

Chapter 76 Born To Do This

Alyssa hurriedly started the car to Citic.

She hit a traffic jam on the way. When she arrived at the office, she was already ten minutes late.

Melany saw her and winked at her, "Alyssa, you're late! Mr. Wood has been looking for you all morning."

"Well ... he looked for me!" Alyssa frowned. Why did he look for her at this time?

He hadn't scolded her yesterday. Did he want to scold her to get a feeling of that?

She didn't think Mr. Wood should be that bored. He probably wanted to ask her about the Summit Group.

Thinking about work, she immediately went to see Hassan.

In Hassan's office.

She saw a pile of documents.

"Mr. Wood, I heard that you wanted to see me."

Hassan didn't even look at Alyssa but waved her over.

She walked over and saw the Summit Group's bills and said softly, "These are the Summit Group's debt bills. They mostly owe money to the bank. It's almost time to pay, but I've checked the Summit Group's accounts. They have been short of money for the past year. There is no need to check these accounts. I have checked them with Mr. Baker. It's really okay. I've told you this, too, so you should know."

Hassan naturally knew all this. He took out a ledger and handed it to Alyssa, "Look at this one."

Alyssa took the ledger and found nothing wrong with it. But when she looked up and saw Mr. Wood's sullen face, she thought there was something wrong with it. She looked carefully and realized that several sets of figures in the accounts were wrong. She looked pale and lowered her head and said, "I'm going to get it right now. However, I think it should just be a printing error. All the accounts we checked are fine."

"I only give you half an hour. You know how serious this matter is."

"Yes."

She walked out with a pale face and hurriedly called Trent and Melany to check the books with her.

They cautiously began to check the accounts. Half an hour passed and their eyes were almost nailed to the screen. Luckily, they figured out that it was indeed a printing error.

Melany and Trent's expressions eased.

Alyssa ran to Hassan's office and informed Hassan that it was a printing error.

Hassan's face turned more sullen when he found out the result.

Alyssa bowed her head. She knew that a printing error was also an error.

People in finance couldn't afford to make a mistake!

She knew it was useless to apologize and hurriedly said, "Mr. Wood, I will give you all the proposals a day in advance. After you find the problem, we will rectify it in time, is that okay?"

When Hassan heard her words, he felt a little comforted.

This girl was smart.

She didn't panic when things went wrong and was able to find out the problem in time. Most importantly, she was able to get Melany and Trent to listen to her!

She was born to do this.

Hassan had been in the industry for seven or eight years and had seen a lot of people.

Only those who could adapt were able to stay.

This little girl was pretty good. At least, she was to his liking.

Alyssa was a little anxious when Hassan didn't say anything. Even if Mr. Wood was going to scold her, he shouldn't have done it at this time.

Here, time was money.

But if Hassan didn't say anything, she didn't dare to leave.

She had done something wrong, so how dare she fight with her boss?

Only after ten minutes, Hassan waved his hand at her. He finally threw her out expressionlessly.

She had done something wrong. Of course, she didn't dare to say anything else. She hurriedly went out and told Trent and Melany what Mr. Wood meant.

Despite their displeasure, they sat down and started to work.

Alyssa didn't dare to slacken off.

It was already noon when Alyssa looked up again.

She didn't dare to miss Leon's appointment, so she hurriedly ordered food for him while driving.

While waiting for her meal, she still worked on her project plan. When she arrived at Hunter Group and met Leon, she pretended that nothing was wrong and looked at him as he ate.

Leon saw Alyssa staring at him, and found her very interesting.

This little girl looked silly and uninspired, but she was still very cute.

It was lunch break and there were very few people in the company.

It was quiet and peaceful outside.

Alyssa noticed that Leon was staring at her and suddenly got a little nervous. She took a few steps back and her back touched the table. Her waist was thin and weak, and after hitting the table, she grimaced in pain and looked at Leon.

"Why are you hiding from me!" Leon moved closer to Alyssa and took a careful look at Alyssa's thin waist, worrying that Alyssa had really been hurt by the bump.

Alyssa immediately took a few steps. Since she could walk without any problem, her bones should be fine too.

Leon approached Alyssa reassuringly, "Have you eaten lunch?"

Alyssa shook her head, then nodded again.

Leon looked at Alyssa, "Have you eaten?"

Alyssa shook her head. She didn't eat anything.

"Are you hungry?"

Alyssa shook her head. She was so busy thinking about the data. How could she have time to eat?

Just watching Leon eat, she didn't feel hungry either.

However, after Leon asked, she really felt a little hungry.

"Come on." He took her hand and pulled her over to his desk. Then he called his assistant. Soon, the assistant walked in with a lunch box and brought it to Leon's desk.

"Eat this." Leon looked at Alyssa, who looked tired and pale.

She was already tired, and if she didn't eat, her body might have problems.

Leon pushed the food in front of her.

Alyssa opened the lunch box and the smell of rice immediately entered her nostrils.

She instantly felt that she was hungry. So she picked up the fork and ate.

She ate quietly like a nice kitten.

The meal was very tasty. Alyssa suddenly ate the fish. She looked up at Leon and knew that Leon had prepared it especially for her.

This man was so thoughtful!

He had prepared everything for her.

She choked and wanted some water. At that moment, a small duck cup appeared right in front of her with lemonade in it. Looking at the two golden lemon slices floating in the water, she instantly wanted to take more. She unscrewed the lid, took out the straw inside, and took a sip of the lemonade like a child. This lemonade tasted so good.

Yummy!

It tasted sweet and sour!

Leon looked at Alyssa's satisfied look and the corners of his mouth curled up.

Alyssa only focused on eating.

After drinking the lemonade, she felt even hungrier. She seemed to want to replenish all the energy she had spent this morning and quickly ate all the food in her lunchbox.
