

The Pinnacle of Life – Chapter 0779

When Claire was on her way to Maple Villa, she was insanely confident in herself.

She had analyzed Alex and Dorothy's relationship thoroughly.

From when they started dating in university until he came to live with them, she had remembered every single detail. This woman was extremely bigoted towards money, so she was able to recall all her memories just for money itself.

She could remember just how Alex took care of Dorothy when she was sick. She even remembered how Alex massaged Dorothy's feet when she felt tired. His expression filled with love was definitely not just a mere act.

Back then, she saw Alex as just a mere loser for being willing to do such things for his woman. It's like he didn't have a man's pride, as if he was willing to slave away for her.

However, her attitude was much different this time, she figured that this could be her biggest trump card.

'There's just no way that Alex could ever move on from my daughter.'

With this, she came to a conclusion that Alex didn't admit to this just because others were around.

'As long as I talk to him in private, he would definitely agree to get back together with Dorothy. He would give me anything that I ask for too!'

She knew Alex quite well, she knew that love was more important to him, compared to money.

"Hmph, he's such a dumb*ss, but I guess that's kind of cute!"

“How else could I have you wrapped around my fingers?”

When Claire arrived at Maple Villa, she even started humming happily. Her voice was oddly melodious coming from someone like her.

At the same time, Brittany and Maya arrived at the entrance to their area as well.

The two had gone to the supermarket and bought some groceries. As soon as they drove in, they noticed Claire sitting at their front gate.

In reality, one of the keys to Maple Villa 8 was still with Dorothy, Claire just had no clue about that. Since the steel gate was able to sense the key from within the car, it opened up for them.

Claire followed in as the car was being parked inside.

Just a while ago, Claire had her head lowered, looking up information on Lush Cosmetics. She found out that a bottle of scar removing cream had a bid up to ten million dollars. She was appalled.

A while ago, a female celebrity had been caught up in a car crash, which led to a scar on her face.

The celebrity somehow found out about Lush Cosmetics' scar removing cream and publicly announced her price because she couldn't seem to get her hands on it. Even so, she still couldn't buy even just one bottle.

Claire's shock was just as strong as an earthquake. Although she disliked Brittany, she was still extremely impressed by how popular Brittany's products had become.

She continued to stare at her screen, paying no attention to the people in the car. She thought that Alex had come home, which was why she followed them inside.

Brittany and Maya were still sitting in the car, looking at each other in confusion.

Maya lowered her voice. "Isn't that Dorothy's mother? Why is she waiting at our gate? Look, she's coming over."

Brittany looked extremely upset, as if she had eaten a fly. She huffed and said, "I'd like to see what she's up to."

She opened the door and got out of the car.

When Claire noticed that the person getting out of the car was wearing heels, her heart dropped.

'A woman?'

'This isn't what I originally planned.'

She immediately calmed herself down.

'It's alright, I just need to talk to Alex in private. I can definitely persuade him as long as I want to!'

However, what she saw next made her heart jump.
