

Chapter 80 The Feeling Of Being Needed

"I might get a cold." Leon looked at Alyssa and turned his head to close his eyes.

"Is that so?" Alyssa looked at Leon suspiciously, pursed her lips, and said softly, "Then shall I take you to the hospital?"

"No, I'm probably just too tired and need some rest."

"Then let's go back first. If your condition gets worse, I'll call the family doctor for you."

Ten minutes later.

Alyssa took Leon back to the room.

Leon, who was tall and strong, looked like a chicken exposed to the cold wind, lying listlessly on the bed.

Alyssa had never seen Leon like this. He looked so miserable. She was so worried about him that she stayed to take care of him personally.

Leon naturally took Alyssa's hand and didn't let her go.

His purpose at this moment was to keep Alyssa from leaving. If she left, how could he get her to rest?

"I'd better call the doctor. You look pretty pale." Alyssa didn't notice anything wrong, so she tried to find a doctor to see Leon.

Leon, however, kept saying no.

"You're sick, but I don't know what's wrong with you. A doctor can help you see exactly what's happening to you."

Leon just wouldn't let her go. He kept quiet and trapped her tightly, not letting her move.

Alyssa thought Leon was very sick, but she didn't know what was wrong with him.

His forehead wasn't hot. Alyssa was worried about him and wanted to get him a doctor. But he wouldn't even let go of her hand when she poured him a glass of water.

Leon held Alyssa.

This girl was so obedient. Every time she wanted to leave, he would use all kinds of reasons to keep her, and she really didn't leave.

She took care of him very seriously.

Being taken care of by Alyssa, he was really a bit sleepy. After a while, he fell asleep.

When Alyssa saw him fall asleep, she thought he was really sick and was a little worried.

She knew he must be tired. She was exhausted with one project, and Leon had to handle the whole Hunter Group, so he was even more tired.

He probably hadn't had a good night's sleep in a long time. The dark circles under his eyes were heavy and he looked very tired.

Alyssa took her iPad and worked on her job while keeping Leon company. An hour had passed in the blink of an eye.

She yawned tiredly, took a sip of coffee, and started to work again.

Leon slept soundly and always felt warm around him. So he slept more and more soundly as he got warmer around him. He hadn't felt this way for a long time.

Alyssa was busy until 2:00 am and fell asleep on the table in exhaustion.

Leon faintly felt the bright light. He opened his eyes slightly and suddenly realized that it was his bedroom. Then he relaxed.

He slowly sat up and saw Alyssa lying beside him. He looked up slightly and saw the program displayed on her iPad. He vaguely saw a part of the program. This program was not only rigorous, but also innovative. It was definitely not something a newcomer could do.

This should be Summit Group's program. Although he already knew the process of this matter, he did not know this program.

It should be good to be led by a great leader like Hassan.

Hassan reminded her that she was just a newcomer.

However, he also urged her to be humble and hardworking.

But he still wondered why Hassan was so intent on nurturing his wife.

He looked at Alyssa's sleeping face and thought of a baby.

Her eyes were closed and her long, curly eyelashes looked like the wings of butterflies falling on flowers.

She was so sweet that it made people happy to look at her.

Did Hassan like her because she was good and obedient?

No.

Alyssa was not the only good and obedient person Hassan had seen.

Thinking about it, Leon became a little wary.

Before, he was wary of Ryan, and now he was wary of Hassan.

But now he only cared about Alyssa who was asleep in front of him.

Leon looked at her quietly and thought of the little girl he had rescued from the water years ago.

He thought he wasn't needed at that time, but he ran into Alyssa, who had accidentally fallen into the water, and when he jumped into the water to rescue her, her hand clung to his.

At that moment, he suddenly had a feeling of being needed.

At that time, he gave her the white jade amulet that his mother left him.

She was so scared and hugged him tightly. He told her he would come back to her when he grew up.

He knew that she was the Grahams' daughter from the beginning. She was not talkative, her grades were not good, and her personality was not pleasant.

But in fact, she was just timid and unsociable.

Her grades weren't bad before but changed after she met Ryan.

Now that she was with him, she looked different from before.

Leon looked at Alyssa, who slept quietly beside him, and smiled at her.

He carefully put a coat on her.

He could feel her heart drawing closer to him little by little.

Ryan seemed to have become a thing of the past for her.

In fact, she hadn't mentioned a word about Ryan since she married him.

When he thought that this good little girl would belong to him forever, he suddenly wanted to hug her, but he was worried about waking her up.

He looked at her quietly and woke Alyssa up with a slight movement of his hand.

Alyssa moved a little and quickly sat up. She rubbed her drowsy eyes and looked at Leon. Then she stood up immediately as if she suddenly remembered something and she almost dropped the iPad in front of her on the floor.

She hurriedly grabbed the iPad and almost knocked over the cup. Exasperated with her fumbling, she looked up at Leon with a look of shame on her little face.

Would Leon dislike her after she acted so stupid in front of him?

Alyssa tried to calm herself down and wanted to behave better in front of Leon. Luckily, she quickly calmed down her emotions.

Leon watched as she looked like a frightened rabbit at first, then quickly turned into a monkey jumping up and down, and now into a smart deer.

She changed quickly, and each of her changes was naturally cute. No wonder she was valued by Hassan.

Alyssa didn't hear Leon's voice for a long time, and when she looked up, she saw Leon staring at her.

She lowered her head in embarrassment, "Are you feeling better? Are you still feeling sick?"

"Yeah." Leon nodded and looked at Alyssa, "Are you tired?"

"Not really!" Alyssa stretched and rubbed her eyes. Knowing that Leon was still in good spirits, she was finally relieved.

"Why don't you get some sleep?"

"No! You just go to rest, don't worry about me." Alyssa noticed that the coffee in his cup was gone and turned around to pour another cup of coffee. As she poured the water, she said, "I still have some work to do. I need these materials tomorrow to speed up the project. Summit Group is already anxious."
