

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 661 Report

The most embarrassing thing was that Lucien caught her before she fell. The warmth of his palm on her skin made her heart race.

However, that didn't stop the water from spilling all over her. When she looked at her chest, she felt her cheeks grew hot.

Seeing that, Lucien hurried to his car and took out the blanket, which temporarily saved her from the awkward situation.

But just as Nina said, he must have seen everything.

Sylvie covered her face and flopped into sofa, trying to hide herself from the rest of the world.

Nina teased, "Should I call to confirm? And make him take responsibility?"

Sylvie jumped up from the sofa and called out, "No!"

One night stand was nothing strange these days. Plus, he didn't do anything to her. She just felt embarrassed that he might have seen the pattern of her bra, that was all.

Nina added, "I think he actually wants to do it though."

"You are kidding." Sylvie fell back into the sofa.

Nina moved closer to her and asked, "Do you have feelings for him?" "No." Sylvie turned over to face the wall.

"Hey, a rich and attractive guy asked you to fake date with him. Isn't that obvious enough? Can't you just be an adult and go for it?" Nina suggested.

Other women would pounce on him without hesitation. She didn't know why her assistant was hesitating.

Sylvie started developing a headache because of Nina's nagging.

She got up from the sofa and ran to the door. "It's getting late. Gotta go. See you tomorrow."

With that, she rushed out of Nina's room.

"Scaredy-cat!" Nina shouted from behind

Hearing that, Sylvie didn't know whether to be angry or happy. She knew Nina said that to prod her into pursuing her happiness.

But she simply couldn't muster up the courage to hit on someone who was so outstanding and so out of her league. She had always been conservative and this was not something she would do.

Sylvie did walk out of her comfort zone once, though. Years ago, she made a confession to her crush at his birthday party but got rejected in front of everyone. That traumatized her.

Sylvie got back to her room and took a quick shower. After much pondering, she sent Lucien a message.

"When are you leaving? I'll wash the blanket and return it to you."

Lucien replied almost immediately. "Gotta fly tomorrow. Just keep it. You can give it back to me next time.

Sylvie stared at the text and sighed. Next time?

Please don't. She was embarrassed enough.

In the end, she typed, "Okay, have a safe flight."

"Thanks." Lucien responded.

He wasn't pushing her. He had already heard that Sylvie would ask for leave for her father's birthday next month. He would figure out what to do by then. Maybe he could even follow her home and meet her parent?

That seemed a little inappropriate. But it was still necessary to prepare a birthday gift for her father. After all, Sylvie was still his nominal girlfriend.

In Riverside City.

Melanie woke up on Mr. Fletcher's bed. Memories from last night flooded her mind. She went crazy after realizing what had happened and went at Mr. Fletcher. He called the police and had her arrested.

Rebecca Young and Allstar didn't send people to bail her out because they couldn't afford to go against Mr. Fletcher.

Melanie threw an ashtray at him and kicked him in the crotch. Mr. Fletcher was badly hurt and said that he would make sure that Melanie stayed in prison for the rest of her life.

Rebecca and Allstar didn't want to be implicated in this.

Melanie had no choice but to call Lucien. Of course, Lucien had already blocked her number. Melanie called his office line.

Lucien's assistant answered it and then passed the words on to Lucien.

He was about to board the plane in Jamelaton Airport and didn't have the time to handle this. He thought about it and called Cameron. After discussion, they decided to help Melanie for the one last time for their tutor's sake. They planned to book a flight ticket for her and send her away.

Cameron couldn't care less about this whole Melanie mess, so he sends his new assistant Steven Emerson to take care of it.

Before Steven left, Cameron called Nina and reported the situation to her. Although he knew Nina wouldn't mind him sending someone to bail Melanie out, he still wanted to tell her about it first.

By doing that, he was showing due respect to Nina.

When another woman was involved, she had every right to know about the in and out of it.

Steven went to the police station with Camcien Lifetech's lawyer and a flight ticket in his hand. After being freed, Melanie immediately asked, "Where is Lucien? Where is Cameron? Why aren't they here?"

"Mr. Fowler is not in Riverside City. Mr. Dauster doesn't want to see you, so he sent me to deal with this matter."

Cameron had told Steven that he didn't have to be nice to Melanie, and that was exactly what he did.

"Here is the flight ticket Mr. Dauster bought for you. The driver will take you back to pack up and then drive you to the airport."

Melanie was exasperated at the fact that Cameron and Lucien were planning on dismissing her with a flight ticket. This was an insult!

She wouldn't let them get away with it.

Her body was tarnished by Mr. Fletcher's filthy hands. None of them helped her out. She was not going to swallow it. They couldn't treat her this way!

It was all Cameron and Lucien's fault! If they had helped her, she wouldn't have been raped! She hated the two to the core.

Melanie stepped forward, snatched the flight ticket from Steven's hands and tore it to pieces. "Go tell Cameron that I won't let this slip!" She said viciously.

Steven shrugged and replied contemptuously, "You sure about that?"

Steven didn't say that because he despises her or anything. It was just that no one in Riverside City could afford to go against Cameron and Lucien nowadays. What was Melanie going to do? She didn't have any leverage.

Angered by Steven's words, Melanie raised her hand in an attempt to slap him. Steven grabbed her by the wrist and stopped her. Melanie winced in pain and cried, "Let go of me!"

Steven had never met someone so unreasonable like Melanie. "Are you trying to assault me right in front of the police station? Mr. Dauster shouldn't have bailed you out," Steven said.

"Who do you think you are? You have no right to say that!" Melanie was going crazy again.

Steven shook off her hands and said coldly, "I know very well who I am. But I think you should let go of yOUR ego."

With that, he left with the lawyer. The driver stayed and sent the infuriated Melanie back.

After Steven returned to Camcien Lifetech, he told Cameron what happened at the police station. "Well done," Cameron said to Steven.

A person like Melanie didn't deserve to be respected. Steven asked, "But she tore up the flight ticket. What should we do? Book another one for her?"

"It's her own choice. Let her stay, then. Her impenitence will surely teach her a lesson," Cameron's face darkened as he said.

Melanie's insolent attitude and disposition bothered Cameron. Had Jillian's failure taught her nothing?

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 662 Cupid's Game

Melanie's father, also Cameron's former tutor, heard about Melanie's situation and called Cameron immediately.

"Leaving Riverside City is her best choice now. I'm married, and I have always made it clear that we could never be together.

Lucien has also met someone who he wants to get married to." Cameron didn't mince the word.

His tutor sounded shocked. "When did that happen? How come I never heard him talk about it? "

Before Melanie's mess, Lucien kept in frequent contact with his tutor because of her. So, his tutor used to know everything about his relationship status.

"Recently," Cameron told him truthfully, "It was love at the first sight. I think the girl he likes is great. They will go through thick and thin together and have a lifetime of happiness."

Cameron's words shattered the tutor's hopes. His last sentence also insinuated that Melanie was just some fair-weather friend.

Although he and Lucien's business had taken off, there was still possibility that the situation would spiral. If something happened to their company one day, Cameron was sure that Nina and Sylvie would be there for them.

But Melanie would never.

Melanie was spoiled, selfish and wayward. If he and Lucien didn't have such an achievement, they might not even attract a second glance from her.

His tutor naturally heard what he just said. After a long silence, he sighed, "The validation from you says a lot. That girl must be really nice.

In that case, I will try to persuade Melanie."

Cameron said, "That would be great. If she keeps this up, she could lose everything."

If she didn't listen to her father's persuasion and stayed, Rebecca would make Melanie's life here a living hell.

However, Melanie's final choice disappointed both Cameron and Lucien. She was so spoiled that she wouldn't listen to her own father's words. The more he persuaded her, the more stubborn she was. She said she would stay in Riverside City and be someone who would look up to in the entertainment industry.

She also stated that she would make Cameron and Lucien regret how they had ignored her.

The singing show Nina had participated in caused quite a stir on the Internet once it started airing. Several headlines were positive comments about Nina's singing skill.

Back when she first announced that she was going to be in this show, some people criticized that her showing up would lead to a sharp decline in the ratings of this show.

Others didn't believe that Nina could sing. They thought that Nina was nothing but an eye candy. She would make a fool of herself if she took part in that show.

The strange thing was that the usually straightforward Nina never said anything for herself this time.

At that time, everyone just thought that Nina didn't have the confidence to defend herself. After the show aired, however, they realized that Nina was trying to prove them wrong with her actions.

That did shut the haters up. Although there were still some of them trying to troll on her, the hate comments were instantly overwhelmed by the ones supporting Nina.

Nina was very satisfied with the public opinion and accepted all the compliments that everyone had given her. She also thought that her performance was great. Only she knew how much emotion she put into it.

Nina was anxiously waiting for Cameron's call when her phone buzzed. "I didn't know that I had hurt you so bad." Cameron blamed himself.

Nina was a tough woman and never showed her vulnerability to him. That was why he didn't know when he broke her heart into million pieces. When he heard the song, Cameron felt that the guilt was eating him up.

Nina chuckled. "Do you want to hear the truth?"

"Of course."

"When I decided to participate in this show, I swore to forget you and move on."

That's why her tone was so heartbroken.

What made people empathize with her singing was the all emotions she put into the song in the first place.

Her passion of love, vulnerability, and pain were all in it.

Nina's words reminded him of the first time they met when he came back. He thought that she just said that she didn't love him anymore was because she was mad at him.

He thought she didn't mean it. Now, he realized that she really did give up on him at that time.

"I'm sorry," Cameron mumbled.

"I don't need your apology," Nina said softly. "We are happy now. The pain I felt has long faded away." "I think all the toil we've been through is Cupid's game, The timing is just right." Nina added.

They might not have gotten back together if Cameron had come back a few years earlier or a few years later.

"Yeah, everything just came about right," Cameron repeated.

Cameron was not someone who would dwell on the past. All he could do was to love her with all his heart in the long years to come to make up for the years they had lost.

True love was not passing infatuation. It made people cherish each other because they know how hard it was to be in each other's life.

Having been through all these, he realized how precious Nina was.

Nina returned to Riverside City two weeks in advance to give Cameron a surprise. In order to do that, she had worked out a detailed plan. Instead of taking a direct flight to Riverside City, she would board the plane that would land at a small airport next to Riverside City. Then, Sherlyn would send a driver to take her there.

Sherlyn went crazy when she heard Nina plan. "Oh my gosh, are you really that in love? Surprises after surprises. Aren't you tired of it?"

You are a loving couple, not James Bond and Bond Girl.” Nina giggled, “But it’s so exciting. I just love the fluttery feeling.”

Sherlyn said helplessly, “I’m too old for this. I don’t want surprises, not even the tiniest ones. Unfortunately, life never goes the way I hope it would go. Being your agent makes my life similar to a roller coaster ride.”

Nina teased, “I thought your heart is already weathered enough to take it.”

Sherlyn said solemnly. “I have something to tell you when you are back.”

“Can’t you tell me on the phone now?” Nina asked.

“No,” Sherlyn refused immediately, “I’ll tell you when we meet. What if you can’t take it?”

The seriousness in Sherlyn’s tone made Nina really curious. She wished she could fly back to Riverside City right this second.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 663 Ruined Surprise

Since Nina had finished shooting most of the scenes of the TV show, the director granted her a few days off. Therefore, she was not on a tight schedule this time.

It was almost noon when Nina arrived in Riverside City. She heard from Lucien that Cameron had been busy with his work these days and probably still in the lab at this time. Hence, Nina decided that she would go check on him tonight after he had done all the experiments.

She went back to her house, took a shower to clean up, and headed to Emelia’s residence to have lunch with her.

The size of Emelia’s baby bump stunned Nina. “Your belly has grown so much since I last saw you. How long has it been? A month?”

Ever since the meet and greet for “Princess Leilania”, Nina and Emelia only got to connect with each other via phone call or face time. Emelia’s baby bump was barely noticeable before Nina left Riverside City. This time, however, it was like Emelia had stuffed a balloon under her shirt.

“Yeah, the twins grow really quickly,” Sitting on the sofa, Emelia stroked her belly and said with a smile.

“The doctor said that I might have to be admitted to the hospital in a while and stay hospitalized until delivery.”

Nina’s eyes softened. She stroked Emelia’s face and said, “Sweetie, I know it’s hard for you. Thank you for bearing my babies.”

Julian glanced at Nina and said, “Do you know what you are saying? They’re not your babies.”

Julian had also said ‘thank you’ to Emelia countless times. Every time Julian saw Emelia walk around in a gingerly fashion because she didn’t want to accidentally hurt the little two lives in her growing pregnant belly, Julian’s heart ached for her. He wished that the babies could come out already and end this suffering right this second.

Nina snorted, “So we are not biological related. They are still my godchildren. ”

Nina leaned on Emelia’s shoulder as she said, and Emelia just let her be. Seeing that, Julian was speechless.

“What were they doing sitting so close to each other?” He thought to himself.

Just then, the housekeeper called them to meal. Julian thoughtfully helped Emelia up from the sofa, carefully escorting her to the dining room.

Behind the two, Nina rolled her eyes at Julian. Was Julian being jealous of her? Again? She was Emelia’s best friend! When the babies are born, was he going to be jealous of them for hogging Emelia’s attention?

At the table, Emelia said that she wanted to give Nina the copyright of the romance comedy she wrote based on Nina as a wedding gift. Nina said, “Thanks, I’ll take it then.”

Emelia had put so much effort into writing this novel. The most respectful thing to do was to accept the gift. Even if she said that she wanted to pay for it, Emelia would refuse it. Their friendship was way over this.

Emelia smiled and said, "You're welcome, this is the only proper wedding gift I can think of."

She had talent in writing. Being able to use her own words to retell the love story between Nina and Cameron and make it into a book was the sincerest gift she could give her.

Nina blew her a kiss. "Love you."

Julian could only turn a blind eye to them. He almost died of jealousy.

"Where is Cameron? Why is she plaguing my wife all day?" Julian was screaming in his heart.

Julian asked, "Do you and Cameron plan to adapt it into a movie or something?"

Nina shook her head. "Personally, I don't want to."

She turned to Emelia and explained, "I'm afraid that the haters will troll on me."

Julian snorted, "Afraid? That's new."

Nina had always been tough and rugged. If the haters trolled her, she would troll them back harder. Now she was saying that she was afraid of the trolls?

Nina said sternly, "It's fine if they troll just me. But this is about Cameron as well. I don't want those haters to taint our love story."

Julian was quite impressed by Nina's words. He never thought that she could be so considerate.

Emelia nodded in agreement. "Then don't do it."

Nina laughed as she said thoughtfully: “Maybe when our children grow up, we can let them act in it. At that time, everyone might have already forgotten about this story. No trolls will make hate comments because of me by then.”

“Sounds perfect,” Emelia seconded the idea before Julian could say anything.
He pursed his lips and remained silent.

He thought, “My children will never have to go into the showbiz. Our family business will suffice them for their lifetimes. There’s no need for them to earn a living in the entertainment industry.”

Julian could never have thought that his son really became a global A-list star and his family’s business was taken over by his precious daughter.

Although he didn’t want his daughter’s life to be stuffed by work and business, he could talk his son out of acting. Finally, he gave in and let his two children pursue their respective dreams.

He could never though that his business acumen would be passed on to his daughter.

After lunch, Nina chatted with Emelia for some more. “How long are you planning to stay?” Emelia asked.

“A couple days, I guess,” Nina answered.

Emelia asked with concern, “Will you go to see Cameron’s family then?”

Nina shrugged. “I don’t know. It’s his say. I’m fine with whatever he plans. I can hide from them forever.” Emelia replied, “You have nothing to hide.

Once they get to know you, they will find out how great you are. Then, they will treat you with sincerity.” Nina giggled.

Emelia heard that Colleen had took the initiative to apologize to Nina. That move said a lot about Colleen.

She must be a forthright person who didn’t want to hold grudges or dwell on the past.

Nina sighed, "I hope so." If Colleen could do that, Nina would also return the favor with 100% sincerity.

Because of the pregnancy, Emelia was easily drowsy and need to take a nap after lunch. So, Nina didn't stay long.

On the way back home, Nina had this sudden craving for coffee. So, she parked the car at a cafe and went to buy it.

Soon after she left, her name made the headline. The title "meeting Nina Sanchez at a cafe" became trending.

Nina didn't expect this and was totally shocked.

She thought that her celebrity disguise was good enough. She was wearing a mask, a hat, and a pair of sunglasses. Plus, she left as soon as she had the coffee. She didn't know why people could still recognize her.

If Cameron saw this headline, he would know that she had returned to Riverside City. She went through all the trouble to hide it from him just to give him a surprise.

But now?

It was more like a ruined surprise.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 664 I'll Deal with You Later

As expected, Cameron's phone call came not long after she arrived home.

As soon as Nina picked up the phone, Cameron's accusation came to her ears, "The first thing you did when you got back to Riverside City was not to look for your husband but to catch up with your friends, and I didn't even know you were coming back. Mrs. Dauster, how brilliant."

Nina hurriedly explained, "I thought you were busy right now, so I'll tell you after you get off work and give you a surprise... Who'd have thought I'd get caught while getting a cup of coffee."

"Huh." Cameron gave her this disgruntled sneer back, showing how irritated he was.

It was ridiculous that his wife was back from out of town, and he, the husband, had learned about it from the news.

Nina knew he would be angry, so she softened her voice and coaxed, "It's all my fault; you can punish me any way you want..."

After all, the man on the other side of the phone is the one she has loved since she was a young girl, so how could Nina not know how to tame him? The softness of her tone, a bit of coaxing and teasing made him stop being angry.

The woman's soft, teasing voice made Cameron's mouth go dry for a while, and since he hadn't seen her for a long time, he couldn't help but raise his hand and tug at the tie around his neck, then solemnly declare, "No matter how busy I am, I'll be there if you call me."

God knows he had just surfed the internet in his spare time at work, and as soon as he turned on his phone, he saw that she was on the hot topic.

That coffee shop was Riverside City's, and she was back? She had come back. Cameron didn't know what kind of mood he was in for a moment, annoyed and jubilant at the same time.

Nina nestled into the sofa and continued to soothe the man on the other end, "I know how you feel about me, but I don't want to be the Helen of Troy either; I still want you to be able to balance your work and your life."

Nina meant what she said, and Cameron knew she was thinking of him more than anything else.

So, he simply lowered his voice and said, "Wait for me at my place."

Nina could hear that he was no longer angry and knew how intimate he was being, and her heart stirred, but she grunted, "I don't have your key; how can I get in?"

Cameron explained, "I changed the electronic lock; the code is your birthday and mine."

He changed the electronic locks after the two were married because, for one thing, now that they were husband and wife, they would be living together in the future, and it was inconvenient that she didn't have a key to his house there at the moment.

Secondly, he knew that she always forgot her keys, and by changing the combination lock, he could prevent this problem, taking her into account in every way.

Nina smiled, the man's thoughtfulness amused her, and she couldn't help but tease him, "Yo, Mr. Dauster is so thoughtful."

Cameron grunted, "Naughty girl, I'll deal with you later." He then lowered his voice and demanded, "Didn't you say I could punish you in any way I wanted?"

The flirtation in his low tone was evident, and Nina was not an inexperienced girl who didn't understand anything, so how could she not understand his words?

However, she was not shy and reserved but replied, "Sure, I'll wait for you."

She hadn't seen him for half a month, and she missed him and longed for him; otherwise, why would she have returned to him?

The love of a grown-up man and woman is not only a spiritual bond but also a physical need for each other.

On the other end of the phone, Cameron had a meeting to attend later, but because of Nina's early return and the titillating tone of her voice on the phone, he passed the panel directly to his assistant, Steven Emerson.

Steven panicked, "Mr. Dauster, I can't"

Cameron cut off his words, "Man up! Stop staying YOU CANT."

Steven was speechless.

He said that he couldn't chair this conference. However, he had attended various meetings with his tutor in school and helped him chair seminars or academic exchanges, but now he was in a big company like Camcien Lifetech.

He had only been working as an assistant for a few days, and he didn't know if he was up to the job, but Cameron asked him to conduct a meeting, and he was afraid of making mistakes.

He was not prepared to be asked to run a meeting in such an urgent situation. Cameron had already packed up his things and had the car keys in his hand.

He looked straight at Steven and said, "This meeting is a test for you; if you do well, your internship can end early, and I will let the personnel transfer you; if not, your job will end here."

After Cameron finished speaking, he walked away. The good thing was that he had already completed the essential experimental process, all that was left was the data summary and reporting, and he believed that Steven could do a good job.

As the person chosen by Lucien, Steven should be capable enough to do this simple job well.

If he couldn't do a good job, it would only mean that Lucien's choice of candidate was somewhat poor, and indirectly, it would also mean that Steven was not qualified of being his assistant; after all, this was just the beginning, and the job would only become more challenging one after another.

Steven couldn't believe that Cameron had left like that. He froze before coming back to his senses, though he broke down and still started organising the language and wording for the meeting.

Fortunately, he had been with Cameron during the whole process of the experiment. Otherwise, he would have had to leave this time.

But why had his boss suddenly left his job? His boss didn't seem like such an unpredictable person, did he?

Hadn't he just come out of the lab and looked at his phone?

Steven remembered that he had also looked at his phone, and all he could think of was the news that his goddess Nina was out and about in Riverside City.

He always felt that Cameron's mysterious wife was most likely his goddess. Should he congratulate his boss or treat him as his love rival?

It seemed he had no choice but to congratulate his boss; whom was he treating his boss like a rival?

Cameron drove back to his house, and as soon as he entered, he was met with a warm, soft body in his arms; he didn't even have time to take off his clothes, and the two tangled passionately in the foyer.

"I miss you so much..." the woman's wooing amid her ecstasy broke all his self-control, and he tightened his arms around her slender waist, wanting to embed her whole body into his.

The two of them did not even go upstairs.

When all the charm had dissipated, Cameron wrapped his arms around the woman in his arms and nestled her on the sofa for a gentle kiss.

They were a perfect illustration of the saying that absence makes the heart grow fonder. Cameron's mobile phone rings, and it's Colleen, calling on video.

Nina thought about their state and buried herself deeper in his arms, "What now?" Wouldn't Colleen know what they had just done if the video was on?

Cameron laughed at her panicked look and said, "What? I can hang up first."

Nina looked up from his arms and bit her lip helplessly.

She'd been so nervous she'd thought she had to answer it.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 665 What Changed You

Cameron hung up the video Colleen was calling from and typed a few words, "Can't answer right now, call back later."

He then tossed the phone aside and embraced the person in his arms as he continued to kiss her.

Nina tilted her head to avoid it, "We'd better hurry up and washed up while you call your mother back." "No rush." Cameron held her down and was once again reckless.

By the time Cameron returned the video call to his mother, Colleen, most of the afternoon had passed, and Nina had tucked under the covers to catch up on her sleep while Cameron was herded into the study to return the call and be fully dressed.

Insatiably, Cameron changed his clothes as she had requested and took the phone to the study, looking as if he had just been concentrating on his work.

When the video call came through, Colleen, on the other end, spoke first, somewhat anxiously, "Cameron, I saw on the news that Nina is back in Riverside City. Your dad and I were thinking of inviting her over for dinner tonight. What do you think?"

Since her attitude towards Nina had changed and she had found out that her son had even gotten his license, Colleen thought about meeting Nina officially. Although she and Nina had communicated via WhatsApp and wiped the slate clean, she still didn't say it face-to-face, so she felt a bit insincere.

So, when she saw that Nina was in Riverside City, Colleen immediately discussed the matter with Randall, who naturally had no problem with it.

But after asking Cameron this question, Colleen suddenly leaned in closer to the camera and stared closely at Cameron and asked, "What happened to your neck?"

Cameron looked at his neck through the video on his phone and saw a significant red mark where some little woman had forced him to wear his shirt, but he hadn't buttoned it up as far as he should have, thus revealing the mark near his collarbone.

At this point, he was confronted with his own mother's questioning and was a little speechless for a moment.

"And your lips—" Colleen was about to say how the lip was also broken a little, but then she understood in a second what was wrong with her son and immediately stopped the conversation quickly.

No wonder the first time she called the video, she was hung up on, and thinking about it, she said with some embarrassment, "I didn't interrupt you just now, did I?"

Cameron kept his composure, "No."

"Oh." Colleen didn't want to discuss this with her son, so she hurried to the subject, "So, what do you think of what I just proposed?"

Cameron returned, "It shouldn't be a problem."

He didn't know Nina was coming back today, and he had just been so busy with her that he hadn't thought about taking her back to see his parents, but he was sure Nina wouldn't object.

Colleen was displeased, "What do you mean there shouldn't be any problem? Is Nina not with you? You should ask her and give me a definite answer so I can prepare the ingredients."

Cameron clears his throat, "She's asleep."

Colleen understood right away.

She instantly blushed and said, "Since you said it's okay, your father and I'll prepare the food."

After that, Colleen hurriedly hung up the phone, unable to look straight at her son's bitten lip.

How intense it had to be.

She had just squeezed her phone to calm down for a short while when she received a message from Cameron on her phone.

“Dear Mother, since we are now a family and want to keep this relationship going well, allow me to say a few words first.”

Colleen was used to this style of her son's, he had been like this since he was a little boy, strict to being a stickler, but there was nothing wrong with saying what needed to be told in advance.

Colleen knew that what he was going to say had something to do with Nina, but as he said, since they were a family from now on, it was always time to look on the bright side, and she would take his words into serious consideration.

Cameron then sent another message, “Nina was admitted to hospital a while ago with a stomach issue, so please try to prepare some milder dishes for the evening. Also, please don't bring up the topic of kids; we don't have plans to have children for five years.”

“She and I have had a hard time getting back together, and I want to have a good time just for us first, to make up for all those years we missed out on the day-to-day.”

Colleen had been upset about the five years but couldn't help but let out a soft sigh when she saw the paragraph Cameron then posted.

Her son was right, too, and it somewhat broke her heart.

The two of them had indeed been missing years together and should live for themselves first.

With that in mind, she also sent Cameron a reply back, “I know.”

Cameron then sent back to her, “Thanks, love you.”

It came with a kiss emoji.

Colleen was so shocked to see her son say something like that and send an emoji that she almost dropped her phone.

She knew that her son was raised to be experienced and steady, which was an excellent way of saying he was not cute, and he had never said anything like loving her or Randall, let alone sent a somewhat cute emoji-like that.

So, what changed her somewhat insensitive son?

The love that Nina gave him, right?

Nina was a passionate and outgoing person, and it must have been under her influence that her son had become so unstinting in his expressions of love.

Colleen was right; Nina had invisibly influenced Cameron.

When he first started with Nina, Cameron had been the same kind of quiet and inexpressive person.

“Cameron, love needs to be spoken out, not just acted out.”

“It’s just as important to say it out as to do it.”

“That’s why I need you to say you love me every day.”

“Come on, say it, say you love me.”

“If you don’t repeat it, I will ignore you.”

“Cameron, I love you; I love you; I love you. Now, is it your turn to say it.”

The young Cameron was so pestered that he had no choice but to comply, hugging her and saying love to her repeatedly until she was satisfied.

Over time, the word “love” became less difficult for him to utter.

Colleen happily shared this slight change in her son with Randall, who seriously said, “You see, that’s how a good relationship, where two people love each other, can make a difference positively.”

Even Colleen was moved to exclaim, “Love is something that does require a willing heart.”

She had tried forcibly to set Cameron up with Michelle, but Cameron had never even looked at Michelle in all those years.

With Nina, he had utterly overturned her perception of him as a mother.

In future, she would never be that obnoxious mother and mother-in-law again.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 666 Don't Miss Me Too Much

Nina was still awake when Cameron re-entered the bedroom.

Cameron went to bed and leaned over to her, gesturing for her to look at the collar of his shirt, and teasingly laughed, "My mother knows everything."

Nina blushed and pulled the covers over herself.

She still didn't hide anything after trying to keep things out of sight.

Cameron pulled her out from under the covers, wrapped his arms around her and said with a smile, "My parents have invited you over for dinner tonight."

"Okay." Nina responded readily, "I have more time to come back, so I should meet them for dinner."

Now that she was licensed and Colleen had shown her sincerity, Nina naturally had nothing to hold back and was willing to work everything out for the better.

Nina didn't feel much sleep anymore, and after raising her hand and pushing the man on top of her away from her, she sat up under the covers and said, "Since I'm going to your house for dinner, I should bring some gifts too, but I don't have anything prepared now, I have to hurry out to buy them."

"No need to be so solemn..." Cameron knew that his parents were not the ones to bother with such things either.

But Nina insisted, "No, it's basic etiquette. I'll get Sherlyn to go shopping with me."

Cameron had a headache, but he could see her insistence and let her be.

While Nina washed up and got dressed, Cameron followed her and said, "I'll take you to the mall." Nina waved her hand, "Don't. It would be a problem if we were photographed again."

Nina's words made Cameron a bit dejected; he pursed his lips in silence, then put his arm around the woman's waist from behind and asked in a low voice, "Honestly, when do you plan to go public about our relationship?"

Nina, who was putting on her make-up, looked in the mirror at the man who looked a little gloomy and said after a moment's thought, "You want me to go public now?" If he wanted public and official name, it wasn't as if she couldn't do it now.

Cameron tilted his head and kissed the side of her face, "It doesn't have to be now, but it would be better if it were sooner."

He wanted to be with her in public, walk down the street with her hand in hand, visit her without having to sneak around and have the whole world know that she was his woman.

"Then wait until I finish filming this show," Nina answered.

"Sure." Cameron had no problem with that.

Nina glanced at the man in the mirror and kindly warned, "You should be prepared when the time comes, there will be people cursing you, and of course, there will be people cursing me, but I'm used to it; I don't know if you'll be able to stand it then."

People will think well of it in an ordinary marriage and others who don't, let alone an actress like her.

Even if Cameron were good, there would still be people saying things, not to mention all the detractors hiding behind the scenes.

"What can't I stand?" As he wrapped his arms around her, Cameron said, "I'll get my lawyer to sue anyone who dares to cuss."

Nina laughed out loud; that was the way he acted.

After gathering herself, Nina called Sherlyn and asked her to go shopping with her.

Emelia was too pregnant to go shopping, and Sylvie had been given the day off, so Sherlyn was the only person she could call.

Sherlyn readily agreed, "Okay, I'll see you at the mall later, and I'll tell you something about myself."

After hanging up the phone, Nina said to herself, "I don't know what Sherlyn is going to tell me. She's so secretive."

Cameron picked up, "Maybe it's something big." Nina raised an eyebrow, "You seem to know something?" Cameron, in turn, said, "I have something to tell you tonight too."

What Sherlyn was going to say to Nina, Cameron knew, was about Sherlyn and Viggo; Cameron had already heard from Viggo.

Cameron wanted to tell Nina about Tymers Entertainment, something Sherlyn had been asked to keep secret for a while after hearing from Viggo last time, and something Cameron wanted to tell Nina himself.

He had thought it would be a while before they could meet, but he hadn't expected Nina to come back out of the blue so that he would come clean tonight.

"What's wrong with all of you? So mysterious." Nina said and then came up and wrapped her arms around the man's neck, kissed him on the lips, then said, "I'm off shopping, don't miss me too much."

Nina said it as a joke; she always teased Cameron like that.

She would let go of him and leave when she finished, but she ended up with the man's strong arms around her, "You don't need to buy anything; you're rarely free, shouldn't you be spending time with me?" She hadn't told him first when she returned but had gone to Emelia's house to dine.

Now it was time to go shopping and have afternoon tea with Sherlyn. Cameron felt completely unwanted; it was like he was only needed for sexual activities.

Nina sighed helplessly and raised her hand to caress the man's lovely cheek, coaxing, "Be good. I'll try to make this quick and come back when I'm done shopping."

Cameron held her in his arms for a while longer before releasing her, and by that time, Nina drove to the mall to meet up with Sherlyn, who had been waiting for her for half a day.

"You're good at being dillydallied." Sherlyn roasted at Nina as the two walked together towards the women's clothing counter in the mall.

"I can't help it. The house man is too clingy." Nina smiled back.

Sherlyn turned her head nervously and looked around before lowering her voice to warn her, "The mall is crowded, so watch your back and keep your voice down when you're talking about such topics."

"Got it, got it." Nina threw up her hands in surrender, then took Sherlyn's arm and continued walking.

"Hey, why are you wearing flats? I thought you said you wanted heels semi-permanent?" Nina glanced curiously at Sherlyn's feet.

Sherlyn herself wasn't short, but because of her profession, she wore high heels all day long, and of course, to create the image of a strong woman who was not to be messed with, Nina hadn't seen much of Sherlyn without high heels in all her years.

Sherlyn looked unnatural, "I'm going shopping with you, aren't I? High heels are tiring."

Nina was more and more surprised, "You're tired of wearing high heels one day? Do you remember? I once had a problem with my red-carpet dress, and you ran back and forth on your heels to several venues to get me a new dress, and I asked you if your feet hurt."

Sherlyn grunted, "Of course, I remember. I said high heels were as flat as sandals for me and I could even win a race in heels."

Nina spread her hands, "So yeah, it's just a shopping trip; why are you worrying about being tired?"

"Sherlyn, something's wrong with you." Nina pulled Sherlyn to one side, narrowing her eyes and staring at her with certainty.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 667 A Dream Come True

Sherlyn didn't expect Nina to be so observant, so she had to be truthful, "I'm... pregnant."

"What?" Nina exclaimed, lifting the sunglasses on her nose as she stared intently at Sherlyn with her pretty almond eyes in shock.

"The baby is Viggo's," Sherlyn added, and Nina almost fainted, raising her hand and starting to pinch herself for self-saving.

The answer was something she hadn't expected at all.

"We met at an event a while back, and I got drunk; he gave me a ride home and then just, just..." Sherlyn was crestfallen even as she mentioned the incident, "I didn't think then that I'd get pregnant by one nig

Nina took a few deep breaths against the wall, and when she looked up and saw a cafe in front of her, she took Sherlyn and said, "Let's go and sit there. Otherwise, I'm afraid I won't be able to handle it."

Sherlyn rolled her eyes, "Is there anything you can't handle in the world?" "To be honest, I can't stand this stuff." Nina walked away breathlessly, holding onto the wall.

She thought she had had a difficult life growing up. As an adult, she'd been involved in the messy entertainment world, so she'd experienced just about every outrageous thing, but she couldn't imagine Sherlyn and Viggo being associated in this way.

Sherlyn had been with her for years at Tymers Entertainment, and if there had been a spark between her and Viggo, there would have been a spark, but it seemed like they had only been boss and subordinate these years.

Sherlyn's personality has always been one of those "men are not as meaningful as work", and Nina thinks she may not be interested in men or love.

Nina and Sherlyn found a quiet and secluded corner in the cafe and sat down. Nina ordered a cup of coffee and, considering Sherlyn's pregnancy, ordered a glass of juice for her.

When the coffee and juice came, Nina took a big sip of the coffee and then said to Sherlyn, "Come on, Agent Sherly, tell your story."

Sherlyn sullenly asked, "What other story can I have? I told you it was an accident."

"What are you going to do about the baby?" Nina asked in a lowered whisper, "Does Viggo know? What's his attitude?"

Sherlyn was a little bitter, "He knows, and he said to have the baby, and we get married." "Ahem—" Nina nearly choked on the coffee in her mouth at Viggo's decision. "He said he'd marry you? He, he—" Nina was at a loss about what she should say.

Viggo had had an ex-girlfriend when he was younger and hadn't had any more emotional entanglements since the break-up, except, of course, for a crush on Emelia some time ago.

But Viggo should have let go of Emelia a long time ago, but even if he doesn't have another woman in mind now, that doesn't mean he likes Sherlyn.

In Nina's mind, a marriage between two people is supposed to be emotionally grounded, so she is at a loss as to what she should say to Sherlyn.

Luckily, Sherlyn is a thorough one and says, somewhat self-deprecatingly, "I know what you're going to say; I was shocked to hear him say he plans to get married too."

Sherlyn recalled her visit to meet with Viggo as she recounted to Nina, "I went to see him once after I found out I was pregnant, the time Jillian Harrison and Rebecca Young went to mess with him."

"I was just going to inform him that I wanted to keep the baby, and he's not to be responsible for me at all or for the baby. I'm perfectly capable of raising the baby myself." "I was thinking that I'm not going to marry or have a relationship with any man in my life, I'm afraid, it's nice to have a child, and he has such good genes..."

When she said this, Sherlyn felt a little uncomfortable about what she thought, and Nina teased her, "That's a good thought."

Sherlyn stretched her hands and added, "Who knew that after he heard my idea, he would just say he wanted to get married? I was so confused, and I knew he didn't love me, so I didn't even think about getting married or being together."

At that time, in Viggo's office, Viggo offered to get married, and she said no on the spot after her surprise, "I don't think we should be tied together reluctantly for the sake of a child. Such a loveless marriage is not what I want, and even if we don't get married, I'm 100% capable of raising this child alone."

She was about to leave after she finished her thoughts when Jillian and Rebecca barged into Viggo's office. She had wanted to make her escape through the commotion, but to her surprise, Viggo ignored them and dragged her to another meeting room, where they continued to discuss children and marriage.

Viggo said, "I'd make a good husband and father."

Without waiting for Sherlyn to say anything, Viggo added, "Some marriages start with love, others start with profit, and I think maybe a marriage can start with children too."

"Sherlyn, you and I are both mature enough to trust that we'll run this marriage well." Although Sherlyn didn't say directly what her choice was, Nina had already guessed, "So you were convinced by him and decided to marry him?”

Sherlyn nodded, “I’ve thought about it. I’ve got nothing to lose by getting married. He’s got the face, the body, money and the fame. I’ve earned it. Even if we find out after we get together that it’s not working out, it’s no big deal.”

‘I’m rich and capable myself, so the big deal is to divorce again and live on my own with the kid.’ Nina gave Sherlyn a big compliment, “That’s a great mindset you have.”

Sherlyn took a sip of her juice and said quietly, “What else could I do? I want this baby. I’m afraid if I don’t agree to get married, he won’t agree to have the baby.”

Nina laughed, “So you had to marry him in the end to keep the baby?” “Uh-huh,” Sherlyn responded.

Nina couldn’t stop laughing, “If our award-winning actor Viggo Johansen knew what you were thinking, he’d probably faint from shock. How is it that a man as attractive as he only seems to be of use to you for having children?”

Sherlyn gave her a look, “Don’t talk nonsense. I recognise his charisma; after all, he is an icon and was once the top of his generation, the dream of thousands of girls.”

Nina immediately moved closer to her and gossiped, “Were you among the thousands of girls?”

Sherlyn raised her hand and pushed away from the unbelievably beautiful face before her, stopping all Nina’s curiosity with her unsmiling words, “No.”

She was once an ugly duckling, not in a position to dream of such things.

Now she had been transformed into a white swan through the world, but she had long since passed the age of dreaming.

She would never tell anyone that she had chosen to work in the entertainment industry because she had the desire to be close to that perfect man.

Instead, she never expected that her dreams would come true after she had passed the age of dreaming.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 668 Let's Wear Couple Outfits

Nina resumed her seat, looked at Sherlyn, and said earnestly, "Sherlyn, seriously, I support whatever choice you make because I know that you'll have a good life no matter what choice you make."

As a champion celebrity manager in the entertainment industry, what scenes has Sherlyn not seen?

Her experience has made her a person who sees everything clearly, and she has a strong and upwardly mobile personality. Since she has decided to marry Viggo, she is bound to make the best of it, whether or not there is love between her and Viggo now.

Viggo must have understood Sherlyn's character, so he insisted on getting married.

Even if there was no love before, they had worked together for many years, so it was impossible for him not to understand Sherlyn's character.

And Nina believed that Viggo would be as good a husband and a good man as he said he would be. His character is trustworthy, and Sherlyn must have seen this.

So, this seemingly out-of-the-blue relationship was actually established on a foundation of many years of mutual understanding.

Nina's support touched Sherlyn, "I knew you understood me."

"That's true." Nina smiled ostentatiously but lamented, "If we didn't know each other well, how could we have worked together for so many years?"

Sherlyn smiled back, "Now that I'm done, let's go buy your present."

Nina sipped her coffee gracefully, "No rush, let's finish our coffee first. It's a rare day when I get to be so relaxed or a peaceful time for us two women to enjoy."

Sherlyn smirked at her, "Wow, you're still willing to spend some peaceful time with me? I thought you had Cameron and didn't want us."

Nina laughed, "How can that be? Love and friendship can never replace each other; we need love as much as friendship." No sooner had Nina's words fallen than a message arrived on her phone from Cameron, "Have you finished shopping? When are you coming back?"

Nina reached out with a headache and rubbed her forehead with her fingers before roasting, "This is killing me."

But she didn't dare tell Cameron that she and Sherlyn were still relaxing over coffee and had even listened to Sherlyn's story about her and Viggo, so she simply said, "Not yet."

Cameron quickly replied, "Didn't we all agree on what we would buy? A silk scarf for my mum and a tea set for my dad, you just go to the shop and choose. Why haven't you finished shopping yet?"

The silk scarf and tea set were Cameron's offer to Nina from the perspective of knowing his parents, and Nina also thought they were gifts that wouldn't go wrong, so she accepted Cameron's offer and planned to buy them.

Sherlyn saw what Cameron had sent and got up with her bag and rushed to Nina, "Come on, hurry up, finish shopping and go back to be with him. Sounds like he can't live without you even for a second."

"Exactly!" Nina said through clenched teeth, "What a disgrace!" She wanted to talk to Sherlyn for a while longer, but he started rushing her before she could even get her ass warmed up.

She got up, grabbed her bag and went out of the cafe with Sherlyn. The two of them went to choose the silk scarves and then to the tea shop to buy tea sets, and just as they reached the car park, Cameron's phone called again.

Nina picked up the phone and complained, "Cameron, why are you rushing me?"

Sherlyn listened to Cameron's words and waited to see what the young couple would fight about.

Yes, that's how true toxic friends are; she just wants to see a fight and fall out.

“I just missed you so much.” A man’s voice came with an innocent and sultry bark over the phone.

Nina was silent.

The man’s pitiful tone made Nina unable to get angry.

Sherlyn laughed back and forth, “It is everything has its vanquisher.”

She knew how grumpy Nina was, and she was expecting to see how Nina would get angry with Cameron; who knew that Cameron was entirely out of line, coaxing a ‘miss you! line that instantly put Nina out of her temper.

Nina glared at Sherlyn and then said to the man on the phone, “I’m in the car park; I’ll be right back.” “But I need to go back to my place first and pick up some clothes,” Nina added.

She’d brought some clothes and her daily essentials with her when she’d gone to Cameron’s earlier, but those clothes were mainly casual, and she’d better dress formally as she was going to meet his parents at his house tonight.

“Okay, I’ll wait for you,” Cameron answered the phone, sounding noticeably happier than he had just been.

After she hung up, Sherlyn tsked, “I didn’t expect you two to get along like this? Being such a macho, I didn’t even think Cameron would be pampered.”

“I just missed you so much.” Sherlyn mimicked Cameron’s voice as she rubbed her arms, “Oh my god, that’s so cheesy. I have goosebumps.”

Nina smacked her lightly, “I’m waiting to see how our Best Actor, Johansen, pampers you, then I’ll laugh at you.”

Sherlyn laughed and shook her head, “How could he possibly pander to me? It didn’t come to that between us, okay?”

They were only temporarily married for the sake of their children, their relationship wasn't deep enough to pamper each other, and she now had a headache by thinking about how she would adjust to moving in together after the license.

A man and woman who have only slept together for one night are not that different from strangers, plus she's lived alone for so many years that she's just not comfortable with the presence of another person in her living space.

It's disturbing to think about.

Nina, already sitting in the car, raised her hand and waved at Sherlyn, who leaned over slightly and then heard Nina say cheekily, "You'll get attached after you've slept together a few more times."

With these words, Nina quickly rolled up the window, started the car and drove away.

Sherlyn stood there for a moment before she realised what Nina meant by that. God damn it, how an actress like her can be so full of pornographic stuff all day long.

Nina drove back to her place first, but when she couldn't decide what to wear for the evening, she called Cameron to ask his advice.

Cameron was waiting desperately for her and was surprised that she was still choosing an outfit, so he said, "Whatever looks good on you."

"You're just brushing me off!" Nina protested immediately.

Cameron was helpless, "I meant what I said; don't you know how perfect your condition is?"

She would look good in just about anything with a perfect face and body. Otherwise, how did she get so many fashion endorsements?

"That's a nice way of putting it." Nina instantly laughed at him again, grabbed a dress, and said, "I'd rather wear this dark blue dress. It's modest, elegant, and generous."

Nina then asked the man on the phone, "Do you have a navy-blue tie? Let's wear a couple's suit."

“Sure.” Cameron had no problem with this, and such sweet things between lovers, he was certainly willing to do it together with her.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 669 It Was You

When Nina returned to Cameron’s residence, she found that Cameron was on a video call, putting his mobile phone on the sofa in the living room with some documents in his hand.

However, Nina did not see his phone. She only thought that he was lowering his head to read the documents. As such, she walked over and threw herself into his embrace.

“Darling, I’m back.”

Nina was afraid that he would become unhappy, so she took the initiative to coax him.

“I’m in a meeting,” Cameron said, glancing at his phone calmly.

“What?” Nina cried out in surprise. She immediately got down from his body and tried to escape.

He really went too far. He didn’t give her a hint in advance. She hugged him directly in front of the camera. How inappropriate was that!

To her surprise, Cameron put down the document in his hand and pulled her back.

After pressing Nina down beside him, he smiled and said to the person in the video, “Let me introduce my wife, Nina Sanchez.” Then, he introduced the man in the video to Nina. “My new assistant, Steven Emerson.”

Cameron had already held her down, so it was not good for Nina to get up and leave.

Although she was very confused as to why Cameron would suddenly introduce her to the people in the company, she still instinctively believed in Cameron. Therefore, she immediately put on a symbolic smile and raised her hand to greet Steven on the phone.

“Hi.”

As a female star, she was good at maintaining elegant smiles and polite greetings.

To her surprise, the so-called new assistant of Cameron on the opposite side suddenly became nervous and stammered, "Well,

I

Nina maintained a decent smile as she looked at the red-faced Steven on the screen. Then, she tilted her head to look at him and asked him with her eyes, "What's wrong with your assistant?"

Cameron explained to her calmly, "He's your fan."

Nina came to a sudden realization. No wonder Steven was so excited.

However, how could Nina know that this new assistant of his was her fan?

It was quite strange and ridiculous.

At this moment, Steven, who was at the other end, finally managed to say a few words, but he complained to him. "Mr. Dauster, you did it on purpose, didn't you?"

Cameron raised his eyebrows and asked knowingly, "What?"

"You clearly know that I am your wife's fan, so you deliberately introduced her to me to stimulate me." Steven felt that his boss was too scheming and completely caught him off guard.

Although he had suspected the relationship between Nina and Cameron before, he did not expect it to be true.

And he was told in such an abrupt way, which made him feel embarrassed.

Cameron completely denied his complaint. "You think too much."

Then, without giving Steven a chance to speak, he announced, "The host of this meeting is very good, and the content is also very good. I'll ask the personnel to give you a regular position later."

"Thank you very much." Steven's face was full of respect. He complained about his boss's schemes many times in his heart, and then hung up the phone with extreme grief and indignation.

“What do you mean by this? Hmm...” When Cameron finally finished the video call, she hurriedly asked him. However, the man turned around and pushed her to the sofa. All the words she wanted to ask were stuck between her lips.

Nina angrily pounded the man a few times. “Is he done yet? Is it interesting to kiss her all day long?” After Cameron let go of her, she immediately objected to his behavior. Cameron stroked her lips and said slowly, “I remember that someone told me that if we get married one day, we should kiss each other before going to work every morning, and kiss each other after we get home, and kiss each other before sleep, and when we get up, there should also be a kiss in the morning.”

Nina felt goosebumps all over her body. “Did I say that?” “Could it be that I’m the one who said it?” said Cameron with a snort.

Nina couldn’t live any longer. Who the hell knew what kind of novels he had read? Pretentious love novels? She couldn’t believe that he could say such a disgusting thing. At the thought of that, she was so annoyed when she thought that he would hold her in his arms and kiss her non-stop.

Cameron saw through her heart at a glance, and his eyes immediately became sharp. “What’s wrong? Do you dislike my kiss?” “That’s not true,” Nina explained with a smile. “I just feel like there’s no need to kiss so many times.”

“No. I’ll do whatever you say.” After saying that, he leaned over and kissed her on the lips.

He really felt that he could never kiss her enough. He wanted to stay with her for 24 hours a day.

After this kiss, she suddenly stared at Nina and asked, “Did you drink coffee?”

Nina recalled the scene in the coffee shop with Sherlyn and said with a guilty conscience, “Yes.”

But then she quickly explained, “Sherlyn wanted to tell me something about her, so we went to the coffee shop to chat for a while.”

“You’ve been here for a while, haven’t you?” Cameron asked with a cold snort.

She claimed that she had been staying there for a while, but in fact, she had been staying there for a long time. No wonder he had to wait for her at home for a long time.

If he didn’t call her to urge her, did she intend to stay with Sherlyn after dinner time?

Seeing that he was about to get angry, Nina quickly hooked her arms around his neck and changed the topic. “By the way, do you know what eye-popping news Sherlyn told me about? She’s getting married to Viggo Johansen!”

When Nina finished speaking in an exaggerated manner, she discovered that Cameron was extremely calm.

She asked him in confusion, “Why are you so calm? Don’t tell me you already know...”

“Yes.” Cameron did not hide anything. “I’m very familiar with Viggo. He told me about it as soon as possible.” Nina pushed him away from her and sat up to stare at him in shock. “Are you... very familiar with Viggo?”

She remembered that the reason why Cameron took his grandmother backstage at the last meeting was that he knew Viggo, but she didn’t expect that they were very familiar.

Cameron didn’t say anything and only looked at Nina with a meaningful expression.

With her intelligence, she should be able to realize his identity.

Nina frowned slightly and thought for a while, and then she said in disbelief, “Are you Mr. N, Tymers’ mysterious partner?” Cameron nodded. “Yes, I first established Tymers Entertainment for you.”

“At that time, I was abroad, and the entertainment circle was a place where various people gathered. I was worried about you. At that time, Viggo also intended to retire behind the scenes, so I contacted him and talked about building a company with him.”

At that time, he was only 20 years old. He got the scholarships one after another with his excellent brain, as well as the money for transferring his own patents. As a partner, Viggo also paid half of the money, so Tymers was established by them.

Nina didn't know what she should say. She was surprised, but she was still happy and moved. She recalled what had happened to her over the years and realized that it was Cameron and his Tymers that had been guarding her silently.

There He Is Again, My Ex-Husband - Chapter 670 It's Enough to Have Him

Seeing that Nina didn't say a word, Cameron quickly pulled her into his arms. "Don't be angry. I didn't mean to hide it from you.

Our relationship has been unstable ever since I returned to China. I've never had the right opportunity to confess to you."

"Before the contract was terminated, I wanted to participate in a reality show about dates and relationships. You messed it up, didn't you?" Nina asked faintly.

Cameron admitted frankly, "Yes, I can't watch you and other men fall in love with each other."

Nina replied to him and then asked him, "There was a drama before, but the producer insisted on me accompanying him. Did you put him in jail?"

At that time, Nina was not very famous. At that time, she was auditioning for the role of the second female lead. It was obvious that she had passed, but later, at a party, the producer took a fancy to her and hinted to her to sleep with him, then he will offer her the female lead.

She refused the bald old man directly and righteously. First of all, she didn't like the role.

She was aiming for the second female lead. Second, she wouldn't do dirty things like sleeping with him. She really liked acting and wanted to be famous. But if she relied on this method, she would rather be an unknown actress.

The producer refused to give up. Nina simply smashed his head with an ashtray and threw him into the hospital on the spot.

Later, the old man became angry and threatened to ban her from the industry.

Not only was she kicked out of the production, but she was also rejected by several projects later.

It didn't take long for the producer to get into jail, and then his declaration of banning her was over.

It was no exaggeration to say that if nothing happened to the producer, those people in the circle would not use her for his sake.

Then she would never have a chance to stand out.

Not only did she not have the chance to stand out, but she might not even be able to survive in the entertainment industry.

At that time, Nina still felt puzzled. How could that old man just happened to have an accident and went to jail? Now that she knew all these identities of Cameron, she realized that he must have something to do with that too.

When it came to that matter, she thought of the old man. She still couldn't hold back the anger in her heart. "I did it. I gave the court the evidence of his tax evasion."

If he wanted to touch his woman, he was not the most ruthless. He could only be more ruthless.

He also knew that if he didn't let the old man get involved in the big trouble, Nina would still have a tough time in the future.

Nina asked again, "In the past few years, although the script is very good, there are basically no kissing scenes or intimate scenes. It was also instructed by you."

She saw that there were some intimate kissing scenes in other people's TV series, but she didn't. She really wanted to try what it felt like to kiss someone else and wanted to know if she only had feelings for Cameron. As a result, she had no chance at all.

“When I shot that artistic movie which was R-rated. I was prepared to sacrifice myself for the art, and I even went to the gym in advance to show my beautiful butterfly bones. Unexpectedly, before filming, the director said that he had found a substitute for me. Is this also your idea?”

“You want to sacrifice yourself for art? Don’t even think about it!” “As long as I’m with you, you can’t get that chance!”

The man’s words were very sincere, causing Nina to roll her eyes at him. “You are a stumbling block on my way to being a superstar.”

He bit her lips and said, “It’s too late to regret it now, Mrs. Dauster.”

What was more, he didn’t give her any chance to flirt with other men. And now, they were perfectly justified. Her heart, her lips, and she all belonged to him.

Nina was so angry that she laughed at “Mrs. Dauster” that she gave him a heavy bite. In order to get revenge on him, she pressed him into her arms and kissed him hard. The two of them played together on the sofa until Colleen called.

“Have you guys set off yet?” Colleen asked Cameron on the phone.

Cameron glanced at the beauty in his arms. Her hand was still poking at his chest with malicious intentions. Cameron held her naughty fingers and restrained his breath. He said, “I’m ready to go.”

Colleen was overjoyed. “Okay, then we’ll start cooking.”

“Okay.” After responding, she hung up the phone. Just as she was about to turn around and throw herself into his arms, she jumped up from the sofa with ease.

The girl blinked her sly eyes and said, “Hurry up. It’s impolite to let your parents wait too long.” After that, she went upstairs first. Cameron raised his hand to pinch his forehead, got up, and followed her.

On the way to Cameron’s family, Nina was a little nervous and moved on her seat several times.

Cameron noticed her uneasiness. He gently held her pretty fingers with his right hand and gently rubbed them in his palm, trying to calm her down in this way.

“You still have me,” Cameron said in a soft voice.

There weren't any excessive words, nor were there any other movements. However, this sentence alone was already enough to help Nina condense and block all of the wind, frost, snow, and rain.

She still had him, and she only had him.

After breaking up with her selfish and heartless parents, she only had him.

But even if he was the only one left, she was still very happy.

Because the love he gave her was enough to support her to warm her up.

Although Nina knew that Colleen Donovan and Randall Dauster had changed their attitude towards her, she did not expect them to be so enthusiastic. As soon as she entered the door, Colleen took her hand and said, “Come on, come in and have a seat.”

Nina was a little shocked. She looked at Cameron in a panic. Cameron immediately grabbed her wrist and stopped her from being taken away by Colleen.

Colleen glanced at her son's hand and was angry and laughed. “What do you mean? Can I even eat your wife?” The word “wife” that Colleen used made Nina a little embarrassed, but she also relaxed a little.

She looked up at him and pulled her hand out of his palm. “I'll sit with Auntie Colleen for a while.”

Nina was not a timid or shy person. She was just not used to Colleen's enthusiasm.

Colleen saw that Nina had already agreed, so she no longer cared about Cameron's expression. She pulled Nina to the sofa and sat down. She enthusiastically said, “Try this herbal tea. I dried and baked them myself. It's also good for your skin.”

Before Nina could say anything, Colleen hurriedly said, “If you don't like it, I'll get juice for you.” Colleen had already prepared several kinds of drinks because she wasn't sure what Nina liked to drink.

Nina smiled and said, "The tea is very good."

She picked up the delicate cup and took a sip. Then she said, "It tastes really good. If you have more, could you give me a few bags? I want to drink it during work."

The smile on Colleen's face immediately blossomed. This little girl was really good at talking. She immediately confirmed her sincerity. Colleen was very pleased.