

Triplets on SM 201

Chapter 201

She would never expect Molly to be so bold and take revenge on the May family. She scolded angrily, "What a brat. Does she even have any conscience left? The old man is so blind for giving her his company shares. Look what he got in return!"

Walter was as angry as Lara, but he was even more unhappy with Lara, "What's the point of saving these things now? Haven't you done enough?! Apologize to Molly as soon as possible. Get things fixed now!"

At that moment, Lara turned into a raging monster. She lifted her chin and looked at Walter before shouting, "Apologize? In your dream! She came out of my womb, and I'm the reason why she's a living person today! I don't care if she doesn't appreciate what I've done for her, but you even want me to apologize to her now? Who does she think she is?! It's a fact that her three children are illegitimate. They're filthy and shameful. Am I wrong for just telling the truth?!"

She was so mad that her veins popped up on her head. Her eyes were filled with rage, and she wanted to give Molly a dreadful scolding badly!

"How short-sighted and petty of you! Can you resolve the crisis the company will face if you don't want to apologize? Walter sneered as he put on a terrible look on his face. He felt like Lara was only so unyielding because of her worthless pride. 'Is she trying to take the whole company down with her after getting into trouble?'

"I said what I said. Take care of it yourself. Don't get the company involved." Walter said and went back to the office.

Neither of them wanted to back off. Lara just would not give in no matter what Walter said. Instead, she got more annoyed after getting lectured by him.

Nathan was very troubled after knowing the cause of what happened. He was the eldest son of the May family, so he had been a very proud person. However, he could not just sit around and do nothing because the crisis that the May Group was facing could be deadly. Lara refused to compromise, so he had no choice but to put his pride away and go to Terahis Grove.

At that time, Molly was comforting the triplets in her house when the security guards told her that Nathan had come. "Let him in."

Even though she already knew the reason he was there, she was curious about what he wanted to do.

After a few minutes, Nathan was already in her living room. Molly told the triplets to stay in their room before he arrived. She was never going to let anyone in the May family lay their hands on her kids again after what happened. She did not even want them to look at her kids. "Why are you here?" She looked cold as she asked bluntly. She sat on the sofa and looked at Nathan, who was standing in front of her. Her stance made it very clear that Nathan was in her territory. "I came to apologize on behalf of mnom. It was her fault for hitting your kids." Nathan thought that he had already humbled himself very much.

“You? Who do you think you are? You don’t even deserve to apologize to my kids. I want Lara to apologize personally!” Molly’s eyes were glassy. She had never considered him as her family for a very long time. Then, Nathan gnashed his teeth while glowering at her, “Molly, why do you have to be so aggressive? Do you think terminating the partnership wouldn’t affect you too? Besides, she’s your mother, after all. Are you really going to embarrass your elder like that?”

Molly did not care about what he said at all. She then said with a cold look on her face, “Elder? Everyone’s got to apologize after doing something wrong! Even a child knows this. Are you saying that she can do anything she likes just because she’s old? Something’s wrong with you people if you can’t understand this.”

“Besides, did you really think that I care about what your family has? Have I ever depended on the May family? The life that I have now is a thousand times better than yours. You can’t even afford to live where I’m staying right now. I would never speak to any of you if it wasn’t for my grandpa.”

Nathan was angry and displeased, but he was even more helpless.

She was not entirely wrong at all. Ever since Diana tried to set her up and frame her last time, Nathan had been reflecting on his attitude toward Molly.

He only realized that the May family had been mistreating Molly, but she was also a difficult person to deal with.

Their conversation ended awfully. After leaving, Nathan told his mother that Molly had asked her to apologize personally. Lara held her phone so tight in her hand that her fingers started to turn pale. She hung up the phone with a gloomy face. ‘Damn this wretch!’

The living was then empty. Molly sat on the sofa quietly as if she was thinking about something “Molly.” Grandpa Dave came down with the triplets. She recollected herself and looked at her grandpa and the triplets before asking gently, “Grandpa, would you blame me? You built the May Group from scratch all by yourself, after all. It’s your life’s work.”

Molly stared at Grandpa Dave’s loving face. She was feeling a little regret as she did not put her grandpa’s feelings into consideration before making that decision. All she cared about was letting out her anger, but she failed to think that she would put her grandpa in a very difficult position.

Grandpa Dave was one of her loved ones too.

“Silly girl, why would I blame you?”

Grandpa Dave smiled and lifted his hand to touch her head. ‘Why is Molly acting as if she did something wrong? It’s clear that the May family is the one at fault.’ “I would never expect that Lara would lay her hands on the kids too.” Grandpa Dave could understand why Molly did that. It would be worth it for him to lose the entire May Group if that was what going to cost him to punish the people who mistreated his precious granddaughter. Grandpa Dave was holding Alex’s hand the whole time. He asked Alex worriedly, “Did it hurt?” Lara did not consider the triplets as her own grandchildren, so she did not hold back at all.

“A little, but I’m fine now,” Alex answered sensibly. It indeed hurt very much that time, but he did not want his great-grandpa and her mother to be worried. Then, the doorbell rang, and Ben went to get the door. “Ms. Molly, Mr. May Sr., our chef came back. My boss asked both of you and the triplets to come over for dinner tonight.” Tony invited them passionately even though Sean was the one who told the chef to come back.

Molly looked at him. She really did not have the mood to cook after all that had happened in these two days, so she agreed to it. After they arrived at Sean’s house. The triplets became as energetic as usual. They went to Sean happily right after they saw him.

“We haven’t seen you for the past few days. We missed you so much.” Ben stood on his left and said earnestly. “Did you miss us too?” Claudia was standing beside Ben as she asked gleefully.

They really missed their daddy very much! Alex stood on his right and looked at him. He wanted to know his answer, too, as he wondered if Sean really cared about them. He felt a little upset when he thought about what Lara had said to them previously. Their father was right in front of them. They weren’t some illegitimate children!

“I missed you guys too,” Sean said gently to the triplets. He could notice that Alex was in a bad mood, so he thought that the little guy was still upset about what happened in the morning.

Sean lifted his hand to touch Alex’s head. Alex was such a nice and smart kid. He felt bad for Alex too. After that, he wrapped his arm around Alex’s shoulders subtly and patted him.

Alex looked at him as he was a little shocked before he realized that Sean was trying to make him feel better. He felt a twinge in his heart, and he thought what happened just now did not matter anymore.

“So, what did you and mommy do when you guys were over there?” Claudia asked curiously.

Sean told her everything patiently. It was almost the same as what Molly had told them previously.

Chapter 203

The triplets became disappointed as they listened to Sean. ‘It was such a great opportunity. How could nothing happen at all...’

‘Is it mommy or daddy’s problem?’

Molly and Grandpa Dave was looking at them at the side. She felt a lot better after seeing the smiles on the triplets’ faces. Nobody knew how much she loved the triplets.

Sean’s chef made an extra sumptuous meal that night.

It was true that nice food could make somebody feel better. The triplets knew that better than anybody else that night as they were very satisfied with the meal.

“Is there any particular time that the chef would be here?” Ben thought of coming over to leech for food.

Tony threw a glance at him, and he chuckled, "Don't worry, all of you are more than welcomed to come over for free food."

"Come on, Uncle Tony. You didn't have to be so straightforward." Ben pouted, and he was a little embarrassed. He looked very adorable.

"Uncle Tony, no wonder you're still single," Alex made fun of him happily. He was already feeling a lot better.

"Right. Acting like this is not going to get you a girlfriend," Claudia chimed in. Everybody was having a laugh at the dining table. Molly let the triplets "bully" Tony as she saw how much fun they were having. She was readied to back them up.

"Eh, eh. Why are we talking about this again? Ms. Molly, are you just going to do nothing?" Tony complained. He would always ask Molly to do something, but all Molly did was always nothing. How could he not complain? It felt like the triplets were born just to hurt his feelings. Sigh! Tony took a sip of the pumpkin soup. He let it slide for the sake of the delicacies. Sean lifted the side of his lips. "Feel free to come over anytime."

He and Tony would always go next door for free food too, so it would only be courteous for them to do the same.

The triplets were delighted after hearing what Sean said, They and their great-grandpa could finally have nice food to eat if Molly was not around!

However, everybody looked frowny at the dining table of the May family. The problems that their company was already facing had gotten even bigger because of what happened. Nathan took a few bites absent-mindedly. He was so troubled that he did not feel like eating." I'm done. I'm going back to the office now." He pushed the chair back before standing up. Then, somebody came in from the door suddenly.

"Mr. May, Mrs. May, good evening." Adam greeted the couple before nodding to Nathan. The three of them were confused. They did not know the reason why Adam was there.

"Have you eaten? Come eat something if you haven't." Walter said unheedingly as he was not in the mood to welcome him

Adam sat down, and he noticed how worried they were. "Thank you, Mr. May. I've eaten. I'll cut to the chase since our family had known each other for so long."

Nathan, who was about to leave, sat back down after hearing what Adam said while Walter and Lara lifted their heads to look at him too.

"I know that the May Group is facing an emergency now, so I've talked to my parents. We decided that we should do something to help the May family. We want to help the May Group to get through this." Adam sounded very sincere as he said that. He continued, "However, we hope that the May family can make the engagement between Molly and me happen again." Nathan was shocked. 'It's Molly again!'

He was really afraid of hearing that name. Nothing nice would happen whenever her name was brought up.

However, he had a second thought as he asked with a frown, “What do you mean by that? Are you going to betray Diana? Don’t you know how much Diana loves you after spending so many years with her? Are you not worried that he might do something to hurt herself again?”

That was what Walter and Lara wanted to ask him as well. Their faces did not look very happy as they looked at Adam. They watched Diana grow up, after all. How could Adam say that he was going to help them but also say that he wanted to marry Molly the moment after? They knew that he only did that because he wanted the company shares that Molly had! However, Adam said, “I’ve talked to Diana about this already. We’re going to part ways peacefully.”

Actually, he did not want to take advantage of the May family like this either. However, that was the only chance the Herring Family could recover the engagement with Molly, so they had to seize it.

Chapter 204

“We don’t have a say on who should Molly marry. You should know about this when you broke off the engagement in front of us back then.” It was normal for someone to put his personal interests first, but Adam was the first person to display it so flagrantly. Nathan was very displeased.

He was also hinting to Adam that it was entirely his fault for breaking off the engagement back then. It was never the May family’s fault. Yet now he was trying to recover the engagement?

Too late!

Molly made it very clear that she wanted nothing to do with the May family. There was no way that things would turn out like this if Molly would listen to them. Adam’s heart sank as he glanced at Nathan coldly. He could understand what Nathan was trying to say. He knew that Nathan said that he brought everything to himself, and he deserved everything that happened. Adam was feeling very uncomfortable. He has always been a prideful person. He only sucked it up to Molly because of the company shares and the connections she had, but that did not mean that he could bear to be treated like that by the May family too! ‘The May Group was going to be doomed anyway. What makes they think that my family would want to clean up their mess?’ Adam kept grumbling to himself as he said indifferently, “If that’s the case, I should leave now. Enjoy your meal.” Nathan lifted his brows and said, “Suit yourself.” | He thought that none of them would enjoy the dinner, so he left too, as he wanted to go back to the office anyway. Adam’s unexpected visit made Nathan give Diana a call. “Bro, what’s up?”

Diana was sitting on the sofa. She sounded calm, but actually, she was very happy. She thought that Nathan would hate her after what happened previously. “Diana, are you free these days?” Nathan heard her voice, and it reminded him of how Adam said that he was going to abandon her. “Of course, I am. I thought that you wouldn’t care about me anymore. I’ve been reflecting on myself these days. Bro, I’ve learned my lesson now. I shouldn’t have framed Molly like that. I was jealous, and I let my emotions get the better of me. I only did that so Adam would pay more attention to me.” Diana sounded like she was wronged and sincere at the same time. “I’ve thought things through now, and I’ll let things go.” Nathan could notice how sad and downhearted she was even though that was what she said. It hit a soft spot in his heart again as he told Diana...

“Diana, I’ll still be your big brother no matter what.”

Diana was extremely gratified. She grew up with Nathan, after all. He was going to forgive her despite everything she did. 'Molly is nothing!' "Okay. Bro, is everything okay in the May Group now?" Diana knew that something was wrong with the company because she still paid attention to what was family in the family even though she was not at home.

Nathan briefly told Diana about what happened, and Diana sounded indignant on the other end of the phone.

"Molly crossed the line this time. Mom is her elder, after all. She should get at least mom even if mom did something wrong. Bro, I was thinking... can I go pay mom a visit?" Diana asked in a hopeful tone to test Nathan. She was trying to hit the soft spot in Nathan's heart again. "Sure. It'd be good for you to keep her company and talk with her now. I'll come to pick you up." Nathan did not refuse Diana's request. Lara's mood turned slightly better when she saw Diana since Diana was the daughter she raised, after all. At the same time, the hatred in Lara that she had for Molly became even stronger after Diana came to cheer her up. "You're so sensible, unlike that damned child! She made me so mad that my heart hurts!" Lara was ticked off immediately when she mentioned Molly.

Chapter 205

Diana sat beside Lara to comfort her, "Mom, don't get angry. You've got to take care of your body and be healthy. If there's really no other way, I'll go and apologize to her on your behalf. I can't let a thing like this affect your relationship with dad." "Diana, my precious daughter. You're the only person who'd be so considerate for our family." Lara looked very moved as she pulled Diana closer to say those words.

So, Diana went straight to Terahis Grove after leaving the May Residence.

The other reason she came was she wanted to see if that b*tch, Molly May, was really staying in Terahis Grove or not.

Terahis Grove was a lavish residence full of mansions, and every corner of it felt expensive. When Diana looked at the mansions in front of her, she felt not only surprised but also a fit of deep jealousy at the same time.

She was stopped by the security guards when she wanted to get in. "Does Molly May stay here? Please inform her that I need to talk to her about something. My name is Diana." Diana said as she put on a smile that she thought was polite and friendly. The security guards then called Molly for her since Diana sounded as if she was very close with Molly. Molly was in her mansion. However, she refused to see her right away after hearing Diana's name.

Diana's expression changed a little after she heard Molly's voice on the other end of the phone as she shouted at the phone, "Molly, I'm not going to leave if you won't see me today!"

"Suit yourself." Molly was not intimidated by her as she said to the security guards again, "I don't know this person very well. Please don't allow just anyone to enter Terahis Grove."

The look on Diana's face turned awful after she heard what Molly said while standing outside the gate. Judging by her temper Molly thought that Diana would leave right away, but she underestimated Diana's determination.

After some time, it started raining. The security guard called Molly again when she was about to treat Sean. He told Molly that Diana was standing out in the rain, and she had refused to leave.

Molly lost her temper when she heard that. She did not care about Diana. Instead, she gave Nathan a call. "Please come to Terahis Grove and take your sister away. I don't want anybody to put the blame on me if anything happens to her again. Also, stop doing useless things like this. Lara is the person who should be apologizing. Tell her to come here instead."

Molly hung up the phone, looking very unhappy. "When will the May family stop giving me trouble?"

Sean looked at Molly's slightly displeased face. Then, he turned around to tell Tony, "Give the management a call. Tell them to call the police right away if they met anybody like her who came here to disturb the residents here and wouldn't leave. There's no need to keep calling the residents."

Sean did not avoid Molly while he said that. Molly's mood turned better after she heard how Sean openly protected her.

What Sean did was straightforward and ruthless. However, there was no better way to deal with someone like Diana!

Nathan went right to Terahis Grove after receiving Molly's call. Expectedly, he saw Diana standing in the rain without any cover outside the gate.

"Diana!" He shouted at Diana.

Diana turned her head and saw Nathan. She opened her mouth and wanted to respond, but she started stumbling and eventually passed out before she could say anything. Nathan brought her to the car immediately and went straight to the hospital. Everyone in the May family was shocked by the news of her fainting, and all of them went to the hospital too.

Lara went in, and the first thing she saw was Diana lying on the hospital bed. Diana's eyes were closed, and her face looked very pale with the IV drip. Lara felt heartbroken, but at the same time, she was filled with rage too.

Chapter 206

Molly could not care less about the Grant family's nasty business. She just massaged Sean's legs after his needle treatment as usual. Her slim, pale fingers were dancing on Sean's leg as she put in some force on her fingertips.

"Do you feel anything when I press like this?"

Sean frowned slightly as he tried to feel the sensation on his legs and answered Molly. "It feels a little itchy."

Molly continued massaging him, and Sean just felt the same sensation.

After a moment of silence, Sean asked, "To this day, is there any improvement on my legs?" Whenever Molly asked him if he felt anything these days, his condition seemed to remain the same. This had made Sean, who was initially full of confidence, feel rather defeated.

Molly looked at him in shock and responded without hesitation, "Of course! Your condition now is a lot better than I've expected already." She caught a hint of disappointment in Sean's eyes, so she comforted him understandingly, "I know what you're worried about. We have to take things slow, one step at a time. Everything takes time. Didn't you see the progress of your legs throughout the treatment? Think about it, did you feel anything in your legs after all the other treatments you went through previously?"

Molly's question wiped away the worries in Sean's head.

He was too anxious.

Sean flashed Molly a relieved smile. Under the warm yellow light, he looked gentle, and Molly had almost drowned in his tender smile.

She slowly looked away and stared at his legs. "I'm only checking on your legs briefly. I plan to do a full check-up with you in the hospital. There is professional equipment there, so when the report is out, I can finally tweak your treatment plan according to your specific needs."

"Sure," Sean agreed with Molly's suggestion. "I'll get someone to plan it." "It's alright, Caitlyn is in the hospital, so I'll just get her to do it. We're probably going the day after tomorrow. I want to go with you, so check your schedule. I'll personally sit through the whole check-up."

Sean had no reason to object to Molly as he trusted her.

After the insufferable treatment, it was already raining when Molly went downstairs. Worse still, the rain looked like it was only getting bigger.

The heavy raindrops went pitter-patter as they fell on the plants outside. "Ms. May, the rain is quite heavy. Give me a second. I'll bring you an umbrella," Tony said as he walked back in.

Molly yelled behind him, "It's alright. It's just a short distance, so I'll be making a move now!"

Then, Molly immediately rushed out of the rain and ran back to her place.

Suddenly, she slivered when she entered her house.

Puff...

"The rain is really heavy." Molly felt slightly cold, so she quickly went upstairs to take a shower. However, even when she snuggled in her blanket, she could still feel the coldness of the rain. Molly did not think much about it as she rarely got sick.

But for the exact reason, she woke up with a headache. Suddenly, Molly blacked out and almost lost her balance.

She gave herself some time when she sat back on her bed and touched her forehead. It was boiling hot, 'Sigh, I didn't think I'd have a fever after being in the rain for such a short while.'

Molly's face flushed, and she looked weak. Her mind was foggy, and she could not see well too. So, she held on to the railing of the stairs and went down slowly.

Chapter 207

Grandpa Dave was sitting on the couch when he saw Molly looking sick, so he asked caringly, "What's wrong? Didn't you get enough sleep? Why do you look so sick?" "I'm fine, grandpa. I just got caught in the rain for a bit, so I have a mild fever." Molly's legs felt heavy, and she was finding it hard to walk. 'Why am I so weak now?'

The triplets just got out of the kitchen. Breakfast was ready, so they were about to call Molly and Grandpa Dave for breakfast.

But when the triplets heard their conversation, they immediately stared at Molly.

"Mommy, are you having a fever?" Alex asked.

'Mommy looks like it. That's how I look when I have a fever,' he thought.

"Yeah, a little."

The triplets immediately ran up and surrounded her.

"How did you get sick, mommy? It's because you're really busy these days, isn't it?" Claudia held Molly's hand with a concerned expression.

"We've already prepared breakfast. You can eat it in the living hall, mommy. I'm going to bring it out for you!" Ben immediately turned back to the kitchen.

Alex walked away as well. "I'm going upstairs to bring you some medicine," he said. "I'll pour you some warm water then." Claudia let go of Molly and walked to the dining table to get some water.

Molly watched as the triplet parted ways; each had their unique way of doing things. But at the end of the day, all of them were just concerned about her.

"Don't get under the rain anymore, Molly." Grandpa Dave reminded Molly seriously as he watched the sensible and thoughtful triplets.

'She's old enough. Doesn't she know that health is more important than anything? Molly sat next to Grandpa Dave as she listened to his words of concern. Her heart melted as she watched the triplets being busy for her too.

'I'm no longer alone now. I have grandpa and my kids to care about me. I'm very happy with a life like this.'

"I will be more mindful next time." Molly immediately smiled as she spoke in a gentle voice.

Grandpa Dave's heart softened when he saw Molly being sensible. "You're already a mother, Molly."

Ben placed her breakfast on the coffee table before her and consoled his mom like an adult, Eat up, mommy. You're a patient now, so you should listen to us."

It was like Molly was a 3-year-old.

Molly chuckled and agreed, eating her breakfast immediately,

"You have to get better, mommy." Claudia placed a cup of water next to her.

Alex came downstairs at the same time as well. The triplets watched as Molly finished her meal, and Alex passed her some medication. "Just eat two of these pills, mommy, and drink more water. You might feel drowsy after eating the medication, so you should go upstairs and take some rest. You'll feel better when you wake up!" Molly became a patient and immediately understood how her patients felt about her when she nagged at them.

But she still cooperated with the triplets and went to sleep upstairs after taking her medication.

In the afternoon, Sean and Tony stopped by, as usual. But Molly was seldom not in sight.

Sean asked Grandpa Dave, "Where's Ms. May?"

"You're here, Uncle Sean! Mommy's sick! She has a fever, and she's taking a rest upstairs right now!" Claudia immediately ran out of her room when she heard Sean's familiar voice.

"Yeah, Molly isn't feeling very well." Grandpa Dave nodded.

Ben and Alex came last and greeted Sean, "Hello, Uncle Sean."

Sean immediately put the pieces together.

Tony said in surprise, "Wow, I didn't know a doctor could fall sick."

As Molly was a doctor, he thought she would never get sick as she could easily treat herself whenever she felt ill.

Molly had just left her room and was amused when she heard Tony while she was walking downstairs. 'A doctor is still human. How will they not get sick?'

Sean saw Molly walking down and said, "I told you. You should've taken an umbrella with you."

The triplets realized their mother was awake when they heard their conversation, so they instantly ran to them and asked her questions as they were worried that she was still sick.

Chapter 208

"Don't worry, the fever is gone now. I'm fine." Molly consoled the triplets, but she still was not in the best state as she still looked sick. Then, she explained to Sean defeatedly, "I didn't expect that little amount of rain would get me sick."

Sean smiled faintly, and his eyes were bright. "Be careful next time."

Though it were words of concern, Molly strangely felt like he was ordering her as her boss...

She was in a daze for a while before she continued, "Let's go to the hospital tomorrow then." She was not in good shape to do a complete check-up with Sean. "Don't worry. We'll go when you're better." Sean was not in a rush either. At the same time, in the Nolan family.

Abigail was sitting in her room with a prideful look on her face. Her eyes were cold as she held up a piece of paper with her right hand while her left hand was placed on her right elbow. The content on the paper was Molly's information.

She had a laptop on her desk as well. The screen was filled with screenshots that were sent by her assistant.

They were all regarding Molly's downfall a few years back. However, there was no news about Molly after she had gone abroad.

Abigail finished reading all of them and smiled delightfully, though her smile was cold.

"Oh, so Molly is the one with such a nasty scandal back then..."

'I even thought she was someone special since she's living in Terahis Grove.'

'Having an affair and a one-night-stand, getting pregnant, and bringing down the May family. They even disowned her!' Abigail put down the paper and rested her fair arm on the desk as her smile slowly faded.

'Does a filthy woman like Molly really think she could take Sean away from me?'

Abigail looked down on her, and she believed that Sean would never be interested in Molly as well.

She completely treated Molly as nothing when she thought about this. 'I thought she's a tough rival, but it turns out she's a filthy woman. I don't even know how many men she had slept with. She probably doesn't even know the father of her children. Even if she was pretty, what's the point?'

Abigail was finally relieved and did not see Molly as a threat anymore. She just laid back on her chair, relaxed.

Just like before, she was certain that she would be Sean's wife.

On the other hand, Molly could not go to the hospital with Sean as she was taking a rest at home. So, she opened her small box in her room.

When the lid opened, a thick scent of bitter yet aromatic herbs filled the air, as opposed to some usual pills. She took out a few herbs and started grinding them into powder in a mortar. She then placed it aside after putting it in a small teabag.

Then, she took out another handful of different herbs and cut them into pieces before boiling them in the kitchen with low heat. It took her half a day to finish boiling them.

Afterward, Molly poured the medicated water that she made into a bucket, along with a pack of ginger. She soaked her legs in it and had a cup of tea in her hands, which was made with water and the herbs that she had ground previously.

Just like that, she soaked her legs twice a day and drank some of that medicated tea from time to time. She got better at an unusually fast speed, especially her energy level, which was gradually improving as well. So, she woke up early in the morning the next day. Sean saw her at his door full of energy, unlike how she was the day before. 'I think she has recovered,' he thought. However, he still asked her, "How are you feeling?"

“Great. I’m not dizzy anymore; I’m fine now,” Molly answered.

“Let’s go then.” Molly made way for him as soon as he spoke.

Then, she got into the car after him and headed to the hospital. She was going to do a full check-up with Sean.

There was some traffic on their way there, so car horns were occasionally blaring.

Chapter 209

Tony drummed on the steering wheel with his finger. Finally, the traffic lights turned green, and he gave a signal, ready to make a turn as he stepped on the gas. Suddenly, a car from behind dashed forward as Tony still had not completely made that turn. The driver wanted to be the first in line.

In a split second, Tony had no choice but to turn the steering wheel in the opposite direction for safety purposes. He wanted to turn the car back.

Both Sean and Molly were not prepared for this in the backseat, so Molly fell to her left uncontrollably.

In order to protect her, Sean held on to the seat with one arm and wrapped his other arm around her shoulders, making them lean toward each other. Molly was in his arms when her face flushed. She could smell Sean’s faint cologne and his personal scent. Next to her ears was his strong heartbeat, and each heartbeat felt like it was pounding on her heart. Their position in such a tight space was the air really flirtatious. Sean’s breath changed as well since he was probably not used to it still. When his fingertips touched Molly’s shoulder, his fingers felt hot, and his eyes started to darken. Molly was feeling extra awkward. Her hands were on his chest, and she wanted to push him away when she suddenly remembered that she was the one who fell on him! ‘He won’t misunderstand this ‘as me hugging him, right?!’

Molly was momentarily stunned as her hands stopped. She felt the warmth in her palms, and her ears had turned red like a peach that was tender and enticing. ‘This is over for me. He probably thinks I’m a pervert that makes a move on him whenever I can!’

Molly was so embarrassed that she did not know where to put her hands. She wanted to pull her hands away, but they felt so heavy that she could not move them.

Her heart was pounding loudly, and her nervous breath was tense. She kept her head lowered, so she could only see the color of his blouse from the light behind him. When she looked up, she could see his fair neck and his face.

Molly did not dare to look at him as her heart was a mess. She just froze stiffly in place.

Sean’s ears were pink, and his breath was messy for a while. He could feel Molly’s touch on his chest, which was just like a soft cloud. She pushed him gently, and it felt flirtatious.

He looked down at the woman that was frozen-stiff in his arms. A few strands of hair were on his neck, and it was making him itch. His calm heart fluttered. He pulled his arm back and said, “Sorry about that.”

Tony was focused on driving, so he did not notice what had happened in the backseat. He immediately turned back to the other lane after that driver left, not giving the cars behind him a chance to cut the line.

Molly was instantly relieved as she sat up straight and let out a deep breath. "It's alright. I just didn't sit tight." She looked out the window, pretending to watch the scenery.

When they reached the hospital, Caitlyn had already prepared their check-up for them. Molly went to arrange the procedures after getting someone to bring Sean in. Sean was taken to the ward and helped onto the sickbed as he waited patiently. After some time, the door opened.

It was Sean's first-time seeing Molly in a professional and formal outfit. She was wearing a white coat that covered her coldness, and she just looked neat. Her whole aura was different than before.

Molly set up the equipment professionally as she carefully ran through every check-up. At that moment, Sean felt like he was just another patient of hers. There were no small talks, and the check-up was done very quickly.

It ended after two hours.

Chapter 210

Molly looked at the reports and told Sean, who was sitting on the bed, "The results are better than what I've expected. So, we'll start the second stage of your treatment."

"Get some rest back home. I still have things to do here." Molly looked up to the clock as she thought, 'He has been through a lot for some time. It's time for him to go home and rest.'

"I'll wait for you. Let's eat lunch together too." Sean stared directly at her, and his expression was calm. No one would overthink his suggestion.

"Okay," Molly agreed. She then went out to settle her things and was busy for the whole morning before she was done with work.

She only realized that it was noon when she looked at her phone. But when she was on her way back to Sean, she hesitated and turned to look for another patient.

The door to Brycen's ward opened abruptly, and Brycen was immediately stunned when he saw Molly entering. "Molly..." He looked surprised. But when he thought about that day with the triplets, he looked at Molly guiltily. 'Molly is here. Is she angry at me?' 'Is she blaming me for not protecting the kids?'

Questions after questions were popping up in Brycen's head endlessly. "How are you these days?" Molly ignored the shock on his face and asked immediately. Brycen paused for a while as he thought she was going to question him, so he did not expect her to ask about his condition. "I'm okay."

Then, Molly asked another few questions about his condition and left right after.

Brycen sat on his bed as he watched his sister leave. "Is Molly angry at me?" he mumbled. 'Why didn't she say anything about that incident?' 'Is she angry, or is she not?' Russell had no idea either. He did not have many female friends and had only been in a few relationships, so how would he know a woman's heart? . On the other hand, Molly changed her clothes and left with Sean. Tony went to the parking lot to drive the car to them. However, they bumped into Lara the minute they walked out the door. Molly just looked straight ahead as she planned to treat Lara like air, but Lara yelled at her. "Stop right there!"

Molly looked at Lara coldly. 'What kind of trick is she playing this time? What is she going to blame me for now? I haven't even confronted her about Alex... Does she even have a guilty conscience?!

Lara was furious as soon as she saw Molly. "Molly May, how could you live on nicely when you know you've destroyed the May family?!" She widened her eyes and screeched with her finger pointing at Molly, attracting the passerby's attention. She then looked at Sean and controlled herself a little. "Mr. Anderson, though I don't know what your relationship with this woman is, don't be fooled by her!" she said respectfully. "Molly's private life was a mess back then! If not, why would the May family disown her? She even gave birth to some fatherless children. She's nothing but a filthy country bumpkin. How could she deserve to be with you? You're definitely blinded by her sweet nothings!" 'In fact, Diana is the one who should be with Mr. Anderson. They look better together, unlike this stupid village girl!' Lara was speaking so strongly that the people around them started to watch and discuss among themselves. "What? She looks so pretty. How could she be so wild?" "She even has children! Clearly, she won't be able to get married again. Who would want a woman with kids?" "She doesn't seem like the type, though." Lara and the whispers of the passersby had made Molly's expression darken.
