

Triplets on SM 281

Chapter 281

Just as the two were discussing, the door suddenly opened, they turned around and looked out

Molly was done taking a shower. Every night, she had the habit of taking a look at Alex and In twlore she went to bed. When she opened the room and saw the two still on the computer, she could not help but urge them, "Why are the two of you still on the computer at this hour? Aren't you worried that you might damage your eyes? Hurry up and take a shower." Thry replied in unison, "Alright, mom."

Alex immediately switched off the computer, and Ben followed suit. The two tacitly agreed to not bring up what they had discovered and went to shower obediently.

Once Molly had left, Alex reminded Ben, "Don't tell mom yet."

Ben agreed

The following morning, Molly had no intentions of leaving the house after breakfast. She intended to stay home and spend time with her three children.

'I have nothing to do anyway. After all, there're too many rumors about me flying around, so going out isn't a wise choice. I'll stay home instead,' Molly thought.

Furthermore, she did not care what others said about her. After all, the truth prevailed above all, so she did not have to waste her breath explaining herself to others. Throughout the years, she could confidently say that she had never done anything against her morals, whether in her work or personal life.

Molly was not stupid; it was obvious that the incident was targeting her. For this reason, she did not feel anxious.

'Those who are innocent will remain innocent until the end. The person behind this incident should be the one feeling anxious. Did they want me to lose my reputation the way I did years ago? Not this time,' she thought.

Molly did not seem to be affected by the comments online. She stayed home and supervised her children studying while reading a medical book.

Anderson Corporation.

Sean arrived early in the morning. Even though he rarely showed up at the office, his staff could feel him paying attention to them recently; they were hard at work and did not dare to loaf on their jobs.

Sean was having an early morning meeting. He learned about the various department's arrangements and gave them reminders on several matters. Once the meeting was over, Tony came over.

"Boss, the reporter managed to get something out of Diana. Diana intends to defame Dr. May on a large scale online. She said that Dr. May was busy dating some man while her mother was suffering in the hospital."

The conference room was empty other than the two of them. Sean's expression darkened after he heard Tony's report. He had an icy look. This was the first time somebody dared to get up to do little tricks behind his back; he felt as if she was challenging his position.

Tony was done reporting to Sean. He thought to himself, 'Diana is asking for it. Defaming Dr. May wasn't enough; she even defamed the boss. Not a single person in Northfolk ever dared to have such a thought. Is she tired of living, or is she not right in the head? She's practically seeking death and doesn't want to stay in Northfolk any longer! Tony continued speaking, "However, she certainly won't act rashly right now. We've given her a warning."

Sean turned to him with a questioning gaze. Tony quickly added, "I got someone to look her up. Diana May is a wicked person. Since she managed to cause such a ruckus within a day, she must not be a good person. This also wouldn't be her first few times committing such acts. As expected, we discovered something. We continued digging, and hey! It wasn't a small matter! After that, I got the reporter to mail her all of the information. I also got him to warn her to not think of doing anything bad."

Tony reported all of his findings honestly. However, he realized that his boss seemed to be lost in thought.

Chapter 282

Meanwhile, Diana was at home. She happily opened the thick package containing the information the reporter had sent her.

'You're done for, Molly May!' she thought.

Then, she look out a photo. She glanced at it and instantly froze.

'None of the photos have Molly in them; they are all photos of myself!' she thought. Diana felt her fingers go cold. She quickly poured out the contents in the package and rummaged through them.

'How's this possible? Did I not tell him to investigate Molly? Why are all of these photos of me? This isn't possible! The May family had covered up all of these incidents back then. How could an ordinary reporter manage to dig up such information? What does he want?!" She quickly grabbed the phone and called the reporter. "What do you mean by all this?" she asked angrily. All of the information and photos were related to her scandals. Diana stared at the photo laid out in front of her.

Diana was currently a fashion designer. It did not take much investigation for one to know that she had been accused of plagiarizing her roommate's design draft back in college. Ultimately, her name was cleared after everyone learned it was a misunderstanding. However, the photo in front of her was not of her being innocent! It was evidence of her plagiarizing. The truth was that she used her relationship with the May family to clear her name. Nevertheless, she still felt worried, so she turned the matter around and accused her roommate of plagiarism instead. Additionally, that roommate was also wrongly accused of framing others. In the end, Diana's roommate got expelled from college and could no longer affect her. Diana did not bother finding out what happened after that.

Even so, she found a hospital certification in the stack of information!

This was when she learned that her housemate had fallen into depression after being expelled from college. Since her housemate's mental health was in a bad state, she practically had no chance of being in the fashion design world.

"Ms. May, I should be the one asking you that question!" the reporter said.

The reporter loathed Diana.

'This woman almost ended my career! The competition in the news industry has always been very intense, so resources are incredibly precious. If I lose my job, my past efforts will go to waste! What's more, if I had offended the Anderson family, who would I run to?' he thought. He continued speaking angrily, "What do you mean? You framed me to offend people whom I shouldn't offend! I'm advising you; you better stop now. Otherwise, I'll reveal all of these. One more thing, don't think of defaming Molly May. I'll still let the world know of your 'kind acts' if you do. This includes how you shamelessly hogged other people's parents and ignored your biological parents for being poor!" Then, he hung up.

Diana shook with rage. She furiously threw her phone onto the bed and flung the information onto the ground.

Her face was distorted with anger. She was so angry that she looked like a raging beast. Nobody had ever had her in the palm of their hand before. 'I never expected things to turn out this way. How did I end up in this situation?' Diana thought. However, the reporter's warning worked. Since Diana was somewhat known in the fashion design world, such an exposé would destroy her career.

Chapter 283

The reporter immediately called Tony after hanging up on Diana. He told him that he had done exactly as he said and that Diana certainly would not be acting rashly. Tony told him that he understood. He was rather satisfied with the outcome; he hung up the phone and reported the matter to his boss. Sean listened to him quietly. At first, he seemed as if he was thinking about something. However, he then frowned and had a look of worry.

Tony started to panic. 'Did I not do well?' he wondered. "Boss? What's the matter?"

He was panicking.

'I musn't bring harm to Dr. May!' Sean snapped out of his thought and glanced at Tony, "It's not what you think." "Your actions were good and timely. I'm just worried that Diana will use someone to bring harm to Molly," Sean said icily. He continued speaking of his concerns, "This woman wants to cause a ruckus. She probably won't give up easily, even if she can't do it herself. Perhaps she would convince Lara or the others from the May family to spread the rumor instead."

He thought of how Tony said that Diana had a way of talking people into doing things. If that was true, she would certainly get something to help her achieve her goal.

Even so, he still was not certain of it.

“Hurry and get someone to watch her,” he instructed. Tony immediately complied with his instructions. However, he could not help but think to himself in shock, ‘Diana is so vile. Dr. May never did anything to her, so why is she acting like she wants her dead?’

Diana got to the hospital before they could do anything. She sprinted to Lara’s ward. When she saw Lara sitting on the bed, she caught her breath before slowly walking over. “Diana, you’re here.”

Diana sat down in front of Lara’s bed.

“Mom, Molly doesn’t want to treat you. What’s going to happen to you?” she asked with a caring and worried expression.

“That b*stard child. She’s such a heartless thing!” Lara snarled in response. ‘I’m her mother, after all, yet she’s leaving me to die. I should never have given birth to her! Lara thought. “Is there another way to get Molly to treat you?”

“Why don’t I go ask her? No, but she hates me! If only I were nicer to her and did not snatch you and dad from her, then things probably wouldn’t have ended up this way,” Molly said with a remorseful expression. She took all of the blame and seemed as if she were genuinely blaming herself for being incapable.

Lara melted when she saw her expression; she felt warm inside. Then, her expression changed.

“Sweetheart, it’s not your fault.” Diana played along and continued insinuating; it was as if she were thinking aloud in a dire situation. “If – If only there were a way to leave Molly with no choice but to treat you,” Diana said casually.

However, such words translated into a different meaning when they fell into Lara’s ears. Her expression instantly brightened as if she had gotten a miracle drug. “Diana, contact the media for me. I will give this ungrateful girl no choice but to help me!” Diana pretended to be stunned and lost for a moment. She only got to work after Lara glared at her.

‘How stupid of her; she fell right into my trap. I was worried that she wouldn’t get what I was hinting,’ Diana thought. She could not help but feel smug. Now that she had achieved her goal, she could do as she pleases. No one could use whatever she had done to stop her. Diana used Lara’s name to contact the media that they were familiar. Then, she started revealing news about Molly.

And so, the news about prodigy Dr. Joye not treating her birth mother and leaving her mother to die became a hot topic; even social media accounts that posted society news discussed her issue.

Chapter 284

Everyone was shocked. “So this is what a prodigy doctor looks like! An ungrateful woman like her doesn’t deserve to be a doctor.”

Netizens were furious; many criticized Molly on the Internet.

Nathan saw the news by chance and was flabbergasted. He quickly rushed to the hospital.

The moment he saw the person on the bed, he started yelling.

“Mom, why did you act so rashly?” Brycen was also furious. He had arrived at the hospital before Nathan. The things that were written on the news were evidently libel. ‘Molly isn’t like that. The most frustrating thing is, mom’s the one who leaked such news, Brycen thought.

Meanwhile, Lara acted as if it were none of her business.

“What did I do to make the two of you come to interrogate me? Let’s get this straight; I’m a patient!” she said confidently.

Brycen was disappointed with her. He felt as if the things he had told her before this were in vain.

‘Mom hasn’t changed at all after our conversation!’ he thought.

Diana felt pleased when she saw the disagreement between Brycen and Lara.

Lara contacted the TV stations this time. Since Joye was relatively well-known, many major entertainment channels scrambled to be the first to broadcast the news. Naturally, Molly saw the news at home. The news was not only on TV but also on the Internet and Twitter. However, Molly did not care and acted as if she were not the person involved. While Molly could stand the slander, Grandpa Dave, on the other hand, could not.

He knew about the entire truth, so how could he let his granddaughter get slandered and suffer from baseless accusations?

Grandpa Dave felt restless at home. In the end, he called Walter.

“Just because I’ve stopped interfering with matters for a long time, it doesn’t mean that I can’t interfere anymore!” he thought.

“Hurry up and find a way to withdraw the news on the Internet. I don’t want to see any of that nonsense!” Grandpa Dave commanded through suppressed anger.

“Dad, don’t interfere with the matter. Molly was in the wrong anyway. Lara...” “Are you going to do it or not?! If you aren’t, you won’t be my son after this. You don’t have to call me dad anymore because I’m disowning you!” Grandpa Dave cut him off and shouted angrily. Walter was silent for a while after he heard Grandpa Dave shout.

He did not expect Grandpa Dave to get so worked up over Molly. At the end of the day, Grandpa Dave was the most influential person in the family; Walter did not dare to go against his will but complied with his requests. “Alright, I’ll contact them. I’ll get someone to retract the news.” While Grandpa Dave was boiling with anger, Sean was not much better. His anger reached a new high when he learned about Molly’s news being broadcasted. Even Tony could not escape a scolding from Sean. Nobody expected Diana to be this fearless. They had dug up dirt on her, yet she was still pulling such a stunt. “She must think that her days are too peaceful and want some action. Go, go release all of the information that you found. I want to see her trending instead within half an hour,” Sean said to Tony with suppressed anger. “I’ve contacted the media. They’ll be publishing it now,” Tony answered hurriedly while unlocking his phone to send the instruction.

'I've been with the boss for so long, and I've never seen him this angry before. Diana's dead meat!' Tony thought

From Sean's reaction toward this matter, Tony understood one thing: that Ms. May had a special place in his boss's heart.

>Chapter 285

Not long after Tony left the room, a new post started trending. This time, it was not about the prodigy Dr. Joye but a rising star in the fashion design world. She was involved in plagiarism and used her family background to frame the person she plagiarized. Diana's actions caused the victim to fall into depression and almost made her take her own life.

The release of the news caused an instant uproar.

In comparison to the heartless doctor leaving her seriously-sick mother to die—a reversible situation—the media and netizens were more interested in the news like someone “being forced to commit suicide.”

The moment the news started to trend, even more dirt about Diana surfaced. The dirt about Diana was genuine; some people came forward to verify that she had committed plagiarism and caused the person to almost take their own life.

The person that Diana plagiarized from was her classmate, Bailey Myers.

After Bailey's competition entry and graduation project got plagiarized, she tried to clear her name, but everyone urged her to show proof. However, everyone ignored her when she finally provided the evidence that she had a hard time collecting.

Furthermore, Bailey got expelled because of this issue. But the verbal abuse did not stop there; it followed her everywhere she went.

Since plagiarism was a huge taboo in the fashion design circle, Bailey was shunned, she could not find a job, and the stress kept on adding up.

In the end, Bailey fell into depression, she took pills and cut herself countless times; she constantly wandered between life and death but always escaped death.

This was Bailey's umpteenth time taking her own life. When she returned from the hospital, her friends and family told her about the expose of the girl who framed her.

Bailey decided to start a live stream. She struggled to sit up while registering for a live-stream account. Then, she told the netizens how the incident had tormented her for years and ruined her life, she proceeded to unfurl the bandage on her hand to reveal the wounds that had accumulated over the years.

Diana's reputation on the Internet was completely ruined.

Many people felt for Bailey, causing an uproar on the Internet.

“Diana is so shameless! How does such a terrible person exist!”

“I know about this. I went to the same college. The administration dismissed the matter hastily and didn’t allow US to bring it up. At the time, all of US thought that it was fishy.”

“I’m crying! Poor Baily, she got cyberbullied for so many years. It wasn’t easy for her to get to where she is now.”

“Hopefully, the school will reinvestigate the matter. They owe US and Bailey the truth. Diana is terrible!”

“Diana is a money-crazed murderer!”

There were comments about feeling bad for Bailey, but there was also plenty of criticism directed at Diana.

The college they went to was one of the top colleges in the country. Since the matter was trending on the Internet, the college had no choice but to reinvestigate the incident.

Diana did not expect things to turn out this way; she simply wanted to teach Molly a lesson.

‘What’s Bailey’s problem? It’s been years; why won’t she let go? She’s like a leech. Why won’t she just die? She’s holding me back right now!’ Diana thought agitatedly.

She stared at her phone and gazed at Bailey’s somewhat familiar face. Then, she threw her phone angrily.

Chapter 286

‘No way. I’ve got to stop this!’

Diana started panicking.

She only managed to stop things from spreading after using the connections she had with the school.

Her life would be ruined if they started investigating her again.

‘No! Noway!’

Diana calmed herself down, and she thought of somebody that could help her shortly after.

Diana went out to the May Group’s office hastily before she could find the time to tidy herself up.

Nathan’s secretary told him that Diana came to look for him when he was talking to a client about their partnership. He let her in, and Diana went right to Nathan, looking concerned.

“Bro, help me. Please, I’m begging you. Nothing on the Internet is true. I’m innocent. I know you have a friend in the ministry of education. Please talk to him about this for me. Let’s put an end to this now and tell the school to stop investigating any further.”

Diana was so worried. Her eyes turned teary. Nathan was her last hope, she would not know what else to do if Nathan refused to help her.

Diana grabbed Nathan’s hand and said while crying, “ My life would be ruined if they don’t stop this now. Bro, please. You’ve got to help me!”

Nathan would never expect things to turn out like this. There were just too many bad things happening to the May family these days that he could not even find the time to be bothered. It was Molly at first, but now Diana. The May family was in a mess.

“What exactly happened? Tell me everything truthfully.”

He looked into Diana’s eyes as he wanted her to confess everything.

He roughly heard what happened when the employees were gossiping about it, but he was too busy to find out the truth. However, he still believed in his sister.

But when he saw how anxious Diana was, his trust in her began to waver.

Diana paused when he saw how serious Nathan looked while he said that, she was stunned by the fact that Nathan did not defend her immediately as he would before.

“How am I going to help you if you won’t tell me?”

Nathan got suspicious after seeing Diana’s reaction. He started at her and asked, “A clean hand needs no washing, why are you so afraid if you haven’t done anything? Did you really steal somebody else’s work and make that person to be depressed before committing suicide?”

That simple question made Diana’s face turn pale.

Nathan was sort of knew what happened after that. He was shocked, but he also knew that he needed to reevaluate his sister.

Just like his parents, Nathan always believed that Diana was a naive, kind, and innocent person all these years. He initially still trusted her when the scandal had just come out.

However, Diana disappointed him this time.

“You should leave now. I still have work to do. Let’s talk about this later.”

Nathan took a deep breath before telling Diana to leave.

Diana knew that Nathan gave up on her after seeing how he treated her. she was then filled with fear as she broke down and started crying, “Bro, I was wrong. I was too young and ignorant. I didn’t mean to do that. I was wrong. I was very wrong. Please help me...”

Nathan felt annoyed when he heard Diana crying. He dialed his secretary up and told her to bring Diana out.

“Bro, I was wrong. I was wrong....” Diana said as Nathan’s secretary dragged her out of his office.

Nathan massaged his twitching veins on the side of his head to ease his mind as the crying sound receded.

Chapter 287

At this point, he already knew what happened behind Molly being exposed. However, when he called the media to tell them to stop publishing about Molly, he was told that the Anderson Cooperation told them to do the same thing earlier. They even had everything else planned out, including cleaning up the mess.

Nathan froze as he held the phone in his hand.

He realized what he did was very unnecessary.

He bluntly tried to help Molly, but he would not know if Molly would actually thank him for that even if she found out about it. She might even think that he staged the whole thing. Besides, she had someone like Sean with her.

Sean acted very swiftly, and his subordinates were very efficient. He gave them an order, and there were people spreading stories on the Internet right away.

They told the Internet the truth behind why Dr. Joye was so cold-hearted and did not want to save her own biological mother.

Dr. Joye's mother did not want to take her back in after spending years living alone outside her home. She was replaced by someone else as the heiress in a wealthy family, framed, and sent out of the country. Her biological parents were ashamed of her and found her embarrassing. They did not even leave her children out of this. On the one hand, they were insulting Molly and her children, but on the other hand, they tried to guilt trip Molly into saving her mother just because they are blood-related...

At the same time, there were also kind netizens who listed Joye's accomplishments oversea.

Her medical papers won numerous awards, and she saved countless poor and dying patients without taking a penny from them. She was named the youngest and kindest genius physician.

She had a great number of awards. Besides, she even donated a lot of money to other countries under her own name to save a lot of kids suffering from congenital diseases.

There was no way that a person like her would be heartless and cold-hearted.

She would not have done what she did if she was really cold-blooded.

Then, the public opinions started to change. More and more people began to speak up for Dr. Joye.

"Something has got to be wrong with Dr. Joye's mother if she isn't willing to save her."

"Tree is known by its fruit. I would've done the same thing as Joye if I was treated the same way as her!"

"I agree. How could she raise her hand against Joye's child? Nobody cares if she doesn't want to acknowledge her own grandchildren, but it takes a mother to go through life and death before giving birth to a baby. I'm going to kill anyone that ever dares to hurt my child!"

"She's terrible. Can her mother just die now? stop ruining Dr. Joye's reputation. A woman like her doesn't deserve to be a mother."

"He's right. Her death will be a blessing to everybody. Dr. Joye made the right choice by not saving her!"

All the comments supported Molly while bashing Lara. The netizens had already forgotten how they called Joye heartless this morning. In the blind of an eye, all of them started to wish death upon Lara.

Lara has been following the comments on the Internet, she got so angry that she passed out after reading what the netizens had to say.

The nurses in the ward scrambled and immediately sent her to the emergency ward.

She barely made it out alive after an hour and more passed.

Molly had no idea what had happened, she was a little surprised when she saw what was on the Internet.

The incident took another big turn in just one day. She would never expect things to spread so quickly, nor did she expect the netizens to switch sides and support her. 1

Most importantly, the person behind this who turned her image upside down did an impressive job!

All the hate comments directed at her were all retaliated at full force.

Chapter 288

At the same time, the best law firm in Northfolk sent legal letters to those media companies who took the lead in slandering Molly. All the letters were sent in the name of Molly.

However, Molly did not do any of these things. It was obvious that somebody else was helping her.

Be it the sudden change of public opinion on the Internet or the legal letter, she could not think of anyone else that was this capable and would also help her other than Sean.

Molly did not know what to do.

She felt a million needles poking all over her, and she was not very comfortable.

She thought that she knew everything about the fickleness of human nature after she was chased out of the country and went overseas alone.

No matter living, working, studying, or raising the triplets, she could only depend on herself for everything.

‘Nobody ever cared about me like this after I came back here other than Grandpa Dave. Sean is the first one.’

She was moved when she thought about that.

Molly switched off her phone and sat on the corner of the sofa. She lifted her head up as she tried to stop her tears from falling out of her eyes.

The triplets were with the laptop when they quietly watched her at the side.

Alex spoke after making the final payment to an Internet user with a big influence.

“It has got to be Uncle Sean. He’s such a good man.”

Even though he wanted to help Molly, he still was not as capable as Sean. So, he could only find some backups on the Internet to support Sean.

'Daddy, you did a great job! What you did to counter them was just impressive!'

Alex just admired Sean more again.

Molly laughed at what Alex said as she asked, "How do you know he was the one who did it?"

"shh! That's because we overheard what Uncle Tony said on the phone today." Claudia secretly drew her finger to her lips as she looked at Molly and spoke.

Molly was intrigued. Then, she reached out and touched her head.

Finally, she could confirm that Sean was the one helping her.

"Mommy, do you think we should treat Uncle Sean to a meal since he helped US so much to thank him?" Ben asked while standing beside Molly.

Alex chimed in, "It's better for you to go with him alone to demonstrate your sincerity. I don't think it is appropriate to ask to just have a meal in our house."

Molly thought that what the triplets said was right. She agreed with them and nodded. "Yes. I've got to express my gratitude properly."

Alex and Ben's eyes met before they said to Molly, " Mommy, tell Uncle Sean that we'll book a restaurant for you and him then. I guarantee that you won't be disappointed!"

They wasted no time. Alex took Ben and Claudia with him and started looking for restaurants.

Molly could not reject them after seeing how enthusiastic they were. She took out her phone and sent Sean a text message.

Molly got a reply very soon after she sent the text.

"Sure." That was the only thing Sean responded to her with.

The triplets were very efficient. They were already done with picking the restaurant right after Molly told Sean about it.

"Mommy, you've got to dress up nicely today. We have already informed Uncle Tony. He's going to take you and Uncle Sean to the restaurant at six tonight."

"Sure." Molly did not think of anything else.

She was already prepared to leave around five. Tony reached her house at six o'clock sharp to send her and Sean to the restaurant.

The triplets secretly showed him an expression when they saw him.

Tony nodded and gave them a thumb-up secretly to signal them everything was going as planned.

Chapter 289

Tony's eyes brightened when he saw the name of the restaurant upon arriving. He put on a smile while helping Sean to get out of the car. However, he did not proceed to do anything else. "I'll pick you guys up in a while."

'How could I be a third wheeler in a restaurant like this?'

Molly pushed Sean into the restaurant and sat at the table booked by the triplets.

The restaurant's theme color was baby pink, and there was a love-shaped chandelier hanging on the ceiling.

There was a stalk of rose on every table, and all of the tables were only meant for two people. There is not any big table or a single seater.

Molly was a little confused.

The waiter approached them enthusiastically and passed them the menus deftly as he recommended, "Welcome. We're offering a course for couples that I think you should order. It's cheap, and there are a lot of varieties. It's a lot cheaper than the à la carte menu. II

'Course for couples?'

Those words caught Molly's attention. It was only then she realized that they were in a restaurant meant for couples!

She lifted her gaze and looked at the man sitting opposite her. 'We're not a couple!'

However, Sean did not look like he was bothered as he started looking at the menu. Molly felt like she should not be too agitated after seeing how come Sean was as it was just going to make her look like she wanted to disassociate herself from him. It was just not an appropriate thing to do.

She hid how she felt and calmed herself down before looking at the menu like Sean.

There were also two waiters playing the violins in proper attire in the restaurant. The euphonious sound of the violins spread across the restaurant, constructing a romantic atmosphere.

Molly was not used to it at first, but she started to relax shortly after. They enjoyed the delicacies together and felt less tired after those hectic days.

The sound of the violins ended abruptly, and they were also done with their meal. Then, Sean called Tony to pick them up.

Molly thought that it was a very delightful dinner.

She was overwhelmed by the ambiance, so she drank a little bit of wine while eating.

Sean asked after seeing her rosy cheeks, "Can you walk?"

Even though the alcohol percentage in wine was not very high, he did not know Molly's tolerance.

"Yeah."

Molly was still pretty conscious, she learned her lessons from the last two times she drank alcohol, she only dared to have a few sips since she was outside, so she was only a little tipsy.

However, Sean held his hand up and said flatly, "I'll hold you. Just in case."

He knew that he was not drunk, but perhaps it was the atmosphere that made him have little thoughts like that.

Molly looked at his huge palm. It felt like a magnet to her eyes, she stared at it for a few seconds before putting her hands on top.

'It feels so warm.'

Molly was surprised at herself because that was the first thing that came into mind.

Tony hurried over and saw what had happened. He did have the time to think about it, and he went behind Sean to push his wheelchair subconsciously. He bowed his head down and pretended that he could not see anything.

The triplets were waiting for them to come back home. They ran out of the house happily when they heard the engine sound outside before asking, "Did both of you have a good time with each other today?"

They were kind of looking forward to Molly's answer when they asked that.

Molly could not help but feel happy when she saw the triplets. She smiled and said, "It was not bad."

"Yeah," Sean responded.

Tony was standing behind them, looking happy too.

"They even held hands."

Tony looked at the triplets and winked at them.

The triplets immediately got excited, but they pretended to not see it. 'I'm glad that Uncle Tony is on our side. Turns out that Mommy and Daddy held hands!'

Molly blushed after hearing what Tony said before saying hastily, "I-It's not like that. Mr. Anderson was just trying to help me."

The triplets were not convinced at all after hearing what she had to say.

Tony said again, "That counts too. Ms. May, you'd better not try to fool US."

Chapter 290

He looked at his boss furtively, and he noticed that Sean was not feeling unhappy. Instead, Sean locked his gaze on Molly, looking gentle. Tony was only relieved when he saw that.

He could never be brave enough to make fun of his own boss. However, his question was directed at Molly.

Molly was being stared at by the triplets, and she realized that Sean was also looking at her. she could not help but feel her face burning, and she blushed once more.

Grandpa Dave was looking at them with a grin on his face. He saw how shy Molly was, so he stepped forward to get her out of the awkward situation as he said with a smile, "It's getting late. All of US should get some rest now."

The next day.

Molly went to the hospital after she had her breakfast.

The sky was gray, and she could feel gusts of wind blowing at her from time to time.

It looked like it was going to rain. Molly turned around and looked upward after reaching the hospital.

When she was on her way to her office, every nurse that passed by her would greet her. Her identity was exposed, and everybody knew who she was.

Molly did not try to hide anything either, and she just graciously smiled back at them.

She saw Benjamin holding a newspaper up when she reached the office. His whole head was blocked by the newspaper, and there was a cup of hot tea beside his hand.

'Why does this look so much like my grandpa?' Molly complained to herself, she walked over to him and reached out to pull the corner of his newspaper.

Benjamin was reading something about people who were famous in the medical field and the things that they have done. He would go to visit them to learn a thing or two from them if those people were still alive.

He was very concentrated until a slim hand appeared and pulled his newspaper in front of his eyes. He only realized that Molly had arrived.

Benjamin laughed and said gently, "why are you here? "

It was not Molly's shift.

Molly threw a glance at the newspaper he put on the table, and she saw a few familiar news. She knew right away what Benjamin was reading about, but she did not go there for teatime.

"I want to talk to you about Lara Solomon's condition. "

Benjamin frowned and looked at her. "she made things so worse for you. I know that your name is cleared now, but you don't have to care about her at all if you don't want to."

"I know. I'm not going to do it myself. However, I'll assist you in coming up with a treatment plan while you treat her. Molly looked at him with her bright eyes.

"I'm not being kind. I just don't want that woman to point her finger at me, scolding me that I owe her anything at all. I'm going to do this to repay her for everything she had done for me at once. After this, I'll have nothing more to do with her. Don't worry, I'll tell Caitlyn to assist you too."

She was a doctor, not a saint. After everything that had happened, there was no way that she would treat Lara personally. That was the best she could do for her.

She did not give in because she was afraid of the May family, but she wanted to cut ties with them. She did not want the May family to be on her back forever. She thought that saving Lara's life would be equal to Lara giving birth to her. So, she would have fulfilled her obligations to her by then.

Benjamin was very surprised after hearing what she said. He started to like her even more. Besides, she was already perfect, yet she was so kind too.

He could not find any reason to reject her, so he agreed. "Sure. I'm very glad that you're helping."

After that, they spent a lot of time studying what treatment plan would be the best. Benjamin was going to do the operation for Lara with Caitlyn's help. Even though the success rate of the surgery would be higher if Molly was the surgeon, the chance of the surgery failing was still relatively low.

They were busy for the whole day. Molly took an umbrella with her when she was about to leave the hospital, but she found out that it was not raining. It was already nighttime when she reached home.

After dinner, the triplets and Grandpa Dave suggested having a rest in the backyard.
