

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 621 Being Married

A notification popped on Andrew Sonfield's phone. It turned out to be a message from Jillian. "Nina must be pissed. You know how everyone is saying that Cameron is too good for her?"

Her tone reeked bitterness. It turned out that Cameron was one of the founders of Camcien Lifetech. The fact that his leading business was worth 9 figures blew Jillian's mind.

Although she didn't know for sure if Nina and Cameron had gotten back together, she still couldn't bear the thought that Nina was Cameron's ex. She thought a man like Cameron deserved better.

Therefore, Jillian hired a bunch of people to trawl Nina on the Internet, pushing topics like "Cameron Dauster can do better than Nina Sanchez" meaning to belittle and gross out Nina.

"Nina is talking with her assistant about what are they going to have for lunch right now, seemingly unperturbed." Andrew typed back calmly.

Andrew lied. Nina and Sylvie weren't talking about food at all.

He knew Jillian was seeking some sort of reaction from Nina. He didn't want to give Jillian that satisfaction.

Andrew didn't know why he found Jillian more and more annoying.

Before he met Nina in person, all sorts of assumptions he made were based on Jillian's acerbic complaints about Nina. After getting to know her himself, he found that Nina was nothing like Jillian had described.

Nina was indeed very straightforward, but she wasn't mindlessly blunt like Jillian had said. Instead, he found Nina's EQ was very high. Oftentimes, she acted that way just to resolve some disputes and defuse awkward situations in the crew.

Also, Nina was very dedicated to her career. He knew how hard it was to produce a military-themed TV series. Nina quickly got back to the high-intensity work when she barely recovered from her stomach disorder. She never made stunt doubles fill in for her when filming some dangerous scenes.

Andrew didn't know that Nina was such a skillful actress. Jillian had always said that Nina was frail and couldn't finish the action scenes on her own.

He bought Jillian's nonsense because Nina simply looked too delicate for someone who was so tough. But now...

He realized that he was wrong about Nina.

Now that he knew how nice a person Nina was, he naturally changed his mind about colluding with Jillian in plotting against Nina.

Sure enough, Jillian was obviously frustrated after reading his reply. "How can she be so calm? Doesn't she care about her reputation at all?

Has she no shame?" Andrew ignored her angry messages.

Seeing that Andrew didn't reply, Jillian called to question him, trying to vent all the anger on him. Andrew found somewhere more private and answered the phone.

"You are with her every day. Just get more intimate with her and ask your assistant to snap a shot. What's with the dilly-dallying?" Jillian sputtered.

Andrew almost lost his patience. "I've told you millions of times before. You know how many people there are in the crew.

She won't come to see me after getting back to the hotel. How can I get more intimate with her?

She won't stay on set after shooting. Most of the time, she is in her vanity van. I barely get the chance to speak to her, let alone getting more intimate with her."

At first, he tried to get into Nina's room under the excuse of delivering allergy ointment. But Nina just asked him to bring that to her on set.

Later, he made another excuse, saying that he wanted to check on her. Nina turned that down as well.

In the past, Nina would stay on set and chat with the crew when she was not shooting. Recently, however, it seemed that her vanity van was the only place she wanted to be.

Her excuse was that she hadn't fully recovered from her stomach disorder and that the doctor told her to rest as much as possible. Andrew couldn't possibly question that, not when the director and the rest of the crew all sympathized with her over her condition.

He knew Nina was smart. She probably did that because she had seen through his petty scheme.

Nina was indeed aware of Andrew's intentions. She didn't have any solid evidence, but she had this hunch that was always accurate. After all, she had been pursued by men for so many years.

She would know if a man was sincerely looking for a serious relationship. Andrew's actions said nothing like that.

Some of her suitors were merely looking for a good lay. Andrew, on the other hand, tried to approach her as if he was on a mission or something.

Nina glanced at Andrew, then turned to Sylvie and said, "Call Sherlyn and ask her to do some background check on Andrew Sonfield. There's just something off about him."

Sylvie pursed her lips. "Do I really have to call her? She will be here soon enough." Nina pinched the bridge of her nose and sighed. "Right, she is already on her way here."

Sherlyn was a sensitive and qualified agent. Nina hurried back to Riverside City soon after Cameron revealed that he was married yesterday.

Sherlyn connected the dots and called Nina to question her. Nina naturally admitted.

Sherlyn immediately dropped everything she was doing and booked a flight ticket on the spot, saying that she would kill Nina when she got there. She wouldn't listen to Nina's explanation. Now, her plane had landed.

Sylvie shrugged. "Forget about Andrew. You should think about what you're going to say to Sherlyn."

Nina whined. The director called out Nina's name. Glumly, Nina stood up from the chair and left her conversation with Sylvie.

Everyone seemed so needy right now.

The reason why she was always in her vanity van after shooting was that she didn't want to be involved in any type of scandals.

After all, she was married to Cameron. She knew very well what he would do if he got jealous.

Plus, she sensed that Andrew might be up to something. Staying in the vanity van was the best way to avoid any possible troubles.

Andrew naturally didn't have a pleasant talk with Jillian. He was still obviously upset when he was going to film a scene with Nina.

"Andrew, what's with the mood? Had a fight with your girlfriend?" Nina teased him, letting out a chuckle.

Andrew snickered lamely. "I don't have a girlfriend. It was just a business call." Hearing his answer, Nina squinted her eyes.

He avoided eye contact with her when he said that, which was a sign that he was lying. So, why did he try to make moves on her when he obviously had a girlfriend?

What did he want from her?! I

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 622 Avoid Meeting Cameron

Nina didn't expose his lie. Instead, she smiled and brushed it off, "So it was a business call. I thought you might need some relationship advice from me. No one knows a girl like a girl does, you know."

Just then, the director called them to start shooting, and they quickly got into the role.

It took them some time to finish shooting the scene. Just as Nina was about to go back to her vanity van, she saw Sherlyn standing next to Sylvie, fuming with anger. Sylvie was holding her breath, afraid that any unnecessary movement might cause her to burst.

Nina took a deep breath, forced a smile, and ran towards Sherlyn. She hugged Sherlyn warmly and asked, "My dearest Sherlyn. What are you doing here? Miss me?"

"You know exactly why I'm here." Sherlyn snorted and rolled her eyes, ignoring Nina's ingratiation. If they weren't in public, Sherlyn almost wanted to choke Nina to death.

"To the car." Sherlyn gnashed her teeth.

Just as she finished her words, the director came to say hello to her. Sherlyn immediately gave him a warm glowing smile and greeted the rest of the crew cordially.

Sherlyn had established herself in the industry over the years. The directors had to treat her with due respect. After a few rounds of small talk, Sherlyn took Sylvie and Nina to the vanity van.

Andrew looked in their direction and wondered why Sherlyn was here. Moreover, judging from Sherlyn's expression, she was definitely not happy about seeing Nina.

He knew that Nina didn't renew her contract with Tymers Entertainment and established her own studio instead. In that case, Sherlyn should be busy renovating the studio and managing business relations in Riverside City. The fact that Sherlyn dropped everything on her hands and flew here just to meet Nina didn't seem to add up.

Andrew could only assume that Nina had caused some big trouble last time she went back to Riverside City. "She must have tied the knot with Cameron without telling Sherlyn. That's why Sherlyn seemed so angry!" Andrew thought.

He took out his phone, meaning to tell Jillian about his assumptions. However, just when he was going to dial the number, he changed his mind. He was fed up with Jillian's incessant urging and annoying attitude.

Most importantly, he was the lead of this show. Nina's scandal would present the show in a unfavorable light. If the show tanked, he would have to suffer as well.

Just now, he tried to talk Jillian out of her stupid plan. However, Jillian snapped, saying that he was protecting Nina because he had feelings for her.

When Andrew said that her plan was no good for him either, Jillian simply told him that she could have someone else to replace his role in the show. He would have to suffer no matter what he chose to do. If he talked with Jillian just one more second, he would explode. Therefore, he hung up the phone.

Andrew really got himself into a difficult position. If Jillian really kicked him out from the show, there was nothing he could do.

He didn't want to lose his role, but he also was tired of helping Jillian plot against Nina.

The second they got in the van, Sherlyn made Nina sit and put her hands around Nina's neck in a joking way. "You little troublemaker. I'll let you die here!"

Sylvie tried to stop her. "Sherlyn, just calm down." Nina, on the other hand, couldn't hold back the laughter.

Sherlyn loosened her grasp, found a seat, and wailed, "Where did I do wrong? Why can't you make things a little easier for me?"

"You can start a relationship if you want to. I never said no to that. I know you are old enough to get into a serious relationship. You've already got my approval to be in that crappy dating show. Isn't that enough?" Sherlyn got more agitated as she went on. "And now you are freaking married? I said you can try to fall in love. I didn't tell you to get married!"

"What if he is not the one? What if you get a divorce? Your career will be ruined!"

The sponsors condone no negative influence from your scandals. What are you going to do now?" The thought was giving Sherlyn a headache.

When Cameron revealed that he was married, Sherlyn almost fainted on the spot.

She knew how much Nina loved Cameron. If Cameron got married to someone, it must be Nina. She didn't think that Nina was so bold as to get married to Cameron behind her back.

Sherlyn collapsed in her seat, pinching the bridge of her nose. Sylvie commented faintly, "But Sherlyn, how is getting married a scandal?"

At first, Sylvie was also shocked when she knew Nina got married to Cameron. But she was glad that the two got together. She had been rooting for the two a long time ago.

Sherlyn glared at Sylvie and answered, "It won't be if it is handled with great caution. If there is even the slightest lapse, her career will be done for."

Sylvie was frightened by the words.

"I've got you. You can handle this. I believe you." Nina threw her arms around Sherlyn playfully, only to be pushed away.

"I can't. Sorry to let you down." That reply didn't work off her anger, so Sherlyn added in a huff, "Even if I can, all you are going to do is cause more trouble for me."

The last thing she wanted was making futile efforts.

She was really afraid that someone would come to her next time and tell her Nina was pregnant. By then, everything would be over.

"Is there really anything you can't handle?" Nina moved closer to Sherlyn again, and this time, Sherlyn didn't resist Nina's hug.

Seeing that, Sylvie snickered. She knew very well that Sherlyn wouldn't let anything happen to Nina.

Sherlyn took a deep breath and said solemnly, "I'm here to tell you what you should do after getting the marriage license." Nina nodded. "Okay. I'm all ears."

Sherlyn took out her laptop from the bag, and showed Nina a file. "I made a list of Dos and Don'ts. Take a look."

Nina reacted with a click of her tongue, in awe of Sherlyn's productivity.

However, her good mood was ruined upon reading the first article on the list. It said that she should avoid meeting Cameron before finishing shooting the series, so as not to be caught on the camera and attract unsolicited attention to the show.

Nina remembered that she had agreed to attend a brand activity with Cameron, which was only a few days away. Thinking of that, Nina felt like her head was pounding.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 623 Pillow Talk

"What's with that face?" Sherlyn snapped when she saw Nina was frowning, "Which article are you reading?" Nina pointed at her computer screen with her pale finger and said weakly, "The first one."

Sherlyn was speechless.

Nina explained, "I have to attend a brand activity in Hazelton in a few days. I said I would meet him there." Sherlyn almost exploded in exasperation.

She snapped her laptop shut and turned to Nina. "Oh, you guys just can't get enough of each other, can you? Then the list is useless.

Come on, tell me. What's your plan?" Nina coughed. "I don't have one. I'm the passive one."

Nina was indeed the passive one in her relationship with Cameron. It was Cameron who made her get the marriage license with him. Cameron certainly wouldn't agree to avoid meeting each other for the time being.

Nina finally realized that Cameron always got what he wanted.

In Sherlyn's mind, Nina was a tough and self-assured woman. The fact that Nina was the passive one in the relationship came as a surprise to her. And because of that, all the rules she listed had become strings of meaningless words.

Nina and Cameron definitely wouldn't stick to the plan. Sherlyn had to make compromises.

Sherlyn heaved a long sigh. "I can't help you then." The only person who might be able to turn things around was Cameron himself.

Nina grabbed Sherlyn's hand and said, "Please help. I'll do whatever you tell me to do. Just tell me about your plan."

Sherlyn waved her hands. "No, don't do that. Cameron will kill me."

Before she knew that Cameron was the mysterious founder of Camcien Lifetech, Sherlyn thought she could manipulate him easily. Now that his true identity was out in the open, she had to tread carefully.

She couldn't afford to mess with him.

Nina fell silent, staring at Sherlyn hopelessly.

Who could say no to that gorgeous face?

Sherlyn's heart softened. "Fine. You can meet him at the event. But be careful. You can't let anyone find out. Also, make sure you tell him about the plan. Try not to meet up for the time being. Can you do that?"

Nina sighed. "Okay, I'll try my best." She was not sure that she could convince Cameron.

Sherlyn added, "Your agenda has been posted online. Paparazzi will be everywhere. If you two got caught on camera at your hotel, your career will be over."

Nina said, "But Cameron is not famous or anything. Paparazzi don't really care about him, right?"

"Have you seen the news?" Sherlyn rolled her eyes. Was Nina really unaware of how rich and handsome Cameron was? Was she playing dumb?"

Sherlyn continued, "Your past relationship has made headline. Now, everyone knows Cameron is your ex-boyfriend. If you two are seen staying in the same hotel, people will suspect that you have gotten back together."

"Then, should I tell him to be more discreet when he is out?" Nina felt that she was conducting some sort of espionage mission.

Sherlyn nodded in agreement. "Anyway, just lie low for the time being. After the event, you have to come back to work. I still have to figure out what we should do from then."

The cluelessness ignited Sherlyn again. "Just what were you thinking? You just got married that way? Have you thought about your career plan?"

Nina didn't tell her that it was because Cameron threatened her with the photo. She took Sherlyn's arm with a smile and said, "You know how it is. Being in love makes people stupid. I did that on the spur of the moment."

Sylvie's burst of laughter made Sherlyn even angrier. "Sylvie, you are Nina's assistant. You are with her all day long. Why didn't you stop her?"

I know you have been rooting for them. But you can't be irresponsible and oafish like this. This is real life. I'm really disappointed this time. How can you let Nina..." Sherlyn patted Sylvie's shoulder heavily.

Sylvie shrank her neck and smirked, still shipping the newlyweds in the back of her mind.

Then, she thought of the thing Nina just mentioned. "Sherlyn, Nina and I both feel that there is something weird about Andrew.

Can you do some background check?"

Sylvie and Nina then told Sherlyn their observations these days. After hearing that, Sherlyn snorted. "He is nothing but a D-list actor. If he dares to stir up troubles, I will let him pay.

Leave it to me," Sherlyn said with confidence.

Then, she continued, "Cameron had just revealed his true identity to the public, which drew much attention to himself. As I said before, you two have to let the dust settle. You have to give people the time to take it in. Just be patient and do it slowly. That's my advice."

Nina replied, "Okay, I'll tell him about your advice."

Sherlyn sputtered, "Can't you come up with something yourself?"

Nina said, "I can never convince him with my own thought."

Sherlyn was momentarily speechless.

"Nina, you can give him some pillow talk." Sylvie's words shocked the other two in the van.

Nina blushed. Sherlyn gave Sylvie a hard slap on her arm as she exclaimed, "Where did you learn that from!" Sylvie smirked, "You know how much I love romance comedies."

Sherlyn glared at her then turned to Nina and said, "She is right though. You can try pillow talk with him. Convince him that meeting up right now is not a good idea. It's for the best."

Sherlyn was exhausted by all the work on her hands. Setting up a studio was a toil. She had to make numerous business connections, take care of the recruitment issue, and still be Nina's responsible agent.

"Pillow talk?"

There is no way I'm doing that!"

Nina thought.

Sherlyn said to Nina, "Give me Cameron's phone number."

Although Nina didn't know what that was for, she gave it to Sherlyn.

Sherlyn called Cameron right away. "Mr. Dauster, I'm Sherlyn Lansdale, Nina's agent. I need your help with something.

There is an actor in Nina's crew. His name is Andrew. He has been all over Nina lately. Nina thinks there is something off about him, Can you do some background check?"

Nina and Sylvie were at a loss for words.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 624 Heartless

That was a brilliant move Sherlyn just made there.

She firstly pointed out that Andrew had been extra nice to Nina before asking Cameron to help do some background investigation. Cameron couldn't possibly ignore that request.

Sure enough, Cameron's positive answer sounded. "Of course." "Thanks," Sherlyn replied.

Cameron had long sensed that Andrew might have some ulterior motive. Even if Sherlyn didn't bring that up just now, Cameron would still do it for Nina without asking any question.

Cameron wouldn't allow anyone to lay a finger on Nina. If Andrew dared to hurt Nina in anyway, Cameron would destroy his career in the entertainment industry.

Nina was surprised by Sherlyn's move. She tutted after Sherlyn hung up the phone, "Wow, you surely know how to use your resources."

Nina didn't really want Cameron to know about Andrew. Sherlyn just ratted her out on the phone.

Sherlyn smiled. "Do you know how much trouble you and Cameron had made for me? So what if I trouble him a little? Also, you guys are a couple now. You two are one."

Nina disagreed. "No, we are not."

Although they were married, they were still two independent individuals and had their own businesses to handle.

Now, it was Sherlyn's turn to be at a loss for words. Nina usually gave clever relationship advice to other couples. Why was she stuck at the dead-end of her own relationship?

Sherlyn said earnestly, "Nina, my dear. Why do you think Cameron told the public that he is the co-founder of Camcien Lifetech?"

Seeing that Nina was puzzled, Sherlyn continued, "He did that because he wanted to protect you." Nina laughed. "Nonsense. He did that for himself. He is back now. If he intends to stay, he has to have a decent job. "

Sherlyn shrugged. "His company is doing well even if he didn't reveal his identity. He could have just stayed abroad and kept doing what he was already doing."

"But he chose to go back and be with you. By revealing his identity, he is actually paving the way for the disclosure of your relationship." Sylvie's remark had hit the nail on the head yet again. Sherlyn gave Sylvie a thumbs-up.

Nina bit her lower lip and sighed.

Cameron had been nothing but a considerate husband these days. It made her seem like a heartless woman.

Well, she would have to make it up to him when they met then.

Sherlyn left in a hurry after addressing the matter. Nina and Sylvie stayed on set to continue their work and kept more of a sharp lookout for every move Andrew made.

When Nina received a friend request from Colleen, she was shocked She called Cameron for help before she did anything.

“Your mom just sent me a friend request...” Nina clearly hadn’t recovered from the shock.

Cameron replied calmly, “Yeah, she said she wanted to apologize. Since you are away, she thought she might do it on the phone.”

“You could have told me about that. I almost got scared to death.” Nina sounded annoyed.

“Well, that was my intention,” Cameron answered, as cool as a cucumber.

He liked to tease her. He thought she looked cute when she was mad. Nina gritted her teeth angrily, picturing punching him in the back of her mind. “Gotta go.” She had to pass Colleen’s friend request.

“Wait.” Cameron grew more serious. “You don’t have to be nervous. My mom is pretty easy-going. You don’t have to try to please her. Just be you,” he reminded affectionately.

Nina thanked him snappishly and hung up the phone. She had to admit that his words boosted her confidence a little.

After adding Colleen, Nina took a deep breath. Seconds later, she received a message from Colleen that simply read, “Hello, Nina.”

Nina replied, “Hello, Mrs. Dauster.”

After that, Nina saw the three dots that appeared in the dialog box, which indicated that Colleen was typing. However, she didn’t receive anything.

Nina wondered what Colleen was going to say.

Why did it take her so long? Was she pondering on the wording?

Indeed, the second Colleen received the message from Nina, she turned to Randall and asked, “She is already married to Cameron. Why is she still calling me Mrs. Dauster?”

She was just about to discuss it with Nina when Randall stopped her. "What do you want her to do? Say 'Hi, Mom'? That would sound forced, wouldn't it? "

Colleen was somewhat convinced by her collected husband. However, she still thought the way Nina address her was a bit distant. After all, they were a family now.

She said to Randall, "Should I give her a hint or something?"

"Forget about it. Are you going to apologize to her or not?"

Randall reminded.

Hearing that, Colleen snorted. But still, his words led her back on track.

That was why she had Nina wait for so long.

Just when Colleen was going to hit send, she received another text from Nina. "Mrs. Dauster, Cameron had already explained it to me. I know you did that for Cameron. Just let bygones be bygones."

Nina took the pressure off Colleen's shoulder. She didn't want Colleen's apology if that made Colleen uncomfortable.

Colleen was a proud woman. By saying that, Nina was trying to protect Colleen's dignity.

Also, Nina didn't say anything flattering that would make her seem too desperate.

Randall sighed, "How thoughtful this girl is! I guess she sensed that you are too embarrassed to make an apology since it took you so long. So, she wants to make things easier for you."

Colleen snorted, "I'm not embarrassed. I'm just a slow-typer. "

With that, she sent her apology to Nina. A smile appeared on Randall's face after seeing that. I. I

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 625 Lovesick

Randall's words did give her a nudge.

However, Colleen felt much more relieved after hitting SEND.

There had to be someone to break the ice. It didn't matter if it had to be her.

After reading Colleen's message, Nina pondered for a while before texting her back, "I accept your apology. It wasn't all your fault. I was too young and too reckless. I didn't know what love really was. I also have to make an apology to you. Sorry for making you worry about Cameron's future."

Since Colleen had already apologized, Nina naturally softened her attitude. It didn't take long before she received Colleen's reply.

"As you said, let bygones be bygones. You and Cameron are married. We are a family now."

Nina smiled and put down her phone. Colleen's apology was sincere. Nina was never the kind of people to hold grudges. Since Colleen was willing to treat her with respect, she would naturally show Colleen the respect she deserved.

Then, Colleen asked Nina to have dinner together after she wrapped up her work and returned to Riverside City. Nina agreed.

Now that she thought about it, her being able to patch things up with Colleen so quickly all thanked to Cameron. It was Cameron who made Colleen see through Michelle's fake persona so that Colleen could take a good look at Nina and get to know her again, unbiased.

She suddenly felt that she missed Cameron very much, so much that all she could do was thinking about him.

Seeing that Nina was a bit absent-minded, Sylvie asked with concern, "Nina, are you okay?" Nina cupped her cheeks. "I miss Cameron so much. I think I'm lovesick. What should I do?"

Sylvie was surprised by Nina's words. She didn't believe such cheesy lines just came out of Nina's mouth. Ever since Cameron came back, all Sylvie could sense was Nina's repulsion against him.

Sylvie had never thought that Nina could say such things.

Nina rolled her eyes at Sylvie. "What? Can't I miss him?" Sylvie nodded. "Of course, you cant He is your husband. It's only natural! It's only reasonable and legal!"

Nina was amused by her words. "I was just a little surprised. You never really show your feelings in front of us," Sylvie explained.

Nina snorted, "If I tell you how much I miss him every day, it will get old. And you will start complaining." Sylvie shook her head vigorously. "No, it will never get old. Spare no detail."

Sylvie had been rooting for Nina and Cameron for so long. Now that they were finally together, Sylvie wouldn't want to miss any romantic detail in the life of her favorite couple.

All she wanted to complain about was that Nina and Cameron were too low-key to share anything with her.

Nina was amused by her little assistant yet again. The two laughed together.

The brand activity was scheduled a long time ago. Therefore, Nina had informed the crew early on and asked for a leave.

Before leaving for the airport, however, Andrew unexpectedly stopped Nina's car at the gate of the hotel.

Nina was just about to get in the car when Andrew caught up. "Sorry. Would you mind giving me a ride? I'm also heading to the airport," he said.

Nina raised an eyebrow. Instead of rejecting him directly, she asked, "Do you also have to attend some event today?"

Although he didn't have his car here, he could still afford a taxi.

Also, the hotel could provide free pick-up and drop-off services for the staff from the crew. Why was he asking her for a ride? Andrew smiled. "No. I'm just going to Hazelton to run some errands since I don't have work on set today." "Hazelton?" Nina asked calmly. "What a coincidence. I need to fly to Hazelton for a brand event."

Andrew joked, "I'm not as famous as you. No one will invite me to attend all those grand events. I'm going there to handle some personal matters."

After finishing his words, Andrew quietly waited for Nina to grant him a lift. However, Sylvie beat Nina to it. She said bluntly, "Sorry, Mr. Sonfield. Nina's flight is too early. She has to do her make up and change clothes in the car. It would cause much inconvenience for us if you and your assistant are there."

The direct rejection made Andrew feel embarrassed.

He glanced at Sylvie, slightly irked. "This little assistant is really something. She has always seemed so meek with that smile of hers. I didn't expect that she could also be so sharp and harsh in a moment like this."

Sylvie ignored Andrew's hostile stare. Although she sometimes appeared to be a little confused, she knew how to do her job tight. Serving Nina and protecting Nina's legitimate rights were her only obligations. Pleasing other celebrities clearly didn't fall into the spectrum.

Sylvie had been working for Nina for several years now. She and Nina made a good team.

Nina already told her that she felt there was something off about Andrew. Nina definitely wouldn't want to ride with him. If the paparazzi caught Andrew and Nina in the same car, who knew what kind of ridiculous rumors would be spread around by them.

It would harm Nina's impeccable reputation if she refused him herself. So, Sylvie naturally took on the role of a bad cop.

Sylvie glanced at Andrew's assistant and muttered, "Don't you know that you can book a car at the hotel reception? You call yourself an assistant?"

Andrew's assistant was embarrassed. Nina said, "In this case, Andrew, we won't waste your time. I have a flight to catch."

Nina then said goodbye to him with a smile and got into the car. Sylvie followed Nina, ignoring the resentful gaze of Andrew's assistant.

In fact, it was Jillian who asked Andrew to fly to Hazelton. She said that since Nina would be there, Andrew had to take the chance and do something quickly. Things were going too slow when they were in the crew. Jillian's patience was almost worn out.

Although he didn't want to do that, he still said yes because Jillian threatened to kick him out of the crew.

Nina's car zoomed past. Andrew's assistant said angrily, "Who does she think she is? Who gave her the confidence to reject you?"

"She even insinuated that I am a bad assistant. My boss told me not to book the car from the hotel. What should I do? Disobey his order?" The assistant thought.

Andrew replied coldly, "Nina Sanchez, of course."

Nina obviously grew suspicious of him and told Sylvie about it. The two were on guard against him now.

Andrew, however, felt relieved when he realized that. In that case, he wouldn't have to go out of his way to get close to Nina. All he had to do was tell Jillian that Nina had suspected something.

Then, Jillian had to figure out what to do next. He would be cooperative if she asked him to, but there was really nothing much he could do to help.

Andrew was actually excited to meet Jillian in person. After all, Jillian really knew how to please a man in bed. I I I

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 626 We Finally Meet Again

After sitting in the RV, Nina immediately gave Sylvie a thumbs-up. "Well done. I'll give you a bonus later." Sylvie shook her head and said, "There is no need for a bonus. This is what I should do."

Then she snorted with contempt, “Before, we just suspected that Andrew had shady intentions. I was confirmed just now. He insists on taking your car. He wasn’t afraid of arousing suspicion at all.”

“Either he wants to chase your clout, or he’s onto something else,” Sylvie angrily said.

It wasn’t that Nina didn’t let Andrew take her car, but she had been at the forefront during this time, so she obviously couldn’t engage in any rumors with Andrew because they were in the same car.

Moreover, Nina’s standpoint in the entertainment industry for so many years had been made very clear. As long as there was her rumor, she would clarify it herself.

On one hand, Nina did not want to cause trouble for herself, and on the other hand, she did not want to cause trouble for others.

Andrew also knew that, but he still wanted to take her car. Didn’t that mean that he just wanted to chase Nina’s clout or wanted to do something bad?

Nina lazily leaned against the back of the car seat and pondered for a long time, then suddenly asked Sylvie, “Does Jillian also have a schedule in Hazelton today?”

“Yeah, she seems to have a low-end cosmetics livestream.” Sylvie hated Jillian because Jillian was too despicable.

Jillian’s livestream of low-end cosmetics was on a completely different level from the activity held by the top fashion brand staff that Nina was about to participate in. When Nina made a contract for this brand a while ago, she was just the spokesperson for one of its brands. Now, a few months had passed, and Nina had relied on her clout to bring goods to be promoted to a brand ambassador. That was why Nina was officially invited by the brand.

Sylvie then asked Nina in confusion, “Why do you ask?”

Nina didn’t directly answer Sylvie’s question, but instead said, “If I remember correctly, Andrew and Jillian had co-starred in a drama before, right?”

“Yes, they did, but it was a big flop.” Sylvie went straight to the point. If Jillian or Andrew heard Sylvie’s evaluation, they would definitely be pissed.

Sylvie was not a stupid person. When Nina said this, Sylvie suddenly understood. She asked Nina in surprise, “You suspect that there is an affair between Andrew and Jillian?”

That was why Andrew had cooperated with Jillian and purposefully targeted Nina. Did they want to cause some trouble? Nina nodded, then said, “You know, Jillian has her way with men. She will definitely be able to get Andrew.”

Sylvie cursed. “What a scumbag and a bitch. Andrew is such a shiftless person.”

Nina didn’t say anything more. She went back to meet Cameron and asked him how the investigation was going.

In Hazelton, one of the rooms on the top floor of the hotel that the brand staff had booked for Nina.

Lucien lay lazily on the sofa in Cameron’s room drinking wine. Cameron glanced at his watch and learned that Nina’s flight had already landed and they would arrive at the hotel soon.

So, Cameron immediately let Lucien leave and directly took Lucien’s glass and urged, “Are you still not leaving?” He and Nina hadn’t seen each other for half a month. This was their world of two. How could Lucien stay here? Lucien took back his wine glass and poured himself another one. “I won’t leave. You liar.”

Lucien was furious at the mention of this matter. “Cameron, you’re so mean to me. You went on a date while I had to cover for you. Now you’re making me have nothing better to do, so how could you chase me away?”

Cameron didn’t want the others to suspect that he came to Hazelton for Nina, so Cameron asked Lucien to go on a business trip with him, but in fact, he had no official business to do.

Lucien only found out when he arrived that he was only here to cover up. He was so angry that he refused to leave Cameron's room. He planned to continue to be a third wheel when Nina arrived later.

"Then I'll go." Cameron stood up and was about to leave. At worst, he would go to Nina's room, and they could date there.

In fact, Cameron lied to Lucien not only to cover for himself, but also to help Lucien find a woman for a date, because... he felt that the girl named Sylvie, Nina's assistant, was very interesting and suitable for Lucien.

However, he didn't mention this to Lucien or Nina. He'd have to get Nina's permission later.

Although Lucien was successful in his career now, Cameron knew him well. Lucien was not the kind of person who insisted on marrying a rich lady. On the contrary, he did not like the kind who came from a rich family.

Firstly, Lucien's family background was very ordinary. If his partner were too wealthy, she would belittle or be mean to his parents.

Secondly, Lucien also felt that those well-off girls from noble families were too pampered and arrogant. They weren't suitable for him, who was casual.

If Lucien was a man greedy for power and money, he would not be single now. After all, after the rise of Camcien Lifetech, many women pursued him.

Lucien saw that Cameron was really going to leave, so he quickly got up from the sofa.

"I'll leave, okay?"

Since he had been deceived to cover them up, he had to be more responsible. After all, it was not suitable for Cameron to go to Nina's room. After all, Nina had a public event.

The stylist and some other staff would definitely go to her room.

"I have something to tell you later." Before Lucien returned to his room, Cameron said to him.

Lucien acted as if he hadn't heard anything. There must be something bad going on if Cameron met him.

Not long after Lucien left, Nina arrived at the hotel.

However, because Nina still had some work to do in the afternoon, she had to prepare first. So, Cameron waited for her in the room for a long time. As he waited, his lust was aroused. As a result, when Nina pressed the doorbell, Cameron directly dragged her in and pressed her on the wall and kissed her.

Nina was speechless.

Under the passionate kiss of the man, she said with difficulty, "I still have activities in the afternoon, so I have to put on a gown..."

She had just gotten a dress in her room with the brand staff and the dress was adjusted to herself. If Cameron dared to make her unable to wear a custom-made dress again, she would beat him to the ground.

"Okay..." Cameron responded in a low voice, then hugged her and continued to kiss her.

The event was held in the afternoon. Nina had rushed over in the morning in order to go on a date with Cameron, so she hugged Cameron's neck tightly and the two of them kissed each other again.

Although they hadn't seen each other for only half a month, it felt like they had been separated for a long time.

They hadn't contacted each other for many years. At that time, they didn't feel their life was tough, but now that they were married, they couldn't bear their separation even it had just been days.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 627 To Make You Live a Good Life

When they were making out, Nina's cell phone suddenly rang. Cameron didn't want to stop for a moment, but Nina had to answer the phone because it was from Sherlyn.

It took Nina a lot of effort to peace her breath before she picked up the call. Sherlyn said earnestly, "I just thought of an important matter."

Nina pushed away Cameron while asking, "What's wrong?" Sherlyn gritted her teeth and growled, "Remember to use contraception and don't get pregnant!"

Sherlyn suddenly remembered that Nina and Cameron was definitely gonna have sex when they met this time. What if they wasn't careful enough and Nina was pregnant?

Nina was less than 30 years old. For a popular actress, getting pregnant and giving birth at this time was not a wise choice. No matter how much she loved Cameron, Nina could not give up her career. This was Sherlyn's bottom line. Sherlyn thought it was also Nina's bottom line.

A woman would never give up her proud career for a man. After all, in this fast-paced society, who could guarantee that a relationship could last forever?

Nina could struggle for a few more years before slowing down and paying more attention to her family.

Nina was stunned by Sherlyn's words and did not know what to say for a while. In addition to her current state with Cameron, Sherlyn's words made her not want to continue.

Seeing that Nina did not speak, Cameron moved closer to the phone and replied to Nina, "There's not gonna be a child." They couldn't keep talking on the phone like this. He couldn't wait any longer. If he continued to wait, his dick might go wrong.

Hearing the strange voice of the man on the phone, Sherlyn instantly understood what they were doing at the moment. She blushed and hung up the phone in a hurry.

Cameron threw Nina's phone aside and was about to continue hugging her when Nina had another question. She frowned slightly and asked Cameron, "Why were you so sure that we wouldn't have a child?"

Before Cameron could say anything, Nina asked again, "Is there something wrong with you?"

Cameron was speechless.

He leaned over and said through his clenched teeth, "You know it very well." Every time they had sex, he made her extremely satisfied.

Nina was both flustered and embarrassed. "But... but there may be problems in you that I can't sense, which could hinder us from having a baby."

Cameron almost had a facial spasm. He pinched Nina's slender waist and explained in a low voice, "I was so sure that we wouldn't have a child because I wouldn't allow myself to knock you up when your career is in full swing."

His reply surprised Nina a little. She never thought that Cameron would consider so much for her. To be honest, they were no longer young, and they were already married.

His parents and family would probably urge them to give birth soon.

However, he had promised so firmly that he would not let her give up her career for procreation.

Nina's eyes were a bit red. Cameron kissed her gently on her mouth and said, "Also, I don't like children. I only like you. I just want to be with you every moment."

Nina was speechless. She had never seen someone like him, who only cared about the world of two and was unwilling to have a child.

"Children are so cute, why don't you like them?" When Nina talked about this topic, her eyes were full of yearning. "Our children must be very good-looking. Just thinking about it makes my heart melt."

Cameron didn't want to talk about children at this time. At least now they have to finish the business which could help make babies.

As a result, Nina wanted to say something further, but was interrupted by Cameron's actions. This continued until Nina was completely exhausted.

Nina was exhausted. She lay in Cameron's arms and didn't even want to move.

"I investigated Andrew Sonfield. He and Jillian Harrison are lovers." Cameron took the initiative to mention this matter. Nina wasn't surprised. She had basically guessed this.

She didn't have any grudges with Andrew, so there was no need for Andrew to target her. Someone was definitely behind this.

Seeing that she didn't react much, Cameron couldn't help asking in a low voice, "Have you guessed it?" "Yeah." Nina replied lazily. "Jillian's tiny little brain was too easy to see through."

Jillian always laughed at Nina for being stupid and thinking that she was so smart and scheming. In fact, Jillian was the most stupid one. How could she ask her boyfriend to have an ambiguous relationship with her deadly foe?

What a fool!

Cameron smiled, held Nina's slender waist and kissed her again. He really loved her "casually being smart" face.

Nina was speechless as she pushed Cameron away and furiously glared at him.

If Cameron kept kissing her, she wouldn't have to get out of bed today.

Cameron hugged her and smiled. After that, he said, "I've spoiled Jillian's next play."

It was such a coincidence. Jillian had a cooperation with Tymers Entertainment later. Jillian was not the protagonist. She now had no chance to play the first female lead at all. If things went on like this, she wouldn't even be able to work as the supporting actress in the future.

Cameron called Viggo and told him about it. Viggo then found another one and replaced Jillian's role. He heard that Jillian had been fighting for a long time.

However, Tymers was now a top film and television company in the industry. How could Jillian beat Tymers? Besides, Jillian's reputation was bad in the industry. No one would sympathize with her even if she made a scene, let alone pay attention to her.

Also, changing roles at any time was not a rare thing in the entertainment industry. If actors offended someone supporting you, those actors would have to accept the fact of being replaced.

Moreover, Jillian had used this method to replace people in the past. She had many roles that relied on connections with capital to get them.

Nina looked up at Cameron lazily, asking, "How did you do it?"

"Money." Cameron said matter-of-factly.

Nina grunted and didn't ask any further questions.

Cameron asked her again, "How are you going to get even with them later?"

Nina was determined. "I can't deal with Andrew. I can't just consider myself. I'm currently cooperating with him on a new drama. I can't implicate the entire production crew and the whole drama because of our grudge.

"Not only can't I kick Andrew out, I even have to protect him."

If she had exposed Andrew and caused Andrew's reputation to be ruined at this time, it would inevitably affect the drama they were filming now. At that time, the production team would replace him with someone else, which would be a big work.

It was unfair to both the actors and the crew.

Cameron obviously understood that Nina was taking into consideration the situation as a whole, but he still snorted. "I can invest in your drama and bear the loss of all the substitutions."

Cameron could risk everything for Nina. He didn't care about money. He just wanted Nina to hold up her head high.

Nina was speechless. "You worked so hard to earn money. Are you going to waste it like this?" Why wouldn't he cherish money?

Unexpectedly, Cameron answered seriously, "Of course, I'm making money so that you can live a better and more comfortable life."

Nina was speechless.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 628 I'm Willing, For You

Glaring at Cameron, Nina said with some emotion, "If this matter only involves me, Andrew, and Jillian, I will definitely teach them a good lesson. But now, Andrew and I are filming a new drama. If Andrew is ruined, I'll be fine, but this drama and the crew will also be ruined."

Cameron said, "If you want to protect Andrew, you have to see if he is willing to cooperate with you. If he is stubborn and insists on colluding with Jillian to ruin you, you can only expose him."

Nina knew this, so she nodded and said, "I'll find a chance to have a chat with Andrew and understand his thoughts." Cameron answered, "How about now? If you want to see him, meet him today. I'll go with you."

On the one hand, Cameron didn't want Nina to meet another man alone. On the other hand, he was more concerned about Nina's safety. Andrew had cooperated with Jillian. What if Andrew really did something bad to Nina?

Nina obviously knew that Cameron was worried about her, but she was a little dissatisfied. She raised her hand and poked the man's chest, protesting, "Mr. Dauster, have you forgotten that I have extraordinary martial arts skills?"

She could easily deal with someone like Andrew.

Cameron frowned and whispered, "Andrew can't beat you, but Andrew and Jillian are vicious. We don't know what he and Jillian can do."

If they joined forces to scheme against Nina, he was afraid that Nina wouldn't be able to guard against them, so he had to follow her.

Nina had no choice but to agree with his suggestion. "Alright, but we can't appear together for the time being. If Andrew is really determined to deal with me with Jillian, then the matter between us will be completely exposed."

"Okay, I won't show myself. I'll hide behind the scenes." Cameron stroked her cheek tenderly.

As long as she needed him, he was willing in front or behind the scenes.

In another hotel in Hazelton, after having sex, Jillian immediately asked Andrew to call Nina. "We are both in Hazelton tonight. You can ask her to meet you in the evening. You only need to ask her out. I will arrange other things at that time."

Andrew had just been served very comfortably by Jillian. At this time, he didn't want to disobey her, so he took out his mobile phone and called Nina. Nina quickly picked it up. Her tone was calm as she said, "Mr. Sonfield, what's wrong?"

Andrew also said calmly, "Do you have time tonight? I'd like to invite you to dinner. Thank you for taking care of me during this time."

Nina grinned as she replied. "You're too kind. I ought to have been taken care of by you, and I ought to be the one treating you to this meal."

"So, you agree?" Andrew was very surprised. He had been trying to get close to Nina during this period of time, but to no avail.

Other than the time when the crew staff had meals together, he had never succeeded in inviting Nina to dinner alone.

Nina's tone was very playful. "That's right, I agree. It's rare for both of us to get a rest from that tough production crew. We can eat delicious food together and relax a little. Otherwise, we'll have to go back and suffer tomorrow."

Andrew was amused by Nina's words. "Okay, see you tonight. I know a good restaurant. I'll send you the address later." "No problem." Nina agreed very quickly.

After hanging up the phone, Jillian glanced at Andrew, who was full of smiles, and gritted her teeth as she scolded, "See how Nina talks. She's so coquettish, as if she's trying to seduce you."

Andrew didn't express any opinion on Jillian's complaint. In his opinion, Nina had just spoken normally and easily, without any coquettishness. He didn't know how Jillian had heard it.

"Alright, I've made an appointment. What plans do you have next?" Andrew asked Jillian.

Jillian grunted. "I can't tell you. What if you betray me?"

Actually, Jillian's plot was too sinister. She didn't want Andrew to know, so as to avoid damaging her image in Andrew's heart.

Since Jillian didn't say anything, Andrew didn't ask further questions. In any case, he wasn't interested in framing Nina.

When Cameron told Nina that he wanted to introduce Lucien to Sylvie, Nina was so shocked that she nearly rolled off the bed.

Cameron stretched out his long arm helplessly and brought her back. "Is it so surprising?"

Nina nodded heavily. "Yes."

"First of all, the thought of you wanting to introduce Lucien to Sylvie, is very shocking. They are completely different people." "What's more, you're usually so cold, but now you're acting as a matchmaker. It's even more shocking."

After Nina said that, she glanced at Cameron's handsome face. She really couldn't imagine that he would be a go-between. Nina immediately laughed.

Cameron snorted and said, "I am just an ordinary person."

He only thought about the simplest and ordinary life, talking and laughing with the woman he loved, and growing old with her.

His words made Nina laugh even more happily. In the end, Cameron pressed Nina down on the bed and kissed her and then Nina stopped laughing.

Nina had to say, "Then I'll call Sylvie first and ask her if she is willing to go on a blind date."

"Okay," Cameron responded. Sylvie's wish was still very important.

Nina asked him again, "You don't need to tell Lucien in advance?"

"No need." Cameron replied simply.

Nina smiled and said, "Okay, then I'll call Sylvie first."

Sylvie had just come back from the outside. She had taken over all the work related to the brand in the afternoon with Nina before. Nina had gone on a date with Cameron. So, she was free and went out to eat delicacies.

As soon as she returned to the hotel after relaxing happily, she received a call from Nina. After pressing the button to go to the floor, she retreated to the corner of the elevator to answer Nina's phone.

When Sylvie heard on the phone that Nina wanted to introduce a man to her, she thought that she had misheard. She raised her voice incredulously, "What? You want to introduce a man to me?"

After that, Sylvie realized that she was in a public place, so she quickly covered her mouth. Fortunately, there was only her and a young man in the elevator. The man might not be affected by her loud noise.

The young man stood in front of her. Sylvie could not see him clearly. Consequently, she didn't know whether he had been affected by her loud scream a moment ago or not.

When Sylvie spoke again, she lowered her voice and covered her mouth. "Boss, what's wrong with you? Why are you suddenly introducing a man to me?"

“And blind dates are outdated, okay?” Sylvie said to Nina on the phone.

Of course, she dared to tease Nina because of her good relationship with her. She, Sherlyn and Nina were friends. Sherlyn was the oldest and she was the youngest, but they both were straight forward and candid.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 629 Seeing Her Success and Splendidness

Nina, who had been ridiculed by Sylvie, who was in Cameron 's arms helplessly, explained to herself, “Aren't you always burying yourself in those soap operas and romantic novels all day long? Don't you desire love?”

“No, thanks.” Sylvie replied insipidly.

Nina laughed loudly, “Okay, I also feel that the other party is quite a good person, so I wanted to introduce him to you.” “Of course, I want to ask for your opinion first. If you are unwilling...”

Before Nina could finish her words, Sylvie replied, “Milady, I'm not willing, and I don't agree either. You'd better dispel this idea and enjoy your date.”

Sylvie said this quickly and refused the blind date firmly. Seeing this, Nina could only give up.

After hanging up the phone, Sylvie let out a long sigh of relief, but she was very puzzled. Why did her boss suddenly want to introduce a man to her?

Sylvie didn't know that her boss was coaxed by Cameron, and she didn't expect that Cameron was the one who proposed this idea.

The man standing in front of the elevator was Lucien. At first, he did not notice the girl in the corner of the elevator. After the elevator rose, he was amused by her words, and then he glanced at her.

However, as soon as he saw her, he recognized her as Nina's assistant.

He thought about it again. It turned out that she complained about her boss, Nina.

Now that Cameron was with Nina, how could Cameron let Nina distract her attention to introducing a man to her assistant? Lucien wondered, "Is Cameron a bit too quick in bed?"

Thinking of this, Lucien couldn't help laughing.

Of course, he didn't know that he was the other protagonist of this blind date. He thought that Nina's assistant was such a funny girl.

Especially her calling Nina "Milady", which made his lips curl up.

Sylvie did not recognize Lucien because what she was thinking about now was Nina's oddity. She did not pay much attention to the person in the elevator and left after arriving at her own floor.

Lucien was on the same floor as Cameron. They booked the whole floor so as not to be disturbed or recognized by irrelevant people. After all, Nina was coming to Cameron's room.

Since Nina came to Cameron's room, she had not gotten out of bed except for lunch.

When it was almost time for the activity in the afternoon, Nina had to go back to her room to do her makeup. Cameron unwillingly held Nina in his arms and did not want Nina to leave.

Although they would see each other again in the evening, Cameron was reluctant to let Nina leave him for even a second.

Nina was so anxious. Sylvie was frantically urging her, saying that the cosmetician and stylist would arrive soon. If Nina didn't come down soon, Sylvie wouldn't be able to explain Nina's disappearance to others, and it would easily arouse others' suspicion.

"If you continue like this, we won't see each other again." Nina, who was being kissed to the point she was gasping for breath, glared angrily at Cameron and protested.

Cameron ignored her annoyance and looked at her and said fondly, "I'll go to the event site to see you later."

This had totally hit Nina's panic button. "Don't! Please don't! You will be recognized. Sherlyn said that you are now a popular person in the entertainment industry because of your outstanding appearance and temperament."

There were a lot of fans and media at the event. If Cameron showed up, she was afraid that it would cause a huge sensation.

Cameron compromised. "I'll stay in the car."

"Whatever. Don't let anyone take a picture of you." Nina went to get out of his hand. "Let me go. I'm leaving."

Cameron moved closer to her and asked rudely, "Kiss me again." Nina was speechless. She really wanted to ask some women about her boyfriend. Oh, no, what should she do when her husband was too clingy?

But now she was in a hurry, so she had to lean on him and kiss his beautiful lips. Only then did Cameron loosen his hand around her waist. Nina opened the door, ran away, and hurried back to her room.

Sylvie heaved a sigh of relief, "If you don't come back soon, I'm going to be too anxious to cry." Just now, the makeup artist and stylist said that they had entered the elevator. She was so anxious.

Nina rolled her eyes at her. "You're that weak? When you resolutely refused the blind date I arranged for you, you weren't weak at all."

It was fine if Nina didn't mention it, but when she did, Sylvie became angry. "I still want to ask you, why did you suddenly introduce a man to me?"

Nina said casually, "It's Cameron's suggestion. He wants to introduce you to a friend of his."

Since Sylvie was unwilling to go on blind dates, and Lucien didn't know about it, Nina didn't mention Lucien's name in order to avoid awkwardness when the two met in the future.

Sylvie was simply speechless. It turned out that her Prince Charming, Cameron, had proposed to introduce a man to her. Why was Cameron so warm-hearted? He just needed to keep a cool attitude.

Now, his image of Prince Charming had been destroyed in her heart.

Sylvie said in a muffled voice, "I really thank him for caring about my love life so much."

Nina laughed and then complained about Cameron with her. "To be honest, I also think he is very boring."

Sylvie snorted and said, "Then why did you still listen to him? You should have directly rejected him."

Nina didn't say anything. She also felt that Lucien's personal conditions were quite attractive. He was handsome, rich. Moreover, he must be a nice guy; otherwise, it would be impossible for him to be friends with Cameron for so many years, right?

Therefore, Nina hoped that such an outstanding man could be left to her own friends. Consequently, she had made up her mind to call Sylvie.

The makeup artist and stylist soon arrived. The two of them then worked hard. After Nina was done and took a few pictures, she quickly brought Sylvie to the event location.

The venue could be said to be filled with huge crowds of people, and it was sufficient to show how popular Nina was now.

Nina, on the other hand, was also doing her best to make propaganda for the brand with a bright smile on her face.

In the car across the road, Cameron silently watched the bustling scene in the mall and watched the woman he loved being favored by people.

Beside him, Lucien was so bored. "May I ask what you can see from so far away?"

Cameron had taken Lucien here. Nina's activity was in the mall, while their car was parked across the road. From such a distance, they could only see the people inside and outside the mall. They could not see Nina at all.

Lucien felt that Cameron was crazy to wait for Nina here. Wouldn't it be better to wait leisurely and comfortably in the hotel?

Cameron did not pay attention to Lucien's complaint. He just watched the lively scene outside in silence, which showed Nina's glory and honor. It was her success after putting in all her efforts.

In the past, he had only seen her being liked gradually in all kinds of media outlets. This was the first time that he was not far away and had personally felt this kind of enthusiasm and popularity.

It was great. The woman he loved should be the center of attention because she was worth it.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 630 Temporarily Change a Place to Eat

Lucien, who was so bored, had to find a topic to talk to Cameron himself. He instantly thought of Sylvie in the elevator.

He couldn't stop smiling and said to Cameron, "I just met Nina's assistant in the elevator."

Cameron looked back at him in surprise and then raised his eyebrows slightly. He and Nina, who had deliberately arranged for Lucien and Sylvie to meet each other and they failed. However, Lucien and Sylvie would accidentally meet in the elevator. He was so surprised.

Cameron asked lightly, "Do you know her assistant?" Lucien rolled his eyes at Cameron and said, "Of course, Nina is so popular. Isn't her assistant always by Nina's side?"

Sometimes, those agency shots or media reporters would take pictures of Nina's assistant, and he saw Nina and her assistant at the event several times.

Thus, he still had some impression of Nina's assistant.
"Oh." Cameron gave a meaningful word and stopped talking.

Lucien added, "Her assistant is quite interesting. She complained that Nina had intended to introduce her to a man in the elevator. What she said was very interesting."

Cameron glanced at him. He was surprised that Lucien had overheard this. However, Lucien didn't know that he was the other person involved in this blind date.

However, Cameron did not reveal anything and continued, "She just made a phone call. Why do you find her interesting? Do you like her?"

Lucien was shocked.
What? He just thought that the assistant was interesting. How come that would lead to the conclusion that he liked her?

Cameron asked again, "Think about it. When did you care so much about a woman?"

Lucien was silent. Then he muttered, "That's true..."

Cameron calmed down and said lightly, "If you like her, let's have dinner together in the evening and let you get to know each other."

Originally, Cameron had intended to create an opportunity for Lucien and Sylvie to get to know each other. He was surprised that Lucien would have a deep impression of Sylvie, which may be the best destiny.

Although Sylvie said that she disliked blind dates, if she really understood Lucien, she would be attracted to him.

Lucien asked, "Aren't you going to get even with Andrew and Jillian tonight?"

Lucien heard that Nina was going to have dinner with Andrew tonight, so Lucien obviously had to follow her and make a comprehensive arrangement. So, Cameron didn't have time to introduce him to Sylvie.

Cameron replied, "We'll finish it as soon as possible. It won't affect our meal."

Nina and Andrew's dinner was just a trap. It certainly wouldn't take long. After dealing with this matter, they would have dinner together officially.

"All right." Lucien agreed. There was a faint expectation in his heart that he could communicate more with Nina's assistant.

After the end of the platform event, Nina left an advertisement item for the brand staff and had another live broadcast. By the time it ended, it was already evening.

She returned to the hotel with Sylvie, took off her makeup and changed into a more comfortable outfit, then went out to meet Andrew.

She first called Andrew before she left, while Andrew had already arrived at the restaurant that he had booked in advance.

He had chosen the restaurant, and Jillian had already arranged the people. She had bribed the employees at both the entrance of the restaurant and inside the restaurant, intending to let them record the scene of Nina and Andrew having dinner together so that it would be easier to spread the rumor that Nina and Andrew had an affair.

Jillian herself was instead in the private room next to them, intending to find out everything about their conversation.

Before Nina arrived, Jillian and Andrew were in a private room. When Nina called, Andrew pulled Jillian down from his legs.

Jillian snorted and sat down beside him to watch Andrew turn on the speaker on his phone.

However, Jillian didn't expect that Nina would say apologetically at the other end of the line, "Sorry, Mr. Sonfield, let's go somewhere else for dinner?"

Jillian and Andrew did not expect Nina's reaction. The two of them looked at each other and were stunned.

However, Andrew reacted quickly and asked Nina, "Why do you suddenly want to change the place to eat?"

Nina sighed and said, "Alas, perhaps I was busy today, causing my stomach to feel slightly uncomfortable. I thought that we should choose a new restaurant with light taste, otherwise, I'm worried my stomach would hurt and I wouldn't be able to shoot normally tomorrow."

"Well..." Nina kept using her stomach problems as an excuse and Andrew had no way of rejecting her suggestion.

If he didn't agree and insisted on forcing Nina to eat here, he would definitely look very selfish.

So he thought for a moment and agreed. "OK, you book a restaurant. I'll come to see you."

As soon as Andrew finished speaking, Jillian tugged on his shirt, indicating that he shouldn't have agreed to change the restaurant, because all her arrangements would have been in vain.

But since Andrew had spoken, he could no longer go back on his word. Moreover, Nina had already told him the name of a restaurant, so he could only agree in a hurry and hang up the phone.

As soon as Andrew hung up the phone, Jillian shouted angrily, "Why did you agree to change the restaurant?"

Andrew was quite speechless. "Didn't you hear it all? She said her stomach wasn't good and wanted to eat something light.

As a gentleman, am I forcing her to eat here?"

Jillian angrily slammed the table and stood up. "Why can't you force her to eat here? Why do you care about her feelings?" "What does her stomachache have to do with you? So, what if she goes to the hospital again?"

"Andrew, you really like her, right?"

"I knew it! Nina knows how to seduce men well!"

Jillian swore. She didn't listen to Andrew's explanation and directly said that Andrew had feelings for Nina.

Andrew simply packed his things and stood up. "Whatever. I'm going to the restaurant Nina mentioned now."

“Stop right there!” Jillian pulled him back in exasperation.

“Now that Nina suddenly changed the place, I don’t have any arrangements. When the time comes, you can only rely on yourself to take some photos for me,” Jillian said as she took out a small glass tube from her bag and handed it to Andrew.

“Add this to her drinks if it’s necessary. I promise that she will obey you, so that you can take as many photos as you want.” Jillian originally didn’t want Andrew to know that she had such a plan, afraid that it would affect Andrew’s impression on her. She thought that she would secretly put the drug in Nina’s glass before Nina arrived, but she never thought that Nina would change to another place.

She could only give Andrew an order. Andrew was shocked by her actions. He stared at the glass bottle in his hand and didn’t speak for a long time.

He knew that Jillian was vicious, but he didn’t expect her to be so nasty.

If Nina really fell into the trap by mistake and was photographed, her life would be ruined.
