

TIMELESS LOVE

CHAPTER 25 EVEN IF YOU HAVE A GIRLFRIEND, YOU'LL MAKE HER MAD.

Andrew was thirty-two years old, two years older than Kenny. Tom couldn't wait to give birth to Andrew after losing to Paul to use his son to seize power for himself again. However, he didn't expect that Taylor Group was still given to Kenny, and the resentment in Tom's heart over the years could simply be described as monstrous.

Kenny and Andrew both had outstanding abilities, and their power in the company was comparable. All these years everyone was waiting for Andrew to seize power and take the position, but Andrew had been willing to submit to Kenny, conscientiously working for Taylor Group without any ambition.

Hathaway was uncomfortable on hearing Andrew's words.

She knew men's desire for power and status, but she didn't want Andrew to give up his ambitions because of her, because Hathaway felt unable to bear it.

She and Andrew were cousins. Whenever Andrew revealed his feelings to her like this, she regretted that she had written those things in her diary. If she didn't write that admiration for Andrew, then Andrew wouldn't be so obsessed with her, right?

"Andrew, it's getting late. Let's talk about it tomorrow."
Hathaway hurriedly hung up the phone after saying that.

She didn't want to discuss their relationship with Andrew, especially she was still at Leon's house at that time.

After hanging up, Hathaway turned her back to Leon and took a deep breath to calm herself, and then turned around and walked over to Leon as if nothing had happened.

As soon as she sat down across Leon, she heard Leon ask her, "Have you finished?"

Hathaway nodded, and Leon said calmly when he didn't stop eating, "Then go home."

Hathaway felt that as a man, Leon wasn't a gentleman at all.

In the middle of the night, no one would let a girl go home alone, wouldn't they? Wouldn't he even send her home?

Just when Hathaway was speechless, Leon looked at her raising his eyebrows, "Or do you want to stay? Aren't you afraid I'll do something to you again?"

She didn't want to stay! Not at all!

Hathaway stood up immediately with an unbearable accusation, "Leon, I think I finally understand why you're still single now. Even if you have a girlfriend, you'll make her mad.!"

Leon was still relaxed, and he signaled to let her give a reasonable explanation for this comment she made about him.

Hathaway snorted, "It's so late already, so don't you want to send me home? You are not a gentleman."

Hathaway thought that Leon would be ashamed, but she underestimated Leon, and he mockingly said to her, " Self-righteous."

Then he continued to have dinner. Hathaway felt that Leon couldn't be helped and turned to leave in exasperation, and even slammed the door to express her disdain for Leon.

And Leon, who frowned upon the sound of her slamming the door, was also unhappy. How bad was her attitude! She was so arrogant that she dared to slam the door.

Obviously, she was the one who had asked for his help!

The men around Hathaway were always gentle, while the women around Leon were always dignified and elegant. Each of them expressed their disdain for the other's behavior.

Hathaway had driven here by herself, so she was also driving away by herself at this moment.

Hathaway felt that a man like Leon deserved to die alone.

When Hathaway's car went away from the main gate of Leon's community, Andrew was staring at the direction of her car with a serious expression in a car parking not far away on the roadside. He closed his eyes in pain and leaned against the seat for a long time.

He had long known that she was deliberately approaching Leon, but he had never expected that she would surrender her body to achieve her goal.

What Andrew didn't expect was that Leon would accept her. Being in the same field, Andrew knew very clearly that Leon lacked affection for women. Leon was surrounded by many girls from different rich and famous families, but he never even looked at them, not to mention Hathaway who approached him for some purposes and she was already notorious before that.

Because Andrew knew Leon's character, he didn't take it seriously. In Andrew's opinion, Hathaway would only ask for an insult from Leon if she did that.

The moment he found out that she was finally with Leon, Andrew wanted to kill him.

He was only on a business trip, and when he came back she became Leon's woman.

What both Hathaway and Leon did was out of Andrew's expectation, which made Andrew regret it too much.

As for the reason why Andrew was waiting here tonight, it was because he still knew Hathaway's style of doing things. She would never want to lose Davis Group's project now, so she definitely had to find a way to save it after she messed up.

And her method of salvation, in the end, was to start from Leon here.

She had always felt that she had tempted him first because of that diary.

But she didn't know that he had long been in love with her, but because she was many years younger than him and she was his cousin, he had been suppressing those forbidden feelings.

But there were times when the more those feelings were suppressed, the stronger they became.

Andrew didn't know how long he had been sitting there, and as he drove away he regained his composure and had an extra hint of reckless ruthlessness.

If Hathaway had to be with Leon, then he would no longer repress himself.

He wanted Taylor Group and Hathaway.

He would grab everything!

And he would never hurt himself for anyone!

Hathaway went home and had a good sleep, but the next morning she was woken up by a sharp scolding downstairs. She knew who was cursing even if she didn't listen carefully. Only her aunt Barbara Taylor had such a sharp tone and variable voice.

She lifted the blanket and got out of bed, gathered her hair that was a little messy from sleeping, and changed her clothes to go downstairs.

As soon as she pushed the door open, she heard Barbara's harsh words, "Paul Taylor, look at the good children you brought up. Your son was in jail because of economic crime; your youngest daughter has slept with many men; it is so hard for you to have a promising elder daughter, but she had a car accident. I think Kenny and Hathaway had done too many bad things, and the consequences have been borne by Ashley!"

Paul was not in good health, and when he was irritated by Barbara's words he coughed violently on the spot.

A serious expression appeared on Hathaway's beautiful face, "Barbara, you've come to our house so early."

She took the initiative to interrupt Barbara's next words that she wanted to use to irritate Paul, and then she held her hands tightly and stepped down the stairs.
