Colleen asked in a trembling voice.

Randall said in a confirmed tone, "It must be her! I don't think he'd marry anyone else."

"But Nina is the most popular actress at present. Would she marry our son? Getting married or even just getting in a relationship would affect her career." Colleen said suspiciously.

"Make sense" Randall felt that Colleen was right, Nina was not even thirty. She was at the peak of her career. Even if she wanted to get married, she shall wait until she was thirty at least.

"So..." Colleen covered her chest. Her legs went soft, "Randall, oh my god." What if their son wasn't married to Nina? Colleen didn't dare think about it.

Randall held her immediately, "Don't worry, calm down. I'll call him and ask."

"Don't!" Colleen stopped him.

“Why not?” Randall was confused.

“I’ll faint if the answer isn’t what we want. You won’t want to go back to the hospital tonight.” Randall was amused, “I didn’t know you became so weak mentally.”

Colleen shook off his hand. “Thanks to our good son!”

Colleen then said, “Then just take it as we don’t know. Since he didn’t tell us, we shouldn’t ask. So that we won’t be shocked.”

“Okay!” Randall agreed. He then supported her to the bedroom.

After washing up, they lay down on the bed. It was an exhausting night, yet they couldn’t sleep. Thanks to their good son.

“Since they are married. I think we should prepare for the wedding.” Colleen didn’t want to think about it, but she couldn’t help.

“We won’t need to prepare for his wedding,” Randall said, laughing.

“Why?” Colleen was confused.

“He must have prepared everything. You won’t need us.”

Randall believed that Cameron married Nina. He had done so much for her, that he wouldn’t possibly marry someone else.

If Nina wanted to marry him would be another story.

But Randall believed that Nina would. From the few contacts with her, he could tell that Nina was a decisive and courageous girl.

If she wanted to marry Cameron, nothing would stop her. Not reputations, not status.

“You are right.” Colleen said, kind of disappointed, “He must have been ready long ago. He would give her his entire world.

He would dig out his heart if she asked him to.”

She finally understood that her usually indifferent son was actually a fool in love.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 619

Mysterious Partner

The next morning, when Colleen and Randall were having breakfast, Cameron called.

Colleen picked up the phone with trembling hands and almost lost hold of it.

Randall said helplessly, "Calm down!"

Colleen's heart was racing. "I hope he won't tell us that he didn't marry Nina."

Randall took a sip of the porridge, and said on purpose, "What harm would it make?"

You don't like Nina anyway."

"I didn't like her but I do now." Colleen corrected him.

The more she thought about Nina, the more she liked her.

Colleen didn't start to like Nina because Michelle broke her heart. Nina was a good girl.

She was better than many in Jamelaton.

Randall reminded, "Don't think about it too much, answer the call."

Only then did Colleen realize the phone was still ringing. She took a deep breath and picked it up. "Hello?" she said as usual.

"Have you slept well last night?" Cameron was testing Colleen's attitude.

"Yes, I did."

"I'm sorry for what Michelle has done. It must have brought you troubles." Cameron then said.

Don't be sorry. You revealed her true face. This is a good thing." Colleen meant it. If the thing didn't happen last night, she would still be fooled by Michelle.

As she spoke, Colleen suddenly had an idea. "I was about to ask you for Nina's number. Can you give it to me?"

Colleen explained, "Since she wouldn't come back in a short while, I might better contact her through the phone."

Colleen wanted to apologize to Nina, but there was also something else.

She thought that if Cameron gave her Nina's number, he and Nina must be fine. And the person she married must be Nina.

She couldn't ask directly. Therefore, she chose this way.

Smart as Cameron, he immediately knew what Colleen was thinking. And he could tell that Colleen and Randall approved of his marriage.

So, he agreed. "I'll send it to you later."

Colleen was relieved. "Alright."

Without saying much, they each knew the other person's attitude. So, Cameron didn't speak more about this topic.

He asked instead, "Are you and my dad free this morning? I'd like to take you to a press conference."

"We do have the time." Said Colleen in confusion. "But what press conference is it?"

Colleen wanted to ask wasn't he unemployed? What press conference could he have? But to save Cameron's face, she asked more subtly.

Perhaps because they all worked in the academic field, she never thought that Cameron would become a businessman.

Cameron wasn't hired by universities or other institutions, so they thought he was idling around.

"You will know when you come. For now, it's a secret." Cameron said mysteriously.

"Someone will pick you up later."

"Do you have to be so mysterious?" Colleen protested.

Cameron laughed, "I have to call my grandparents and uncle, I'm off now."

Colleen couldn't do anything but hung up the phone. He told Randall about it. "Press conference?" Randall was confused too.

"He is having a press conference?"

“What sort of a press conference would he have? And he invited all of us to go?”

Colleen shook her head. “No idea.”

It was the special press conference of Camcien Lifetech. Cameron and Lucien had decided to announce Cameron’s identity as the other partner of Camcien in the press conference where Lucien would be the host. By doing so, Cameron would be able to protect Nina better.

Cameron didn’t want to be so high-profile, but he wouldn’t be able to protect Nina in the future otherwise, especially now that he had a competitor, Douglas, who was rich.

Some people were shipping Douglas and Nina online, saying that Douglas was arrogant, but he was obedient while being with Nina. They liked seeing Douglas tamed by Nina.

Cameron was angry seeing that. He swore that he must not fail in the competition with Douglas. Firstly, he had to win in terms of wealth. Announcing to the public that he was the partner of Camcien was a good step. It would defeat the rich boy Douglas Cleveland easily.

After all, Douglas was just a rich kid who lived on the wealth of his family. Yet Cameron was a talent in technology. He founded the company from scratch. And many of his projects were supported by the official.

At around ten o’clock, the Dausters, the Donovans as well as Cameron’s grandparents arrived at the press conference.

They didn’t want attention, so they sat in the back of the venue. They were here to witness, not to show off.

When they saw the banner ” Camcien Lifetech Press Conference”, they immediately understood.

It turned out that the biological company that was now in the limelight was related to Cameron.

“I knew this boy is bound to be something,” Colleen’s brother Joshua Donovan said proudly.

“He has a company? Camcien Lifetech?” Colleen was still in shock, “How is this possible? No one does business in this family. And he is just not made for business. His characteristics wouldn’t do.”

Colleen knew very well that Cameron didn’t like socializing.

Randall pointed at Lucien, who walked on the stage with Cameron and said, “Look, he founded the company with that boy over there. Obviously, that boy deals with marketing and communication, and Cameron is in charge of R&D behind the scenes.”

Lucien and Camcien Lifetech had become famous in Jamelaton in recent years. They all knew that Lucien was good at socializing.

They had to admit Cameron was a genius. He knew that socializing was his weakness, therefore, he found someone to work with. Camcien Lifetech wouldn’t be so successful without Cameron or Lucien. Hood

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 620 Mr. Dauster’s Ex-girlfriend

“Oh, gosh!” Colleen sighed heavily.
She never expected Cameron to do business.

Yet she wasn’t very surprised to know that Cameron had such a brilliant company. Perhaps because she was too surprised when Cameron said he was unemployed.

Joshua said, “I didn’t expect him to choose this path, but he made the right choice. On the one hand, he could use his strength at work, on the other hand, he will get money and glory. Two birds with one stone.”

Valerie murmured, “Three birds.”

Everyone looked at her in puzzlement. Valerie shrugged. “He also got the beauty.”

After a pause, everybody burst into a joyful laugh.

Indeed, three birds with one stone. Love, money, glory, Cameron got all.

Randall thought for a moment and said to Colleen, "Look, our son is amazing. He never made the wrong choice." He meant that Colleen should stay aside from Cameron and Nina.

Because Cameron always made the right choice.

He didn't know about Colleen's thoughts, but he trusted and respected Cameron unconditionally after knowing that Cameron founded Camcien Lifetech. He wouldn't interfere with Cameron's matter again.

Colleen rolled her eyes and then turned to the stage without saying anything. She didn't want to interfere either.

She couldn't be happier seeing that Cameron took care of everything and she wouldn't need to worry.

Valerie breathed a sigh of relief when she noticed that Colleen had given in.

Thinking that her granddaughter-in-law was the most famous actress at present, Valerie was delighted. It was such a wonderful thing to meet a beautiful actress often.

The press conference started as they chatted in joy. After a short speech, Lucien introduced Cameron to the reporters. And the news was soon spread out through all kinds of media.

Cameron was on the trending list, now, his identity was exposed, and he became even more popular.

The official Twitter account of the Jamelaton government liked the tweet introducing Cameron. They even made a list of all the research work Cameron had done in recent years. It was an official approval of Cameron.

People were impressed by Cameron's outstanding. Some became even more jealous of his wife.

Amid the guesses, a comment attracted everyone's attention. "Mr. Dauster had a girlfriend. I don't dare to speak her name. And I'm not sure if it's still the same person."

Some were curious. They asked the person for more details.

Some had no interest, saying that they better forget about it since it was an ex-girlfriend and that Mr. Dauster wouldn't be the same person after so many years.

Some asked, "Why don't you dare to say her name? Does she have a background or something?" "She is a popular actress. Her fans wouldn't let me go if I said her name."

Hearing that it was an actress, people, including those who had no interests, all became curious now. They asked for more details.

The person said vaguely, "They were famous at school. Because their combination was kind of eye-catching." "What combination?"

"Top student versus bad student?" The person jokingly said, and then added, "Or princess versus prince." He tried his best not to be offensive.

Someone commented down below, "I think I know who it is. Nina? She was called brainless when she first became an actress."

Someone quickly refuted, "You got to be joking, Nina was at the top at school in every subject. How could she be a bad student?"

The author of the post said, "She got good marks on the exam, but it doesn't mean she was a good student." As if fearing not being understood, the person soon added, "Why would she improve so quick? Her boyfriend was a top student!" Now people were convinced that Cameron's ex-girlfriend was Nina.

And soon, Nina's name appeared on the trending topics. "Nina was Cameron's ex-girlfriend" and "Nina isn't worth it" soon occupied the top of the trending news board.

Many people said that Nina didn't worth being Cameron's girlfriend, let alone his wife.

Nina liked checking twitter with her private account when she didn't need to work.

Seeing the topics, she was confused.

She wasn't worth it?

Well, okay. That made sense.

But she didn't care about being Cameron's girlfriend now, she was his wife.

Worth it or not, this was the fact.

And she was impressed by how handsome Cameron was at the press conference. He was dressed in suits. His eyes, his Adam's apple, were so sexy! Nina zoomed in on the pictures and watched them again and over again, blushing.

"What's wrong with those people? Can't they just get a life?" Sylvie was angry at the comments.

Nina said calmly, "They don't decide anything. Don't be angry."

She then leaned closer to Sylvie and whispered, "And they would be pissed off when they found out that I am the Mrs. Dauster. So let them speak for now."

Sylvie was speechless. "Your taste is so special."

She was impressed by Nina's calmness. As her assistant, she was tired of dealing with all sorts of trouble every day.

Nina was amused seeing Sylvie's helpless look.

Andrew peered at Nina from afar. He saw the comments online too. He didn't understand why wasn't Nina angry.

Jillian paid those haters. She wanted to humiliate Nina.

Yet Nina didn't care at all.
