In the classroom, under Gu Qingye's chase, the students finally dispersed for their lunch break. Feng Qing's ears finally cleared up. After eating the lunch Xu Mingqian brought, she went to the violin room alone and played the violin.

Because she was a special student, she did not have a dormitory in school. Other people could go back to the dormitory to sleep during their lunch break, but she could only stay in the violin room.

Fortunately, there were many violin rooms, and many students were practicing at all times. Although the school had soundproof materials, the sound of various instruments could still converge into a torrent that could crush the entire building at any moment.

In order to minimize interference, Feng Qing would choose the most remote violin room every time so that she could focus on contacting the violin.

Suddenly, a miserable scream was heard. Although the sound was very weak, Feng Qing was able to hear it clearly. After all, she possessed a hearing that was difficult for ordinary people to understand. Feng Qing's hand froze and her heart sank. She heard clearly that the two wails definitely belonged to March.

The next second, she threw down the violin and ran to the bed to look in the direction of the sound. She happened to see March running across the field, wailing as he ran.

Feng Qing's face was covered in frost. She could see very clearly that March was howling in panic because its tail was caught in a mouse trap.

March's shrill cry spread throughout the campus. The mouse trap on its tail was a powerful mouse trap with serrated teeth. It was extremely powerful and could even snap a big mouse the size of a bowl. One could imagine how painful March was now.

As he ran, March's feet tilted and he fell heavily to the ground. His body slid forward for two to three meters before he stopped. Feng Qing had no time to think. She pushed open the window and jumped down, using the water pipe and the air conditioner to land steadily on the ground.

March was the first pet that Xie Jiuhan had given her. He was also her most loyal companion during her blindness. Therefore, she had always had a special relationship with March. Now that she saw it suffer, her heart naturally hurt.

The student who was playing Schacks at the window suddenly saw a person fall down the building and almost gasped.

"Holy shit! What is that? Was that Spiderman just now?"

"What the hell, no one will jump off a building!"

"Heavens, it's too terrifying. What happened?"

The students were all shocked. They ran to the window and looked down. In the end, they saw Feng Qing running towards March, who had fallen to the ground.

"Roar..." Seeing that Feng Qing was here, March let out a shrill cry and looked at her pitifully. His meaning was clear: "Mommy, it hurts!"

“March, how are you?” Feng Qing asked in pain. She directly broke off the mouse trap that was clamped on March’s tail. However, as soon as she touched it, March’s body trembled from the pain. Dark red blood dyed Feng Qing’s hands.

“Open!” Feng Qing mustered all her strength and tried to break open the mouse trap. With a shrill spring sound, the mouse trap was gradually opened.

Feng Qing heaved a sigh of relief after tossing the mouse trap aside. March crawled to his feet and hurriedly licked his injured tail. He was still growling, and it was clear that the wound hurt.

At this moment, a few students ran over. They all rushed over after hearing March’s scream. However, Feng Qing was relatively close, and she saved March before them.

“Student Feng Qing, are you injured?” A student asked worriedly.

Feng Qing looked at her palm and said, “I’m fine. I was just scratched by the sawtooth on the mouse trap. I’ll just disinfect and bandage it.”

Before she could finish her sentence, everyone felt their vision blur. A figure covered in black appeared beside Feng Qing. Little Wu grabbed Feng Qing’s wrist and looked at the blood flowing out of her palm. She said coldly, “I didn’t protect you well!”

The students looked at Little Wu in confusion. From the voice and figure, they could tell that the other party was a woman, but she was dressed strangely, had a mask on her face, and spoke with a clear voice.. It was really strange that she said such strange things to Feng Qing.
