202 Wake up!

What!? Declare her death in one week?

'Wasn't their boss being very cruel?' This thought came into everyone's mind, however, in the next moment, they realized that their boss was always known for being cruel. Perhaps, they admired Liu Juan as their life savior so they felt like this, but in their boss's eyes, she was just like any other team member.

Even though they felt that their boss's decision was wrong, they couldn't voice out their thoughts because they knew that if they did then they would also be on the dead list with Liu Juan.

So some members shut their mouths despite feeling wrong for Liu Juan and some members pretended to be deaf to their boss's decision and struck out Liu Juan from their mind as a team member so that this decision didn't bother them.

Even, Bo Xiao was included in the former i.e to keep his mouth shut!

He wanted Liu Juan to answer his question, but it seems that he wouldn't get the chance.

Amongst all of the people, Liu Ruolan was very happy as now she wouldn't be required to use her brain cells to accomplish her plan to remove Liu Juan all thanks to their boss.

After that, everyone left for their respective rooms. Although they had successfully completed their mission, they didn't feel like celebrating their success because with the help of that person they had won, now she was going to die in one week's time despite the fact that she could have lived.

Next morning...

Apart from the men who were injured, the rest of the men woke up at 4 AM and again started their training.

The whole estate came back to their usual peace as everyone behaved as if nothing had happened.

The doctors had checked Liu Juan's condition and found that there was no hope for her to wake up in one week.

The doctors had reported the same thing to Bo Xiao and their boss the next morning. Liu Ruolan was standing there to hear her young sister's health status. When she heard doctors' words, she was on Cloud Nine.

The man saw Liu Ruolan's happy expression and smiled at her stupidity. In fact, now he couldn't wait to see Liu Ruolan's face when she was also going to die with her sister.

During the last one month, Liu Ruolan was hidden in her room, but now Bo Xiao was back with the good news of Liu Juan's death. She couldn't hide her happiness, she went towards Bo Xiao to make up with him. He seemed to be angry with her last night, but now she would get his usual attention again.

However, Bo Xiao's mood seemed to be worse now that Liu Juan was getting closer to death with every passing moment. Initially, he wanted to kill her as his rival for the position, even though he still wanted to kill her now, but he first wanted to ask her why the hell did she save him?

Whereas, the man also seemed to be in a good mood as he couldn't wait to tell Liu Ruolan about his deal with Liu Juan and kill her.

Unfortunately for neither his nor Liu Ruolan happiness would be fulfilled because, after two days, Liu Juan woke up.

It was night time, everyone had left for their rooms to rest. The whole villa was in a dead silence except for the sound of the footsteps of the guard every now and then. Liu Juan was shifted to the ICU. Where a nurse was in-charge for the night duty, but she had shown an audacity to be missing from her duty.

Liu Juan was lying on the bed motionless during the day time, but now her forehead was covered with sweat while tears were streaming down from her eyes. She opened her mouth to bawl aloud, but her throat was turned dry to the point that no voice escaped from her mouth. She seemed to be struggling badly. The feeling of fear was overwhelming her so much that her body was shivering badly. She wanted to run but she couldn't as she felt that someone had tied up her legs to the corner of the bed and made them spread wide open. She felt pain in her lower abdomen...terrible pain that she wanted to die, but a voice echoed in her ears that if she died then her big sister would also die.

No...No... she couldn't let her big sister die...

Liu Juan was struggling and pain in her lower abdomen was getting more terrible which increased the flow of her tears. She was panting heavily and enduring the pain by grinding her teeth and then she suddenly opened her eyes in one shot and she was panting heavily as it seemed that she had a nightmare again.

'Beep'

'Beep'

'Beep'

The sound of the monitoring machine brushed past her ears, her sight scanned the surroundings around her and found herself an unfamiliar room. She panicked and instantly tried to get up, it was very difficult for her as her body seemed to be very weak but she didn't stop for a second.

She got up and felt a terrible pain in her abdomen, she removed the blanket and found bloodstains, it seemed that she had her period. Still, she couldn't stay here in an unfamiliar room, so she tried to leave the bed, but found that her artificial right leg had been removed. She couldn't walk now, let's not talk about running from here.

She had an option to feel helpless and wait for someone to come, but she couldn't wait because if she died here, her big sister's life could be in danger also and for which she couldn't take the risk. So what if her artificial right leg had been removed, she still had her left leg. Unfortunately for her, her body was very weak as she placed her leg on the ground and at that moment, she lost her balance and slipped.
