

The Three Little Guardian Angels Chapter 2639

Chapter 2639

“Ms. Woods, do you still want to stay here?” Cameron turned to look at Evelyn, who was frozen in place.

“I...” Only then did Evelyn come back to her senses and quickly ran to Waylon’s side. “Willy, I was really scared. Thank you for coming to save me.”

Waylon responded indifferently, “The person who saved you is Cameron. She’s the one who you should thank.”

Evelyn choked on her own words, then glanced in Cameron’s direction and reluctantly said, “Thank you.”

Cameron came up to the two of them. “You’re welcome. As for these b*stards, we’ll just hand them over to the police.”

“No!” Evelyn became nervous instantly.

If they hand them over to the police, I’ll be found out.”

Seeing Cameron and Waylon’s suspicious looks, she quickly explained, “I... I mean, they haven’t caused me any harm, and you guys have saved me too, so let’s just forget it. Anyway, they won’t dare to do so again.”

Cameron scoffed. “You do you.”

She then returned to the car.

Waylon was about to leave too, but Evelyn held him back. “Willy, can you send me home? I’m scared...”

Waylon removed her hand from his arm. “The driver will send you back. And if you encounter such an incident again in the future, just call the police.”

Seeing his indifferent attitude, Evelyn could not help but feel flustered.

‘Did he realize anything? That’s impossible. He’s only acting so unconcernedly to me because that woman is here.’

Cameron crossed her arms, looking extremely upset when they were on their way back.

Waylon stretched out his hand, pulled her into his arms, and grinned. “What’s wrong with my wife?”

“Don’t you find it strange that an ordinary woman was found in such a place by herself in the middle of the night?”

Waylon stroked the ends of her hair. “Do you have anything to say about that?”

Cameron turned to look at him. “Please don’t tell me that you’ve failed to discover such an obvious flaw.”

Waylon narrowed his eyes and smiled. “I thought you only came with me because you wanted to save her.”

“She called you here to save her. How could I just stand by and watch? Besides, she’s your friend, so I didn’t want you to blame yourself if something were to happen to her.”

After saying that, Cameron snorted. “But, of course, I don’t believe that something actually happened to her. When such an incident happens, why would the inflictors allow the victims to call for help and tell others where they are?”

“If they only dragged her to the alley because they wanted to make some extra cash, they would have only brought her to a bank and gotten her to withdraw all her money. If they want to rape her instead, how many rapists would be able to wait until we came to her rescue?”

‘It took us some time to get there. Even if Evelyn had the chance to ask for help, everything would have almost been over by the time we arrived at the scene.

‘What’s more, Evelyn was safe and sound when we arrived. Apart from being held hostage, she didn’t even have a scratch on her. That’s way too fake.

‘In addition, she didn’t want us to call the police. It’s obvious that she didn’t want those men to fall into the hands of the police.

‘That’s such a huge flaw. Only a blind and dumb person can’t see it.’

Waylon hugged her into his arms. “It seems that my wife is indeed very smart.”

Cameron looked up at him. “You actually knew that it was all fake?”

“I was already skeptical when she called me, but I had to come and check it myself for safety’s sake.”

Waylon’s gaze looked gloomy. “If you could see it, how could I not? But I really didn’t expect her to turn to such a childish method.”

After confirming that Evelyn was directing the whole scheme and playing it herself, Waylon was really disappointed.

‘I rejected her in the past, so it will be futile no matter what she does.’

‘But to think that she actually turned to this method, it goes to show that she’s extremely naïve.’

Cameron crossed her arms. “It seems that the belle from your college isn’t going to give up on you so easily. Anyway, this is all your business, so I won’t do anything about it anymore in the future.”

Chapter 2640

Waylon kissed Cameron on the cheek. “Don’t worry. I know what to do.”

The next day, Damon came to the villa to look for Waylon.

Waylon asked him why he did not answer his phone call last night, and Damon was stunned by his question. “I lost my phone last night.”

Waylon raised his gaze and stared at him. “You lost it?”

“Yes, Ms. Woods invited me to a bar for a drink last night. And it was rather late when we finished drinking, so I sent her back and found out that my cell phone had gone missing after that.”

Waylon took a sip of coffee. “If you’re the one who sent her back, did you make sure that she got home safely?”

Damon nodded. “Yes. I left only after seeing her enter the house with my own eyes. What’s wrong?”

Waylon put down the cup of coffee and smiled. “She called me last night and told me that she had run into some thugs in the 6th Alley.”

Damon was shocked. “How’s that possible? I had already sent her home. Could it be that she went out again last night? And is she okay now?”

“It’s okay. Cam and I went out there and resolved the issue.” Waylon got up slowly and walked to the window. “By the way, don’t let her come to the villa so casually in the future. I have a wife now, and I don’t want my wife to misunderstand anything.”

Damon paused for a few seconds before nodding. “Okay, I’ll let her know.”

Damon left the villa and happened to run into Evelyn while he was on his way, and that was when Evelyn stepped forward and returned his phone to him.

He froze on the spot. “Why is my phone with you?”

“Sorry, I accidentally took your phone last night. I was so drunk and confused.”

Damon took the phone from her and responded with a smile, “It’s okay. Thank you for bringing it to me personally.”

After saying that, he remembered something. “By the way, did you go out again last night? Master Wayne said that you ran into some thugs?”

Evelyn knew that Waylon would definitely tell Damon about the incident, and she had already come up with an explanation. “Yes, I found an extra cell phone in my handbag when I got home last night, so I guessed I had taken yours by mistake. I was planning to send it back to you. I never thought that I would run into such an incident.”

Evelyn gave off an expression of lingering fear. “If it weren’t for Willy, I’m afraid that I would’ve...”

Damon was stunned, as if he did not expect her to actually go out again because she wanted to return his cell phone, and that was most probably how she had gotten targeted by those thugs.

“Ms. Woods, you don’t have to do this next time. It’s dangerous to go out at night, but thank you anyway.”

Seeing that Damon believed her words, she agreed verbally, so she asked again, “Did Willy tell you anything else?”

Damon was a little embarrassed when he thought of something else. “Ms. Woods, Master Wayne also said that you shouldn’t visit the villa as frequently as you did in the past from now on. That’s because he has a wife now and is concerned about what his wife thinks. There’s no need for you to overthink it.”

Damon comforted her for a bit before he left.

Evelyn stood in place, astonished, and the expression on her face dimmed.

‘How did it turn out like this?’

At Yaramoor, at the headquarters of Tom’s Film...

Freyja, Norman, a Zlokovian director, and other staff of the crew were discussing the casting of the film. Donny was also quite an influential personnel in Dorywood, and he had directed many outstanding and award-winning suspense blockbusters, such as “The Horrific Lover”, “Signals”, and “The Maid”. These were all his masterpieces.

The movie “Signals” was crowned the best movie in many Zlokovian-speaking regions back then, and the actors that got cast were all Zlokovian.

This film was also the film that officially paved the path toward the international film industry for Helios Boucher.

After submitting the materials, Norman was chatting with Donny. After some time, Donny announced, “If no one else has any requirements to put forward, I suggest that we film this project in the port area of Zlokova, which would better help integrate our cast into the background of the script.”

Chapter 2640

Waylon kissed Cameron on the cheek. “Don’t worry. I know what to do.”

The next day, Damon came to the villa to look for Waylon.

Waylon asked him why he did not answer his phone call last night, and Damon was stunned by his question. “I lost my phone last night.”

Waylon raised his gaze and stared at him. “You lost it?”

“Yes, Ms. Woods invited me to a bar for a drink last night. And it was rather late when we finished drinking, so I sent her back and found out that my cell phone had gone missing after that.”

Waylon took a sip of coffee. “If you’re the one who sent her back, did you make sure that she got home safely?”

Damon nodded. “Yes. I left only after seeing her enter the house with my own eyes. What’s wrong?”

Waylon put down the cup of coffee and smiled. “She called me last night and told me that she had run into some thugs in the 6th Alley.”

Damon was shocked. “How’s that possible? I had already sent her home. Could it be that she went out again last night? And is she okay now?”

“It’s okay. Cam and I went out there and resolved the issue.” Waylon got up slowly and walked to the window. “By the way, don’t let her come to the villa so casually in the future. I have a wife now, and I don’t want my wife to misunderstand anything.”

Damon paused for a few seconds before nodding. “Okay, I’ll let her know.”

Damon left the villa and happened to run into Evelyn while he was on his way, and that was when Evelyn stepped forward and returned his phone to him.

He froze on the spot. “Why is my phone with you?”

“Sorry, I accidentally took your phone last night. I was so drunk and confused.”

Damon took the phone from her and responded with a smile, “It’s okay. Thank you for bringing it to me personally.”

After saying that, he remembered something. “By the way, did you go out again last night? Master Wayne said that you ran into some thugs?”

Evelyn knew that Waylon would definitely tell Damon about the incident, and she had already come up with an explanation. “Yes, I found an extra cell phone in my handbag when I got home last night, so I guessed I had taken yours by mistake. I was planning to send it back to you. I never thought that I would run into such an incident.”

Evelyn gave off an expression of lingering fear. “If it weren’t for Willy, I’m afraid that I would’ve...”

Damon was stunned, as if he did not expect her to actually go out again because she wanted to return his cell phone, and that was most probably how she had gotten targeted by those thugs.

“Ms. Woods, you don’t have to do this next time. It’s dangerous to go out at night, but thank you anyway.”

Seeing that Damon believed her words, she agreed verbally, so she asked again, “Did Willy tell you anything else?”

Damon was a little embarrassed when he thought of something else. “Ms. Woods, Master Wayne also said that you shouldn’t visit the villa as frequently as you did in the past from now on. That’s because he has a wife now and is concerned about what his wife thinks. There’s no need for you to overthink it.”

Damon comforted her for a bit before he left.

Evelyn stood in place, astonished, and the expression on her face dimmed.

‘How did it turn out like this?’

At Yaramoor, at the headquarters of Tom’s Film...

Freyja, Norman, a Zlovakian director, and other staff of the crew were discussing the casting of the film. Donny was also quite an influential personnel in Dorywood, and he had directed many outstanding and award-winning suspense blockbusters, such as “The Horrific Lover”, “Signals”, and “The Maid”. These were all his masterpieces.

The movie “Signals” was crowned the best movie in many Zlovakian-speaking regions back then, and the actors that got cast were all Zlovakian.

This film was also the film that officially paved the path toward the international film industry for Helios Boucher.

After submitting the materials, Norman was chatting with Donny. After some time, Donny announced, “If no one else has any requirements to put forward, I suggest that we film this project in the port area of Zlokova, which would better help integrate our cast into the background of the script.”

