

Chapter 72 Provocation

Hearing Alyssa's words, Leon couldn't say anything else.

She really didn't seem to be afraid!

He originally thought that the daughter of a wealthy family like her would be afraid when she encountered such things and would quit.

But she seemed not only unafraid but also courageous to face it.

She was much braver than he thought.

This made him like Alyssa even more.

Alyssa saw that Leon still had some doubts, so she persuaded him, "I'm really fine. Citic is a long-established company in this industry. If it would put its employees in danger, those employees would have run away long ago. This is not as serious as you think. I know you care about me, and that's good enough for me."

Leon knew Alyssa's mind was made up.

He nodded and turned to get out of the car.

Watching Leon get out of the car, Alyssa quickly started the car and left.

After driving for a while, she noticed that there was a car following her all the time.

They wouldn't dare to make a move on Leon, but she was different.

After Susan knew she was tricked, she didn't find out who she was before she got people to follow her.

Unfortunately, she was still too late. She had already informed Mr. Wood of everything.

As she had just said to Leon, Hassan must have been on guard.

She drove steadily, and after driving to the first red light, she noticed that the car behind her was gone. She was a little surprised. At that moment, her phone rang. It was Hassan calling, and she answered the phone immediately.

"Mr. Wood."

"You can feel free to come to work. Summit Group has been taken care of. Susan has been taken away by the Supervisory Commission for leaking company secrets, and Vincent has negotiated with me for financing. You come to the company first, and we will talk about the next work."

"I got it." Alyssa nodded and hung up the phone.

Since all the danger was now removed, she should be safe.

She knew that Hassan could fix it.

Ten minutes later.

Alyssa arrived at Citic.

As soon as she arrived upstairs, she was called into Hassan's office, where he talked to her about the Summit Group follow-up.

Alyssa was surprised that Hassan still wanted her to follow this case, even though he had taken it over.

"Mr. Wood, are you kidding me? I can't believe that you're giving me such an important case. I'm still an intern."

"Do you want to be a formal staff? I can offer you a job right now."

Alyssa frowned, "That's not what I meant. I just don't think I know the processes well enough. Melany and Trent have enough credentials and experience."

"But you're the fastest person to find out about Susan. This case is yours. It's up to your foresight and decision whether to solve the problem through debt to equity swap or some other way later."

"But ... I really can't do it."

Alyssa felt that she simply did not have that ability.

She previously thought it would be good to encounter more things because at least she could still be trained to have problem-solving skills.

But she didn't want to be a strong woman or have much power. She just didn't want Leon to look down on her.

However, she never thought she would take on such a big case.

She didn't want to work overtime and stay up late on the project. She had to prepare to give Leon a baby as soon as possible.

At least, both grandfathers would be happy.

Their relationship would also be much more stable.

She refused to take on the project. But in the eyes of others, this was a great opportunity.

In a place like Citic, performance was the only way to get promoted.

Anyone would want to make a few more projects here, especially this kind of project that was already half successful.

Hassan glanced at Alyssa's dejected face and noticed Alyssa's obvious reluctance to take on the project.

He handed Alyssa a glass of water and looked at Alyssa, "Alyssa, why did you work here?"

"I'm just here to gain experience."

"That's good, isn't it? You can do the Summit Group project. If you are not sure about something, just ask me. That's gaining experience, isn't it?"

Hassan thought this was a good opportunity, "What? You don't want to get more experience now? Do you want to hear a story?"

Alyssa shook her head.

Hassan looked at Alyssa's lack of curiosity and felt uncomfortable, but he still went on.

"Susan's goal is to take control of Summit Group so that she will have money. She is from another city. She followed Robert in the beginning because she wanted to have a home here. Later, she found out that Robert couldn't give her what she wanted, and she wanted to be with Vincent."

"If she was already with Vincent, why did she do it? She already got what she wanted, didn't she?"

"Because she sensed that Vincent didn't like her six months ago. The person Vincent likes looks a lot like her. She is like a substitute, so she has a grudge against Vincent."

"Oh!" Alyssa thought this story was pretty boring. She didn't want to know Susan's thoughts at all. But people who did wrong definitely had to pay for it. No one could do something bad and get away with it.

She was an example of that!

God brought her back to life so she could make up for the mistakes she made in her last life.

That was why she had to put her focus on Leon.

Being with Leon and giving him a few children was the most important thing.

So she really wasn't interested in having a career.

Hassan saw what Alyssa was thinking, "You really don't want to be here? Have you ever wondered why Susan got like this?"

"I don't know." Alyssa shook her head. Susan was strange, and she didn't want to know anything about Susan.

"To be frank, she wants a good life but doesn't have the ability to get one. Her quality of life is reduced, so it makes her corrupt."

"Oh!"

"Alyssa, do you want to be bad?"

Alyssa looked up at Hassan, wanted to speak, but suddenly hesitated.

Hassan was reminding her.

She couldn't remain that way.

She also couldn't keep standing still.

She originally came to gain experience.

If she didn't experience anything, wouldn't it be a waste of time?

Her big eyes glowed, and Hassan kept silent.

Hassan looked into Alyssa's eyes and spoke softly, "Alyssa, if you join us, I can guarantee that no company will give you this kind of workspace to make you improve."

Alyssa knew what Hassan had in mind. He wanted her to stay and do the project. She didn't like this kind of provocation, but when she thought about it, she felt that he had a very good point.

She kind of wanted to change her mind.

It would be good to do this project.

She had already done a lot of preparation work in the early stages, and the next step would be much easier.
