

The Pinnacle of Life Chapter 426

Priscilla led them to the models.

Madam White was secretly observing them from the other side. She said mockingly, “Young lady, your colleague over there is going to be doing charity work. How could that family ever buy a property? I’m their neighbour, so I know them well. They’re just bluffing so they could seem richer than they really are.”

The saleswoman nodded and smiled. “It doesn’t matter, she’s a part-timer anyway! So, Madam White, have you decided on any of the villas here? Would you like me to bring you to the actual site?”

“Yes, let’s go!”

After looking around the area, the family of three came back to the main hall. Madam White was very excited, she was fond of every single villa in this area.

The saleswoman seemed to be excited too. She thought, ‘Thank god I ditched that poor family for these people. Looks like I might actually sell one villa today.’

With this thought in mind, she enthusiastically gave them a few suggestions.

However, Madam White’s son-in-law replied, “We’ve seen the villas, I think they’re generally pretty okay. But we still have to look at other areas, so we can compare and discuss on which to get.”

Madam White panicked. “What’s more to discuss? I think Villa 12 is nice, I like it.”

Her daughter replied, "Mom, what are you rushing for? Even if we wanted to buy it, we'd have to at least sell our old house. We can't buy it now, where would we even get the money?"

Madam White was shocked. "What? Sell the old house? Didn't you say your husband was buying it for us?"

"How would my husband have this much money?"

Upon hearing this, the saleswoman's face turned green. 'You f*ckers, you were just bluffing all this while!'

Just then, loud clapping and light music chimed from the other side of the hall. The saleswoman knew that one of the villas had been sold.

She turned around and was appalled. She realized that Alex's family was the one being surrounded by a crowd.

'They bought a villa already?'

Madam White and her family stared in disbelief as well. She rushed over immediately. "Claire Assex, you actually bought a property? You bought a villa in this area? Where did you get that much money?"

Claire huffed. "My son-in-law bought it for me. That cheque wasn't fake, I just accidentally crumpled it last time! Oh, has your family bought one? The villa next to mine seems pretty nice, Villa 12 was it? You should get your hands on it now, before it's too late."

Madam White's face went pale. "Villa 12... Uhm... I don't like it as much. We'll just take a look at the others."

They then left the hall in a hurry as the saleswoman glared at them as she started to regret her actions immensely.

The Villa that Alex bought was Villa 10, valued at nearly twenty million.

It had an indoor pool and patio built in both the front and back. A beautiful garden was built on top of the balcony as well. It was truly a luxurious design. It was already built so that tenants could move in immediately.

'Villa 10 is one of the three best villas in Senna Port!'

The saleswoman knew that she would be able to earn two percent of commission of four hundred thousand dollars if she were to sell a villa.

'Oh lord! I lost four hundred thousand because of my foolishness.'

"Congratulations, Brother Alex! You're the owner of this property now!" Priscilla smiled brightly. "Give me your identity card and I'll register it for you. Also, since you paid the full amount to buy this, you'd receive lots of gifts too! They will be sent to your villa shortly."

Alex took out a copy of Dorothy's identity card. "Use my wife's instead, register it under her name."

Claire was satisfied with this reply, smiling as she stared at Alex. This was probably the first time she had ever smiled at Alex in the past year.

After that, they headed straight to Villa 10. Beatrice took out her phone to take some pictures so that she could send it to her sister. However, a notification popped up on her screen. It was from the Zendaya fan group.

Zendaya had spent two hours in a hotel with a mysterious man, pictures were included in the article too. She looked at the photo and her eyes widened in disbelief.

'The mysterious man was Alex!'
