Chapter 62: Step

Tracy's POV

Things between Layla and I were back to normal again, good actually. The awkwardness was gone and I was relieved. All I ever want for her is for her to be happy, and she is when she's with Dominic. Speaking of Dominic, I'm still mad at him. I'm still trying to figure out what extraordinary thing that the mission run for Hanna the night she kissed me. I wasn't even going to bring it up because I think it's for the best if we don't remember what happened that night.

Adriana was acting stranger these past few days and when I checked to see if she was dead, she told me it was nothing, but I could see she changed and I wasn't like Adriana I knew. I decided not to push Adriana to tell me what happened and that I'm not what's wrong with her as time went by.

One night, when I was still getting ready for bed she was sitting on the bed, staring into space as if something possessed her and she hardly even said three words to me from evening. She was acting really strange, and I didn't want any.

Tonight, she was cool herself saying that she has a headache, and it will be better if she slept on it. The others believed and felt sorry for her, but I knew there was more to this than she was leading on.

I decided to follow her to check up on her, only to find her sitting in front of the mirror, staring at herself. I watched her from the doorway, angry and I was screaming down her face. I closed the door behind me and leaned on it while I listened to her as she sang her heart out. She hasn't sung for me before, this was the first time I ever heard her sing, and she really had a beautiful voice.

She recited her lines, side to side and I assumed she was now listening to another song, with her eyes still closed shut, she began to sway to the music.

Adriana: Is it because I'm not pretty enough?

When I say you set her, talking?

Something deep down in my soul said I'm gay

When I saw you and her walking around

I'd rather, I'd rather in bitter pain

That to see you walk away from me

To see you, I love you so much

That I don't want to watch you leave me behind

Short of jail I don't want to be free

And I was just, I was just sitting there thinking, of your lives and your eyes were closed

The reflection in the mirror

Only watched me, I was not sure how

Listening to another song, with her eyes still closed shut, she began to sway to the music.

Something told me, it was a sad

When I say you set her, talking

Something deep down in my soul said I'm gay

When I saw you and her walking around

I'd rather, I'd rather in bitter pain

That to see you walk away from me

To see you, I love you so much

That I don't want to watch you leave me behind

Short of jail I don't want to be free

And I was just, I was just sitting there thinking, of your lives and your eyes were closed

The reflection in the mirror

Only watched me, I was not sure how

She recited her lines side to side and I assumed she was now listening to another song, with her eyes still closed shut, she began to sway to the music.

Something told me, it was a sad

Every time I see you walking with her

Every time I see you walking with her

Every time I see you walking with her