Love was selfish.

People wanted that the ones they loved would belong only to them.

No one wanted to share a beloved with others.

It seemed that Helga was not really paying court to him.

Instead, she was trying to make a deal with him.

With this realization, Garry suddenly lost interest in her.

Helga loved his identity, not him.

She wanted to become the young lady of the Smith family, but not his wife.

She didn't have any feelings for him.
Otherwise, she wouldn't say those words.

Garry shook his head and said, `Helga, don't mention this thing again.

We can't possibly be together.

By the way...`He remembered the gossip about Helga on the campus, so he said with a frown, `There are rumors that you have a boyfriend, and he is from a wealthy family.

They say that he often drives a Lamborghini sports car when he picks you up. ``You mean Brenden Hammond? No, we're not dating.

We are just business partners,` Helga resolutely denied.

`I have successfully estab extinguished the fiery atmosphere of the crowd.

People instantly stopped cheering, and it became quiet.

Everyone looked at each other with perplexed expressions, wondering what was going on.

The air froze.

`No, Helga.

You're lying!` Brenden stood up with his face as white as a sheet.

All these people around them were his friends.

He had thought that in this romantic atmosphere, Helga would respond to their voices and accept his proposal.

He didn't expect that she would remain indifferent, leaving him humiliated.

He frowned and shouted angrily, `You have been using that excuse to refuse me all the time.

I've known you for so long, but I've never seen that so-called fiance of yours.

I will only believe you once I meet him face to face.``Okay, if that's what can make you at peace.

I'll let you meet him,` Helga said with a cruel smile on her face.

Then she pointed at Garry, who was walking towards her from a distance.

`You see that man? He is my fiance.`.
