

Chapter 75 Trust

Leon was in a good mood when Alyssa came to pick him up on time today.

They had dinner together. After that, Leon went to work, and Alyssa went to make tea for him.

Recently, her tea-making skills had grown. Soon, she brought the tea to Leon's study.

Leon just finished his work. Alyssa saw that he closed all the documents and felt that her tea was delivered late. At that moment, she remembered that she had been taking folate for a few days. Although she hadn't tested for ovulation, she could give it a try first.

She stood in front of Leon, looked at him, and smiled.

Leon looked up and saw Alyssa's smile. He inexplicably felt a surge of power rushing out of his body.

Looking at Alyssa's red face, he immediately understood that something was wrong with his body.

He suddenly wanted her badly.

Leon had been so quiet that Alyssa thought he wasn't interested in her right now. She rolled her eyes and simply walked to him and whispered in his ear, "Honey!"

OMG!

Leon's body suddenly stiffened.

He looked up at Alyssa, only to find Alyssa lowering her head with a red face.

She was already thin and slender, and now she looked shy. He suddenly had a feeling that he wanted to have her right away.

Alyssa had no idea of Leon's thoughts. She just felt a little strange when he looked at her.

She panicked a little. Did something go wrong?

But he didn't look like there was anything wrong.

It seemed that she was not good enough at teasing people. He wasn't interested in her at all.

Alyssa felt that she was very useless and looked down to leave.

But she had just taken two steps when her hand was held down by Leon.

She turned her head and Leon picked her up and walked straight to the bedroom.

An hour later.

Leon looked at the sleeping little girl in his arms and wondered if he had just been too impulsive.

He seemed to use too much force, so soon Alyssa passed out.

He had actually controlled himself, but her body was too weak.

Looking at her sleeping face, he began to consider whether to give her a tonic.

He moved closer to her and smelled the faint scent of her body.

It was a very natural scent that attracted him to keep moving closer to her.

At that moment, Alyssa rolled over and came right up to Leon.

Leon was suddenly hugged by Alyssa and had an indefinable feeling in his heart. This was the first time he had been hugged by a woman. He didn't dare to move for fear of waking Alyssa up.

He fell asleep with Alyssa holding him like that.

He had a good night's sleep.

Alyssa woke up at dawn.

When she realized she was still holding Leon, she blushed.

What was this?

Leon should be the one holding her.

She didn't act shy, but she was a woman after all.

It should be a man hugging a woman. How come she was holding him?

What happened last night was still fresh in her mind. She was the one who seduced Leon.

Alyssa was still a little upset. At that moment, she woke Leon up.

She looked at Leon, who was staring at her, and thought about the way she had just held Leon, and her face immediately burned. She rolled over quickly, afraid that her embarrassment would be seen through.

But she didn't expect her to be that close to the edge of the bed and was about to fall off.

Luckily, a pair of strong arms held her down tightly so she didn't fall off the bed.

She lay back on the bed. Then she hurriedly got up and went to the bathroom to wash up.

Even after living twice, she had very little experience in that.

Leon couldn't take her as a female rogue, could he?

She stared at the mirror with remorse.

She feared that all the good image she had tried to create in front of him had collapsed.

At that moment, there was a knock on the door and Alyssa jumped in fright. She bumped her hand just above the faucet. The faucet was turned on by her collision and water came out.

She didn't get her hand back and the water sprayed all over her.

It was still cold and her clothes were all wet. She froze and shivered, and her brain regained its composure instantly. She immediately turned off the faucet.

However, it was too late to turn off the faucet. Her clothes were all wet. She could see her body through her clothes in the mirror, and the red marks on her neck were exposed, which were obviously the marks Leon had made last night.

"Kerchoo!"

Alyssa sneezed.

Leon heard her sneeze and frowned. Yesterday, they had forgotten to put on the blanket, but he had tucked her in after she fell asleep. Did she catch a cold?

Leon carefully recalled the image of last night. She shouldn't have caught a cold.

But her sneezes came one after another.

He hurried to the bathroom door and knocked on it.

But there was no response from the door.

He was about to knock again when the door opened. He saw Alyssa's white pajamas were covered with water stains, her hair was wet, and her face was bloodless.

Her eyes were wide open and her long eyelashes drooped.

He inexplicably thought of the way she held him tightly last night.

He froze in place as if he had forgotten to move.

"Kerchoo!"

Alyssa panicked at his look. At that moment, she sneezed, so she hurried to change her clothes on the excuse that she was cold. But even after changing her clothes, she was still cold.

She probably had a cold. So she hurriedly looked for cold medicine, but then she thought that she had been preparing for pregnancy recently. Would cold medicine affect the baby?

What if she did have a baby at this time?

This was serious.

Alyssa put away her cold medicine and hurried to have breakfast. It wasn't a big deal to have a cold. She just needed more hot water!

She ate breakfast with Leon, and then drove Leon to the company.

When she arrived at the company, Leon didn't get out of the car and kept looking at her face.

Her makeup was a bit heavy today, to cover the abnormal paleness of her face. She wondered if Leon saw something, and she panicked a little inside.

"Are you still coming to bring me lunch today?"

Alyssa could hear that Leon was clearly expecting her to bring him food!

She could sense his intention.

Alyssa nodded, "What do you want to eat?"

"You decide."

While Leon said this, he was happy in his heart.

The meal she sent was not only suited to his taste, but also his heart.

"Then I'll match the meal and send it to you." Alyssa tried her best not to laugh out loud, but in her heart, she was already overjoyed. She was glad that Leon didn't reject her.

There was a lack of trust between them at first.

If they wanted to be together for a long time, they had to build trust.

As long as there was trust, no one could break them up.

Leon nodded, pulled open the car door, and walked away.