

Triplets on SM 191

Chapter 191 Sean gave the nod. 'If I could choose not to attend, I wouldn't be asking you now,' he thought. "Then I'll have to go with you," Molly said helplessly, folding her arms. 'I'll follow him because there's no other option, and it's only two days.' Molly pondered. Sean did not agree right away. He paused, concerned that he would annoy Molly. "What about the kids?" he inquired.

"Bring them along," Molly responded directly. They exchanged glances before she asked, "Would it be a bother to your work?"

Sean denied it with a shake of his head. 'I thought it would bother Molly more because I was going on a business trip. She only treated my illness and wouldn't interfere with my work.'

Molly went back to Grandpa Dave after they agreed on the arrangement. "Sure, just look after yourselves," Grandpa Dave said. Molly could care for herself while abroad, so Grandpa Dave was not concerned. 'She'll be gone for two days, and the butler will be here, so it'll only be two days without a good meal.' 'We're not going to be the third wheel to Mommy and Daddy!' thought the triplets sitting next to them.

"We're staying to keep Great Grandpa company!" exclaimed Ben, clinging to Grandpa Dave as if he didn't want to leave his side. The other two followed. "Yes! I don't want to abandon Great Grandpa!" Claudia stated.

"I'm not comfortable leaving Ben and Claudia behind as the eldest. So I also wanted to stay with Great Grandpa." Alex spoke maturely as usual.

'Didn't these three enjoy having fun?' Molly asked, surprised. 'What made them decide to stay at home this time?' She looked at the triplets as if something was wrong.

Grandpa Dave was overjoyed by what the triplets had said, so he said, "I adore you, children. However, I appreciate your thoughts, but you should listen to your mother." Grandpa Dave was well aware that the children enjoy having fun. They should go if they have the opportunity. He knew they were only trying to make him happy, so he ignored their words.

The triplets shook their heads and said, "No, Great Grandpa! We really wanted to stay and accompany you!" "That's right! You'll be lonely without us, Great Grandpa! Don't you think it would be nice to hear us laugh and giggle?" Claudia explained, worried that Great Grandpa would say no again. 'We are absolutely not going! This is an excellent opportunity for Mommy and Daddy to spend time alone. A new environment means a better chance of chemistry! It would be ideal if Mommy and Daddy returned and married!' "Are you sure you want Great Grandpa to be home alone, Mommy?" Alex inquired. With an innocent expression, he tossed the ball back to Molly.

'Of course I would say no. Grandpa Dave is someone important to me,' Molly thought.

However, Molly felt strange and didn't know how to express herself, so she said, "You three are free to return home. But you must be respectful and listen to Great Grandpa. You promise to cat on time and not just play all day and ignore your homework?" Molly's words indicated that she agreed, and her agreement delighted the triplets. They all prayed in their hearts, 'Hope the couple makes new progress when they return!'

The next day, Molly simply packed a small amount of luggage and drove to the airport with Sean after they had their lunch. They took a direct flight to the neighboring city.

Chapter 192 Molly and Sean arrived in the neighboring city around 3 p.m. The clouds are drifting slowly across the clear, blue sky. As soon as they exited the airport, a car was waiting for them, and it drove them directly to the hotel.

This is the city's most luxurious five-star hotel. Many plants surrounded the hotel, and the atmosphere was peaceful and serene. The structure was designed in a distinctive and high-end British style. As they entered the hotel, Tony was waiting at the front desk.

"So, boss and Ms. May, what are your thoughts? Not bad, right?" Tony smiled as he greeted.

Tony took over the wheelchair's handrail and escorted them upstairs. He had made the arrangements and handled the check-in for them earlier.

"Not bad," Molly commented lightly. The hotel's green environment is unusual in a city, and most hotels' styles were more resort-like. The three boarded the elevator together and proceeded to the top floor. "Boss, this is your room," Tony said. He swiped the card and pushed open the door. The boss's room is, of course, a presidential suite.

As the door opened, they noticed how large the room was. In the center of the living room was a soft European-style rosewood-colored leather sofa. On the coffee table, there is an exquisite tea set. A small incense burner with a red copper base fills the room with a soothing fragrance. The room appears simple and atmospheric. "Come in, Ms. May, and see if you like it or not," Tony said to Molly, standing outside the door.

"Am I staying here as well?" Molly immediately recognized what he meant and inquired suspiciously. 'The setting in this suite was obviously the best,' she thought. "Yes, treating my boss will be convenient for you. Furthermore, it is now the peak tourist season in this city. I wouldn't let Ms. May stay in a standard room."

Tony explained with a smile, concealing his inner anxiety. 'If my boss sees through my plans, I'm done!

"Don't worry, Ms. May. There would be no issue because this suite is roomy." Tony persuaded.

Molly looked around as she listened to Tony's words. The presidential suite is enormous. The living room is divided into two floors by a spiral staircase. It was very luxurious, like a smaller version of a villa.

'Even if we stayed in here together, we probably wouldn't see each other much,' Molly thought.

"Okay, then," Despite having a strange feeling in her heart, Molly accepted Tony's arrangement.

Sean remained silent. He didn't care about these things and thus had no opinion. He received the same treatment whether they stayed nearby or far away.

Tony let out a sigh of relief. 'When they were silent, I felt like my heart was about to jump out of my chest,' he thought. 'Fortunately, Ms. May eventually agreed.'

“Why don’t you both take a break? You must be exhausted from your journey. I’ll go talk to the manager.” Tony excused himself, wiped the cold sweat from his brow, and walked away. Tony’s heart felt at ease when he left the room, and he was no longer nervous.

Tony took out his phone and texted the triplets, “It’s settled!”

The texts above were from the triplets, asking him to assist and give Ms. May and his boss some alone time.

Tony then put his cell away. ‘Did my head get knocked over or something? Why would I listen to the triplets’ words to match Ms. May and boss?’ After a quick lunch in the presidential suite, Molly and Sean returned to their rooms. Molly was bored after her nap. She got up and went downstairs to watch some movies and dramas to pass the time. ‘I haven’t seen Sean leave his room all afternoon; is he really busy?’ Molly thought.

Chapter 193 Molly looked around a corner upstairs but saw no sign of Sean coming down.

‘Being president of the Anderson Corporation was not easy; Sean had never left the room since he arrived.’ Molly thought.

When it was time for dinner, Molly noticed Sean had left his room.

She lowered her head to cut the steak on her plate, and she heard a voice while cutting the meat with her knife.

“Ms. May, will you be bored? If you are, I can arrange for someone to accompany you on a walk, “Sean proposed. Molly stated casually, “I’ll be fine. You just concentrate on your work.” This kind of life isn’t particularly dull to her. It was much better than studying ancient medical techniques, with beautiful scenery and delicious food. Sean looked at her and responded silently, then took a few bites and returned to his room. Molly observed him as he shut the door. She reached out and took a piece of Baguette, then continued eating while looking suspiciously at the closed door. ‘Could Sean have come out just for dinner with me?’ Molly wondered aloud. Molly had no idea, but she guessed correctly. Sean asked her to accompany him because it’s terrible to leave her alone in the hotel, even if he’s swamped.

Molly was about to return to her room after finishing her meal when the triplets video called her.

“Mommy!” “What are you doing, Mommy? Where is Uncle Sean?” “Did Mommy miss Claudia?”

Molly was perplexed because the triplets all spoke at the same time.

“Of course, I missed everyone. I just finished my meal. What about the three of you? Did you eat your meals and behave properly around Great-Grandpa? Uncle Sean is currently very busy and cannot speak with you.” Molly smiled as she looked at the triplets’ adorable little faces.

Alex replied, “Mommy, we’ve eaten as well. It’s alright. Uncle Sean can get to work first.” “Of course we behaved! Great Grandpa adores spending time with us!” Ben exclaimed proudly. “Mommy, what have you been up to all day?” Claudia asked with her chin held up and her eyes wide with interest.

The triplets were curious about how their Mommy and Uncle Sean spent their time together. “I had a lot of free time today, so I watched movies, and dramas, ate, drank, and played all day, “Molly said as she stared at the screen.

The three must-have regretted not accompanying me,' Molly thought. "What about Uncle Sean?" Alex asked. "Of course not. Uncle Sean had been very busy all day. Except for dinner, he stayed in the room all day to handle business," Molly explained. The triplets are a little disappointed after Molly finishes her sentence.

'He only went there for work. Shouldn't there be some action? Don't they have some other plans? After all, they were sharing a suite; how did they manage to exist in their own world?'

The triplets were perplexed and felt there was a schism between their mother and Uncle Sean. The triplets, on the other hand, were not left disappointed for long. After all, they didn't want their Mommy to find out about it while they were still on the video call. "I see Uncle Sean is working very hard." Claudia expressed herself emotionally. "It doesn't matter because Mommy is there. She will undoubtedly look after Uncle Sean," Ben is trying to console Claudia. Molly's strange feeling reappeared. 'I look after Sean,' she thought. "Yes, Mommy is Uncle Sean's doctor," Alex clarified. Molly hung up the phone after talking for a while. She kept watching the movie she hadn't finished earlier in the afternoon. There were five films in total, and she had already seen three.

Chapter 194 It was getting late. When Molly finished watching the fifth film, she noticed that Sean had not yet come out of his room.

Molly frowned and went upstairs, knocking on his door. Sean had been lost in his work, and the unexpected knock on the door served as a wake-up call, jolting him back to reality. 'Almost forgot about the treatment,' he thought.

"Come in," Sean said. He set the document down, rubbed his glabella, and looked at the person who walked in through the door. 'He was obviously not in good health, and he still had such a huge workload,' Molly frowned as she noticed Sean's tired eyes. 'Isn't he aware of balancing work and rest?'

Molly wanted to say the words in her head to Sean, but she restrained herself. She disliked interfering with other people's lives.

"Let's get started with the treatment." Molly made a gesture while holding the needle case.

After the treatment

Molly was also tired. Before she left, she said, "The nighttime temperature here is lower than in Northfolk. Remember to put on a coat and get some rest after you take a bath."

"All right," Sean said, opening the notebook on the table. Molly didn't bother Sean any further after noticing how busy he was. A breeze blew outside at night, and the air became slightly cooler. Molly was sound asleep when she was startled by a knock on the door.

"Ms. May! Are you there?"

Molly sat up, perplexed, and quickly came to.

"Ms. May!"

'It was Tony's voice,' Molly pondered. Molly quickly put on her coat and went down to open the door. "What's the matter?" she asked.

She opened the door and looked at the person. Her hair was a little unkempt, and her voice was sluggish.

“Boss has a fever!” exclaimed Tony. He didn’t want to barge in, so he could only yell at the door. ‘I understand that disturbing someone’s sleep is immoral. But I had no choice!’ Tony thought.

Tony thought.

Molly’s expression changed, and she walked straight into Sean’s room. ‘Why did he suddenly get a fever?’ she wondered. Tony quickly followed behind her, sensing her annoyance and fearing that she had misinterpreted him. Hence, he said timidly, “Ms. May, I followed your instructions. After the bath, I put on a coat for my boss and gave him a cup of hot water before putting him to bed.” ‘Ever since Ms. May caught the boss drinking, she has said that if he does not follow her instructions, she will no longer treat him. We didn’t mess around and did exactly what was asked of us! Ms. May is, after all, the boss’s only hope. We, of course, listened to her. It’s just that the fever came so suddenly...’

Tony was also panicking in his heart.

They entered Sean’s room.

Molly sat beside the bed as she frowned at the person on the bed. ‘His face was pale, not flushed, and a little weak.’

“There’s a bag on the table in my room. There was a box inside. Take two pills after opening . the box and counting the third compartment from left to right.” Molly said calmly, her attention focused on the patient. “Please get the needle case as well,” she added. “Okay, I’ll bring them right away,” Tony said. He turned around and went to get the items requested. Molly sat there silently watching. After a while, the man on the bed asked softly, “Are you angry?” “No, I’m not. You didn’t intend for this to happen,” Molly stated. Her tone was less agitated than the last time.

There are numerous causes of fever. Molly, as a doctor, was not blaming the patient. Furthermore, because the person in front of her is not a child, she does not need to repeat herself three or four times.

The priority right now is to get the fever under control.

Tony returned with the items and handed them to Molly. “The medicine will be very bitter, but don’t spit it out,” said Molly.<

Chapter 195

Molly stuffed the medicine into Sean’s mouth. She then helped him up and handed him a glass of water.

Sean, on the other hand, furrowed his brows. He felt like all his strength had been sapped out that he could barely hold the glass while drinking the water. The medicine was indeed bitter, so bitter that the taste filled his mouth.

“Lay him back down.”

Tony listened to Molly's instructions. He laid Sean down on the bed.

"You should go rest. Tomorrow will be another busy day. If you fall ill from fatigue, I'll charge you a higher fee," Molly spoke to Tony with her head lowered as she was about to give Sean a needle treatment. She was well aware that aside from taking care of Sean, Tony had to oversee Sean's company for him as his assistant. If there were any issues, Tony had to take care of them.

Tony knew what she meant and did not want to add more trouble to her already filled plate." Alright. Please call me when there's anything you need. I'll be in the room next to my boss."

After she completed the needle treatment, only then did Molly realize Sean was asleep. As she put away the needles, she thought, 'He looks pretty exhausted. Luckily, it's just a common cold, and his fever isn't high.'

However, she did not leave the room. 'Well, somebody needs to stay to check on him.'

Therefore, Molly stayed up in the room to look after him.

The next morning—

Sean's fever had completely subsided. The moment he was awake, he was slightly startled when he found Molly beside his bed, and their eyes met.

Molly's mouth twitched as she saw that. She did not feel like talking because her mind was tired. Instead, she returned to her room right after she got up.

Sean helped himself up. He sat on the bed alone for a long while before calling for Tony.

"Boss, are you feeling better?" "I'm feeling alright," said Sean in a wheelchair Tony was pushing. "That's great. Thank god we have Ms. May. The breakfast is ready. I'll call for her to join you," said Tony while pushing the wheelchair to the bathroom so Sean could wash himself. However, Sean stopped Tony. "There's no need for that. Let her get some sleep," he said flatly.

After pondering a bit, Tony nodded. "You're right. She stayed up late. We should let her get some sleep."

In the bathroom, Sean was spacing out while looking at himself in the mirror. He knew that Molly had stayed up for him the whole night until he woke up. After having his breakfast, Sean spoke to Tony, who was packing up luggage for him, "Book the room next to ours." Sean's words surprised Tony because they were supposed to get themselves ready to leave the hotel. However, Sean canceled the plan because he did not want to leave Molly alone in the hotel.

"What's the matter?"

"Call those bunch from the subsidiary to meet me here instead," said Sean. Tony stopped packing and did what he was told.

In the afternoon, Molly woke up to the voice calling her and vaguely saw a man near her bed. "What's up?" she asked in a soft voice. Unlike her usual indifferent tone, it sounded gentle and sweet.

She rested her head on the soft pillow, her hair slightly messy, her eyes shut after blinking a few times, as though she would fall back into her sleep again. Sean kept his composure and averted his gaze away from her. He somehow found Molly cute when she was acting this way.

‘Isn’t that Sean’s voice? I thought he was still sick,’ Molly thought with her eyes shut, her mind still groggy. She opened her right eye a mere slit and placed her hand on Sean’s forehead.

‘Good. His fever is gone,’ said Molly in her mind with her eye shut again. Feeling glad, she retracted her hand and wanted to return to her slumber.

Sean, on the other hand, was startled, his mind flustered. He looked at the groggy lady on the bed. Apparently, her head was not clear. So, his ruffled mind settled down a little.

Chapter 196 When Molly was about to fall asleep, the thought of Sean suddenly came into her mind. ‘Sean?!’ Molly opened her eyes instantly and sat up straight. Their gaze met, her chest slightly heaving. She looked rather surprised.

Only when she recalled Sean was there to inform her of lunchtime did she regain her composure. “I was just checking if you still had a fever.”

Sean landed his gaze on Molly’s dry lips. Despite the serious look on her face, she spoke in a gentle and sweet voice. He felt she had an innocent look. At the thought of it being his first time seeing this side of her, he could not help but curl his lips.

Before taking his leave, Sean turned and said, “You should get up and wash. Lunch is ready downstairs.”

The two were having lunch together. Suddenly, Molly recalled something. “I thought you had to go out today.”

Sean’s face remained the same when he replied, “I’ve brought my work here since I’m afraid I would feel unwell again.”

The hospital in Northfolk– The triplets felt bored at home since Molly was with Sean. Hence, they decided to pay Brycen a visit, thinking that he must be feeling bored from having to stay in the hospital alone.

When Brycen received a phone call from the triplets, he happily said yes to them and asked Russell to take them to the hospital.

Brycen’s room in the hospital was no longer drab with the cute and lovely triplets there. Many nurses and doctors there liked to play with them. Some had even given them treats. They had become even more attentive to Brycen.

In the afternoon, Lara came to visit her son. The time she arrived at the door, she heard the noise from the room.

When she opened the door and realized it was Molly’s children, she gave them the cold shoulder and sounded displeased as she said, “For God’s sake, where are your manners? Don’t you know this is a hospital, and you shouldn't make noise?" "My son is a patient. How could the three of you play in his bed?" Her questions immediately silenced the room.

The triplets were obedient. They got off Brycen's bed, thinking that Lara was Brycen's mother and that Molly had always taught them to respect others when they were outside.

Brycen frowned upon seeing Lara. His face turned from joy to indifference. "Mom, there was no need for you to say that. You are too much! They were just kids!" "What if they make your leg injury worse?" Lara's unfriendly gaze swept past the triplets. 'These brats have no manners. They are as unruly as those kids in the countryside!'

"That won't happen. We've been very careful," said Alex immediately.

Lara got even more annoyed as she felt that he was talking back at her. She asked in an aggressive manner, "What is that happens? Or you can guarantee it won't happen?" Alex and his siblings felt wronged being reprimanded. They had been cautious, doing their best to avoid contact with their uncle's leg.

Brycen's face turned slightly grave. He took the triplets' side because he felt that they were obedient and well-mannered.

He found his mother unreasonable and her hostility unacceptable. "You've been nothing but fierce at the kids. They are your grandchildren!" yelled Brycen indifferently.

Lara said with a mockery, "They aren't my grandchildren but b*stards. The May family has never recognized them."

Not only did she scold them, but she also insulted

Lara's words deeply offended the Molly.

"We aren't b*stards!" the triplets retorted the next second. Brycen could not help to scowl. "Mom, be mindful with your words when speaking before children!" he reprimanded Lara.

Chapter 197 Lara got furious and lashed out at the triplets. "Did I say anything wrong? Molly fooled around with someone and gave birth to them. They don't even know their father. Doesn't that make them b*stards?"

Claudia was furious. She retorted at Lara, "That isn't true. We've found our daddy!" "You are going too far. How could you speak such nasty words while being an elder? Did you forget to brush your teeth this morning?" Ben could not help to talk back. His words had angered Lara even more. "Did I go too far, or did your mother not know how to teach you manners? I'll teach you manners today!" Lara rushed to Ben and grabbed him, wanting to beat him.

When Alex saw Lara was about to lay her hands on Ben, he hurriedly went over to protect his younger brother. Hence, the smack landed on Alex instead. SLAP!

Alex's back was hit. Brycen had wanted to stop Lara, but he could not make it in time either.

That was the first time Claudia saw his brother getting beaten. She cried loud.

Ben was grumpy. The moment he saw Alex take the beating for him, he shoved Lara away

“Stop hitting my brother, you old hag!”

Lara stumbled a few steps and almost fell over; her angry face reddened.

No one had ever offended Lara to this extent before. ‘I might not be able to do anything about Molly. But for sure, I can handle these brats!’

Russell did not expect Lara to lay her hands on the children without warning. He rushed to stop her, fearing that they would suffer more beating. “Madam, they’re just kids. There’s no need to get rough with them.”

Lara was panting as she glared at the triplets. She snarled, “They are already sharp-tongued when they’re kids. What will they become when they grow up?”

When she said that, she shoved Russell away, wanting to continue to “teach” the triplets.

The commotion in the room had brought some nurses. Coincidentally, Caitlyn was there and saw Claudia weeping heavily. She rushed into the room without hesitation.

“What happened? What’s going on?” When Claudia saw Caitlyn, she leaped into Caitlyn. “This bad granny beat my brother. She beat my brother!”

Caitlyn’s face darkened. She carried Claudia in her hand, and while giving Lara a cold stare, she pulled Alex and Ben behind her. Apparently, she was protecting the triplets.

“Madam, why did you beat the kids out of nowhere?” Caitlyn questioned Lara. Lara retorted with no shame, “I’m teaching them a lesson. What does it have to do with you?”

“Who are you to teach them a lesson? They’ve been great kids since they were young. Even their mother could not bring herself to punish them physically. Who do you think you are to teach them a lesson?” Caitlyn was angry at Lara’s attitude. Lara choked a little. She then said, “What’s wrong with me teaching my grandchildren?” ‘Your grandchildren? Huh?’ Caitlyn smirked with mockery in her eyes.

“If I recall correctly, you don’t even recognize Molly as your daughter. But now you have the nerve to claim that they are your grandchildren? I’ll tell her that you used to force on the children! “After she gave Lara a piece of her mind, Caitlyn took the triplets away and left without hesitation.

Brycen felt very sad upon this sight. He knew that in his state, he could not protect the triplets. So, he did not stop Caitlyn from taking them away. He shot his mother a glare.

“You’ve gone too far today! You need to apologize to them!” “I’m your mother. How could you say that to me?!” Lara did not expect Brycen to take the sides of the triplets, who she thought to be ill-mannered.

Chapter 198 Brycen’s gaze at Lara turned even colder. His anger was replaced by disappointment eventually.

He had no idea how someone as kind as his mother became an unreasonable mad woman.

Lara was frightened under Brycen's frosty stare. Although she was nervous, she found herself a place and sat down without a second thought.

Russell, on the other hand, shook his head. He did not place any expectations on Lara.

"I'll check on the triplets," he said as he was heading to the door. He paused on his way out when he walked past Lara and sneered, "They're such lovely kids. How on earth someone could lay their hands on them?"

Russell exited the room after he said that. As for Lara, her face became pale when she heard him.

Although the triplets had been taken away from Lara by Caitlyn, they could not conceal their sadness.

"Everything is okay now. That old hag won't come for you. I'll call your mother, okay?" Caitlyn's intention was to comfort the triplets. Her initial plan was to inform Molly about it. She did not expect them to stop her from telling Molly. "Don't call mommy!"

"Don't tell mommy!" Claudia and her brothers nodded. None of them wanted Molly to find out about this. "Aunt Caitlyn, please don't tell my mommy. I'm okay now. If you tell her, she'll get angry." Alex politely explained to Caitlyn.

"Mommy has to treat daddy, so she can't leave him."

Caitlyn gave in after being persuaded. She knew how dearly the triplets held Sean and Molly. For their parents, they could even endure their grievances. Therefore, she could not bring herself to spoil their intention. "Alright then. I'll bring you out for a feast tonight. Don't be sad, okay?" The triplets nodded.

It was more than two hours later by the time Caitlyn got off work. She had wanted to leave the hospital along with the triplets directly. However, the triplets wanted to say goodbye to their uncle before leaving. So, she took them to Brycen's room.

Lara was no longer there. Brycen did not expect the triplets to return to see him. "Alex, why did you come back? Were you injured just now? Quick, let me have a look!" Brycen was worried about Alex; He was desperate to check on him. However, only when he tried to move did he remember he was immobile; his leg was plastered, so he could not move. "Uncle, I'm fine. We're here to say goodbye before going back with Aunt Caitlyn. We'll pay you a visit again."

Brycen's eyes reddened as he felt even more guilty after hearing Alex's words. He could only blame himself for being immobile and could not stop Lara. With a smile, he said to the children, "No need to see me here again. I'll visit you at your home instead, so no bad guys will bully you." It broke his heart to watch the triplets being hit by his mother.

The triplets responded with an "Okay."

Caitlyn was not pleased with the Mays, including Brycen, after what had happened today. Nevertheless, when she saw how Brycen spoke to the triplets, her expression looked a little gentler

At night, when Molly was having a video call with the triplets, she could sense that they were not in the mood

As the saying goes, “A mother knows her child the best” Molly held her triplets dearly, so she could not help but notice something. But since they refused to let her know, she could not bring herself to force them,

Therefore, she rephrased her question “Tell me where did you have fun today?” Apparently, the triplets’ behavior had roused Molly’s suspicions.

Chapter 199

Claudia glanced at her brothers before saying to Molly, “We went to the hospital to visit Uncle Brycen just now, and we had so much fun together.” However, Molly did not see the excitement she would usually put on her face.

Molly ended the video call after she talked with the triplets for a while before calling Brycen.

Her instinct told her that something was not right with the triplets.

After the call was connected, Molly asked Brycen right away, before he could say anything, “What happened with the kids at the hospital today?”

She did not sound like she was asking. Instead, she sounded like she was certain that something had happened. She was very sure that something affected her kids’ mood at the hospital today. “Mom came to the hospital when the triplets were here too. She said a few harsh things after seeing the triplets.” Brycen knew that he could not hide it from her, so he told her directly. “Molly, I’m sorry. It was my fault.”

Molly was infuriated. ‘What did Lara say?!’

‘Nothing nice could ever come out of Lara’s mouth anyway.’ “Did she hit them?” Molly shut her eyes close as she tried to suppress the anger in her.

Brycen did not expect Molly to be straightforward. He hesitated, but he came clean anyway.

“She did.” Molly got a busy signal after Brycen said that.

She did not take her anger out on Brycen. She understood that there was not much Brycen could do since he still had trouble walking. As for Lara...

Molly gritted her teeth.

She did the best she could to raise the triplets. She had never said one harsh thing to her kids ever since they were born, let alone beaten them. ‘How could Lara do that?!’

She could not calm herself down. She walked back and forth as she tried to figure how a way to see the triplets immediately. The triplets were so sensible. They did not tell her a single thing in the video call despite being beaten by somebody else, and that hurt her even more.

Sean happened to be walking out of the study room at that time. He could not help himself from asking Molly what happened after seeing how impetuous she was. 1 “What’s wrong?”

Molly saw him. She wanted to keep calm and tell him that she was fine, but her head was filled with how her kids were mistreated. So, she thought about something that Sean had told her a few days ago “Is the project that the May Group asked to work with you still going on?”

“Yeah. Is there anything I can help you with?” Sean had no idea why Molly brought that up suddenly Molly said directly, “Can you do me a favor and terminate the partnership you have with the May Group?” Sean was a little surprised. Molly looked indifferent when he told her about that last time, after all.

“Sure, no problem.” Sean agreed without hesitating because Molly had helped him so much in the past. Molly said again, “If the May Group wants an explanation from you, just tell them that it’s my idea.”

“Are you sure?” Sean could not help but lift his gaze at her.

There was no need for the Anderson Cooperation to give the May Group an explanation if they were to kick them out.

However, Sean knew that Molly not only wanted to get rid of the May Group, but she also wanted to let them know that she was the reason!

‘The May Group just dug their own grave by upsetting her again.’ “Have you figured out what you’re going to tell your grandpa?” Nobody in the May Group would be okay with that. The May Group was founded by Grandpa Dave himself, and Sean did not think that Grandpa Dave would truly understand and tolerate Molly’s decision. “Just do it. I’ll take care of my grandpa.”

Chapter 200

Nothing could ever get away after mistreating her kids.

Even if they were related by blood

Molly was not worried about Grandpa Dave, so Sgan agreed to do it.

He was very efficient on the next day, the May Group received the Anderson Cooperation’s notice of their withdrawal from the project. Sean also told Nathan that everything was Molly’s idea

Nathan was furious as he threw the documents in his hand. He never expected that Molly would stand in his way when he was just one step away from closing the deal. Walter was very mad when his subordinate told him about that too. Molly not only rejected them when they asked for her help previously, but she even came out of nowhere and backstabbed them right before the Anderson Cooperation was going to give them the green light. They got the Anderson Cooperation’s project with their own capability, after all.

“No way. I can never let her get away with this! What an ungrateful wretch. I’ve got to do something. There’s no way that your grandpa would defend her again this time!” Walter left the office angrily Molly could not stop thinking about her kids, so she told Tony to book them a flight back directly after knowing that Sean was done with his work here. She went back hastily, but she bumped right into Walter, who was about to sort things out with her. There was no way that Walter could enter Terahis Grove. However, he told Grandpa Dave that he was coming, so Grandpa Dave let him in.

But he would never expect to see Molly at the door. He then stomped toward Molly.

“Molly, what the f*ck are you trying to do?! You took our company shares by doing nothing, yet you’re setting the May Group up for no reason. What are you up to?”

Walter cursed on the spot. He would have raised his hand against Molly if Sean was not beside her.

“You should ask your wife about that. She was the one who turned into a psycho and hit my kids for no reason. I was still wondering what you people were trying to do. Which one of you gave her the courage to do that? Who is she to insult and hit my kids?” Molly looked at him coldly. “You’re here because of the partnership, right? Fine, I’ll tell you what. This won’t be the only thing I’ll do if Lara doesn’t come here to apologize to my kids!” Molly did not try to hold herself back anymore. Instead, she took it all out on Walter, who stomped toward her.

Sean only knew what happened after listening to their conversation. ‘No wonder Molly would disregard her grandpa’s feelings and did that to the May Group.

Walter did not expect that was what made Molly do that too.

But he started to speak loudly again when he saw the triplets, who were safe and sound coming out of the house to welcome Molly, “Aren’t these your kids? They look just fine to me. You’re overexaggerating things. I’m sure that she only scolded them. How could this ever compare to the May Group’s well-being?” Molly did not want to bother his annoying words, so she told the security guards to take him away.

To her, the triplets could never be compared to anything in the world, let alone a company,

Walter was chased out of Terahis Grove. He was already mad because he was humiliated by Molly, yet he got embarrassed even more. He was furious, and he had got to take it all out somewhere.

He reached home very soon after. He saw Lara, and he scolded her right away before approaching her. “Are you out of your mind? I’m working so hard out there, and you ruined everything! Go to the doctor if you’re sick. Why would you even go mess with the three little kids? The entire May Group is in trouble because of what you did. Are you happy now?!”
