

The Pinnacle of Life – Chapter 1067

Stacey's mouth was stuffed to the brim. That look was weird.

Anna, who was at the side, was dumbfounded upon seeing it.

As for Stacey, she almost went crazy. She was the granddaughter of the Missouri's ninth division commander. Wherever she went, she would be mingling around the second or third generation of the noble families. Of course, she was very competitive herself and she had never been subjected to such an inhumane treatment before.

Not only did she get slapped and had her hair pulled by someone, but she even got stuffed by heels...

All of a sudden, she exploded in anger like a barrel of gunpowder that had been lit.

She took the heels out of her mouth and scolded loudly, "How dare you treat me like that? Are you still a man for hitting a woman like that? I, Stacey Cooper, have never met someone so rough and unreasonable like you in my life."

Alex calmly replied, "What kind of reasoning do I need to tell a snowflake like you who would simply take your own life once things don't go your own way?"

"Aren't you not afraid that my grandpa is going to go after you?"

"Haha! If I were your grandfather, I'll slap you to death!"

"You..."

Stacey had more to say but Alex was too lazy to listen to her. He waved his hand and a force of spiritual power hit her hard on her acupoint, causing her to faint.

Anna said, "Master, I'm afraid you might actually offend this military lady. If her grandfather ever finds out that you have stuffed heels into her mouth, he might get very furious."

Alex said, "Don't worry. If her grandfather is a reasonable man, he won't act rashly toward me. If he's unreasonable, I'll beat him up as well."

"My master is the greatest!"

While looking dainty, Anna hugged Alex's arm and leaned in on him. Her tigress's grandeur was not present anymore. She even learned how to bootlick.

Alex looked at her sideways and suddenly asked, "Have you seen 'The Journey of Flower' before?"

"I watched a little. What about it?"

"I'm suspecting that you're learning from her."

"What did I learn from her?"

"Flirting with your master!"

Anna's pretty eyes brightened up. "Could there really be such an operation? I thought that only male disciples would flirt with their master. For example, the Condor Hero and Shooriyojou. Then... Will Master be willing to do so?"

Alex's mouth twitched. "You better not."

Anna giggled and said, "Where's Stephen Hendrix? Is his face better?"

Alex nodded his head. “Yes, but he needs to rest for a while.”

Seeing that there was still some time left, Alex said, “Let’s go down there and have a look. The old demon from the Blood Cult came from the underground earlier. This guy is a Shadowman and his powers are not weak. We might get a windfall.”

Just now, Alex managed to locate the place where the old demon was in seclusion by capturing the aura released by him. He immediately brought along Anna to look for the place.

When they opened the door to the basement, a ghastly and bloody smell assailed their nostrils. The two of them immediately covered their noses and they almost puked.

Anna greatly frowned as she said, “Master, I’m not going in. It’s too disgusting!”

Alex nodded his head. After using his spiritual powers to construct a barrier, he said, “You wait for me outside then. I’ll go have a look.”

Once he took a step into the basement, he could immediately sense a change of scene before his eyes.

“A spell formation?”

Alex’s heart skipped a beat but soon he calmed himself down. That was neither an attacking nor trapping type spell formation but it was similar to spell formation that isolated the scent in a secret room and prevented the sensing of spiritual consciousness.

No wonder Alex could not find anything when he tried to quietly explore the place with the spiritual stone. However, after coming in and seeing the scene inside, he could not help but shiver even though he was already mentally prepared. If the first floor of the Amaryllis Tower was hell on earth now, then this place would be a purgatory for fierce ghosts.

There were white bones and blood everywhere.

The surrounding walls were fully painted with strange brown runes with a bloody smell assailing his nostril. At a glance, he knew that those were painted using human's blood. The runes were part of the isolating formation.

Recently, Alex was studying the formation blueprint corresponding to the Sword of the Universe. The runes on it were hundred times more complicated and profound than this. After studying that, these runes were fairly easy when he looked at the formation blueprint.

Soon, he found the clue. This could be said to be a simple application.

However, Alex still felt delighted because the application of the formation blueprint allowed him to find a way to crack the formation and used it to extrapolate information. After seeing through a complete formation blueprint, and then looking at the complex ones again, he actually had a painstaking like gain.
