

"That's right. When he was showing the apple to others, he was secretly reaching into his pocket with the other hand. I guess that is when the switch occurs," Harvey confidently explained.

"Ah, I see." Nicole finally understood.

Knowing that it was a trick, she lost all of her interest in watching the show and left.

"Why are you leaving already?" Harvey asked, and hurried after Nicole.

"Since you've solved the mystery, what's the point in watching it anymore?" she replied.

"Ms. Riddle, there's an escape room there. Should we try it out?" Kelly pointed to the place following a short walk.

Before Nicole could speak, Harvey stepped in and said, "Where is the fun in that? Let's head to the front instead."

Looking at Harvey, she understood why he had stopped them from going. The previous incident with Ike had occurred at an interactive indoor level, so, he might be worried that something of that nature would happen again.

"Yes, I've been there before. It's not that fun. Let's keep walking," Nicole said, and when she had uttered the last word, her eyes met Harvey's.

As the trio continued, Nicole suddenly received a call from Zeke. " Nicole, what have you been up to? It's been a long while."

"I've gone abroad now. What made you think about calling me?" Nicole asked.

"I am facing a massive problem. Can you help me when you're available?"

Zeke said in a low and deep tone of voice.

"A massive problem? With your skills, what could give you such a hard time?"

Nicole said, thinking that he was joking around.

"Stop teasing me. When you're back at the hotel, I'll send them over to you.

That's all for now. Bye." Zeke hung up the instant he was done speaking.

"Classic Zeke. He knows that he can't manage tasks of such difficulty, and yet he just can't turn a challenge down." Nicole shook her head and sighed.

"You were saying something?" Harvey frowned and looked at Nicole.

"Nothing. Is there anything fun to do in front?" Nicole looked over and asked.

"Well, there's a shooting game. Should we give it a try?" Kelly looked at Nicole.

To Nicole, a game like that would be a walk in the park. "Sure, let's give it a shot."

"Sir, how should we play this?" Kelly asked the person in charge.

"Do you see those balloons there?" The man pointed. "If you manage to shoot ten, you'll get a small plushie. If you're able to shoot twenty, you'll get the medium-sized ones. With thirty, you can get the big one and so on and so forth."

"What if I manage to shoot all of them? What do I get?" Nicole asked.

"All of them? Hah! I've been operating this business for a long time, and the best competitor I've had only managed to shoot thirty. You'd be lucky if you could shoot five," he said.

The man looked at Nicole's petite frame. He knew that she had never played such a game before, so he burst out laughing.

"It's too early to laugh now. If I manage to shoot all of them, what do I get?"

Nicole looked at the man, unsmiling.

"What sort of prize would you want?"

"I want those binoculars in your hands," Nicole said, as she already knew that it was a great item the moment she saw it on the booth. The boss took and examined it. "Sure, but if you lose, you'll have to pay me tenfold the price of this thing."

"Sure," she said.

"Nicole, don't you think you're making that promise a little too quickly? At this sort of distance, it would be hard to get even one shot in. This is how they have rigged the game against you," Harvey reminded her.

"Don't worry, I won't lose," she said.

Nicole raised the gun, and with a bam, one of the balloons at the far end burst. Harvey was shocked.

"We got one!"

Then, he looked at Nicole in surprise. "Come on! Let's do it again."

At this point, he was feeling even more pumped up now.

Chapter 1152

Nicole fired a few more shots, causing bang after bang as the balloons burst.

Seeing this, the owner's eyes widened. 'That first shot might have been luck. But for each consecutive shot she had placed since then, I'm convinced it's not luck anymore.'

Before he knew it, Nicole had destroyed twenty balloons, and that was when he sat down, "Lady, I see you've shot down twenty. I'm telling you that it's better to not push your luck. A medium-sized plushie will do. If you keep going, you'll have to pay me money if you lose."

"It's fine. Since we've made a promise, I'll follow through it. I'm not afraid of losing." Nicole looked at the boss and smirked.

In the face of Nicole's determination, the boss could not help but sit down.

Soon after, Nicole shot ten more balloons, and when she looked over to her periphery, she could see that the owner of the booth was dripping with cold sweat. 'Those binoculars. I'm going to get it!'

With the three consecutive bangs that followed, the man was left despairing over the fact that he would soon have to give his prized possession away. It seemed that he had finally met a professional shooter that day. With the last shot fired, the final balloon burst.

Seeing this, Kelly rejoiced. "Yay! We won!"

Nicole placed the gun down, walked over to the owner, and looked at the binoculars. "Sir, please honor your promise."

The boss caressed the binoculars in his hand for a moment. Then, he closed his eyes and passed it to Nicole at once, "Take it."

Nicole took the binoculars from him. "Thank you. Now, let's go."

When they had left the shooting booth, Harvey looked at the binoculars in Nicole's hands and asked, "Nicole, I saw that the owner had other things to offer. Why would you choose a pair of binoculars? Do you have any uses for it?"

Harvey was confused. He did not understand why Nicole would want binoculars that looked antiquated.

"This is good stuff. You just don't have an eye for things like these. " Nicole glanced at Harvey with a smirk.

"Pfft, who would believe that?"

"You guys are...." Nicole let out a sigh, feeling too lazy to explain herself any further.

All that mattered was that she understood the value of the item she had acquired.

"Where else do you guys want to go?" Harvey looked at the two ladies.

"I'm pretty much done. I want to go back and catch some rest. The both of you can go ahead and have your fun." Nicole looked at Kelly and knew that the latter still wanted to walk around for a bit more.

"Yeah, met too. I can't even feel all that food in me anymore," Harvey said while he stroked his belly.

Seeing that the both of them wanted to return to the hotel to catch some rest, Kelly had no choice but to follow suit.

"Harvey, you'd be bored if you head back. Why don't you stick around with Kelly and walk around for a bit?" Nicole said, suggesting the exact opposite.

"I think that's a good arrangement. Kelly, I'll think I'll have to make your job harder now. Just keep Harvey company, take your time, and look around." Nicole smiled and gave Kelly a wink.

Kelly understood what Nicole was trying to tell her and glanced at Harvey shyly, "Alright."

"Okay, I'm off now. The both of you can take your sweet time." Nicole waved and left.

With Harvey and Kelly being left to their own devices, they looked at each other, "Where are we going?"

Nicole drove herself back to the hotel, and the first thing she did as soon as she had reached was switch her computer on and check for Zeke's message.

"This is a defense operation." Nicole began to peruse the contents of the message.

Soon after, Nicole took her phone out and called Zeke, "Hello, what was the task that you have received?"

"Cyber defence. But I'm not sure which company it belongs to. I've been looking it up for the whole day and I haven't found a clue just yet," Zeke replied, as he was just as doubtful when he received the task.

"I'm not surprised that you weren't able to find out. Tasks such as these are usually assigned by arms dealers. Normally, they would hire an agent to release this, so that others won't be able to trace it back to them," Nicole explained.

"I get it now. I guess this will be a tough one, then," Zeke muttered.

"Nicole, what do you think I should do with this task?"

"I need to look further into it," she said.

"If this really does concern arms and munitions, things may get tricky. Just wait for my call."

After Nicole was done speaking, she hung up at once.

Nicole placed her phone down and began typing on the keyboard. When she saw the notification on the computer screen, her eyes darkened.

'Seems like someone is planning to get firearms,' she thought.

"Zeke, activate the firewall I've created for now. If anything happens, contact me." Nicole sent the procedure over and continued her investigation on this issue.

Meanwhile, Jared had gone to visit his grandfather.

"Jared, do you have any updates regarding your Uncle Henry?" Mr. Johnston Sr. asked.

"Not yet. Searching for someone who's holed up in another country takes time, so my people are still working on it. We'll probably hear from them soon enough if Uncle Henry hasn't flown to a third country," Jared responded.

"No one else knows about this, right?" Mr. Johnston Sr. asked as he looked at Jared.

"No."

"Good. Do not ruin the name of our family. Let's just settle this matter privately."

"Sure."

"You should head back to work."

"Take care, grandpa. Bye for now." Jared stood up and left the ward.

The instant Jared had entered the corridor, he asked, "Max, do you have updates regarding Henry?"

"Nope, it's as if he has vanished into thin air," Max replied. "There have been no traces of him since he fled."

Jared sighed, frustrated. "Hire a professional detective from that country to aid us. It will be great if we can find him as soon as possible."

"Alright, I'm on it," Max replied.

When he went back to his mansion, the silent emptiness in the house made him think of Nicole. So, he picked his phone up and called her. "Hello, are you busy right now?"

"It's alright. What's up?" Nicole turned the loudspeaker on as her eyes scanned through the details on her computer.

"Nothing much, just wanted to ask how you're doing over there," Jared replied, as he just wanted to hear her voice.

"I'm fine," she said. "If that's all you wanted to ask, I'll be going off now."

"Okay, bye." Jared finished, feeling calmer now that he had heard Nicole's voice.

Nicole did not even have the time to think about the reason as to why Jared called her in the first place. As soon as she had ended the call, she centered all of her attention to the information on the computer.

"Nicole, I've already activated your firewall. What should I do now? " Zeke asked her.

"Now, you'll have to watch out for any attacks that might give the person's location away," Nicole ordered.

"Okay," Zeke replied, after which he dozed off.

After some time, Zeke woke up from his sleep to find that Nicole's firewall had not been breached at all. Looking at the screen, he thought,

"Is that all for today?"

But just when he was about to fall asleep again, his computer notified him with an alert.

"Danger! Danger!"

Zeke jumped at once, with his eyes glued to the screen. His fingers darted across his keyboard as he wanted to locate where the cyber- attack was coming from. By doing so, he would be able report back to Nicole so that she could plan a more precise assault.

Much to his dismay, however, it was just a test. That other party had ceased before Zeke could trace them.

"Argh! I was so close." Zeke struck the table, angry and frustrated.

It was then that Nicole sent him a text message.

"They are testing the waters, but you have to try your best to locate them. We don't know when, or how long they're going to keep testing us."

"Okay."

Then, Nicole proceeded to stand guard by the computer. Though she had already perfected her system, she was still wary of the unexpected.

Chapter 1154

Though they were situated in two different parts of the world, they were protecting the very same thing.

The next day, Harvey knocked on Nicole's door.

"Nicole, do you want to have breakfast together?"

When the first rap was not answered, he knocked on her door a few more times. "Nicole?"

Then, her door creaked open, revealing a Nicole with tousled hair as she stood before him. "Order a takeaway for me when you go out for your meal later."

Harvey was shocked to see Nicole looking so unkempt. "What happened, Nicole?"

"What do you mean 'what happened'? I'm fine," she replied.

Nicole had stayed up all night, so her eyes were bloodshot and her lids were drooping.

"Are you sure that you're fine?" Harvey asked as he studied her from top to toe.

"What's wrong?" Nicole looked at him with her brow raised before turning to the mirror.

"Gosh! Why do I look like this?!" Nicole immediately ran off to the washroom to freshen up.

Then, she walked out after she was done grooming herself. "Why are you still here?"

"I'm worried about you," he replied.

"What happened? Why do you even look like this?"

Harvey was baffled as he wondered, 'She was perfectly fine yesterday, and we even strolled around the area. Why does she look so tired this morning?'

"Like I said, I'm fine. I just stayed up to take care of some work- related stuff. You should have your breakfast now, and please, remember to get me some food after you're done." Nicole pushed Harvey aside and walked out.

"Alright, I'll get you some food right now. You should catch some rest." Harvey looked at Nicole before heading downstairs, worried and downcast.

Nicole closed the door and walked back to her room where she fell asleep before she even knew it.

Suddenly, she was jolted awake by a notification on her phone.

She then grabbed it and saw that Zeke had sent her a message. " The firewall yesterday was a success. It hasn't been hacked at all. Unfortunately, I wasn't able to trace their exact location."

"The assault was a rather aggressive one, and yet you still weren't able to trace them? What's going on?" Nicole responded, beginning to doubt Zeke's expertise.

"I'm bummed out too. With my skills, I didn't think I'd fail. Do you think that they might be professionals?" Zeke texted back with a shocked emoji at the end of the sentence.

"Well, that's not impossible. You should focus on guarding the system today. I'll find another way to trace them," Nicole replied, and went off to give herself a rinse.

While she was in the midst of it, she heard a knock on her door again, and so, she hurried out of the bathroom to answer it.

"You're done eating already? Well, that's quick."

"No, not yet. I've brought it all up to eat with you because I don't want you to starve yourself," Harvey replied, concerned as he walked over to the couch and took a seat.

"Thanks, you go ahead. I'll join you when I'm done washing up." Nicole then returned to the washroom to continue grooming herself.

She walked out of the washroom and joined him on the couch thereafter, but the instant she saw that the food on the coffee table had remained untouched, she asked, "Why haven't you started?"

"I told you that I'm going to eat with you." Harvey felt a lot better the moment he saw Nicole's current state. 'At least her hair is tidier now.'

"Tuck in." Nicole took a sandwich and gave it to Harvey.

"Nicole, are you still going to the manufacturing base of the manned flying cars today?" Harvey asked as he looked at Nicole.

"Nope," she replied.

"You and Kelly can do whatever you want today."

"Whatever we want? So where are we heading off to today?" Harvey looked at Nicole with his head tilted.

"You can discuss with Kelly about this," she said.

"I'm not joining you today."

"You're not joining us? What are you going to do then?" Harvey asked Nicole with a brow raised and his forehead creased.

"I have to stay here and take care of something important," she answered.

"I can't disclose the details to you, though. Anyway, thanks for the breakfast. I'm done, so I'll get back to business now."

"Oh, and remember to close the door on your way out." Nicole finished and made a beeline for her computer.

Chapter 1155

Harvey wanted to join Nicole by her computer, but as she had explicitly said that there was classified information involved, he could only do as he was told, and leave.

The instant he had left Nicole's room, he saw Kelly had just exited the elevator.

Upon noticing him, she walked over to Harvey and greeted him politely, "Good morning, Harvey."

"Good morning. Did you bring these for Nicole?" Harvey looked at the box of sandwiches in her hands.

"Yeah, is Miss Riddle awake?"

"Yeah, but I just bought her breakfast."

Harvey was implying that Nicole had already eaten, which was why Kelly would not have to bother her anymore.

"I see. Well, have you had your breakfast, Harvey?" Kelly looked at Harvey and thought, 'Tf he hasn't had his breakfast yet, perhaps we can have it together.'

"Yeah, I have," he said.

"Oh, guess I'll head back to my room, then." Kelly bade him farewell and returned to her room. Harvey was feeling bored after he had gone back to his room too, so he switched his TV on. Meanwhile, Nicole had successfully located her target, and had sent a virus over to their system. After a slight delay, she received a call from Zeke.

"Nicole, the assault has stopped. I don't think they're testing us this time. It was too sudden," Zeke reported.

"I did it. I guess their computer has been destroyed now, so you can go ahead and claim your bonus." Nicole said, feeling light-hearted now.

"You're awesome, Nicole. There's nothing you can't do!"

"Eh, I guess I'm alright."

"With their computer fried, do you think that they will get it repaired and launch another attack soon?" Zeke asked, worried.

"I'll try to upload the virus into the firewall, so when someone tries to hack it, their computer will be infected once they've breached the first layer. That way, it will be secure. In the meantime, you should keep an eye on it for a bit and contact me when something comes up," Nicole ordered.

"Okay, I'll share my bonus with you, for sure," Zeke said happily.

"Alright, goodbye now," she said.

Nicole continued working on the computer after she had ended the call, as she wanted to install the virus into the firewall, just as she had told Zeke.

Time flew, and before she knew it, she realized that two hours had passed since she ended the phone call. She then switched her computer off and stretched her muscles. "It's finally done."

After loosening up her joints, she threw herself on the bed. Knowing that she could finally be at ease now, she closed her eyes and dozed off, but after a while, she was awakened by a series of knocks on the door again.

"Who is it? Why do they always have to disturb my dream?!" Nicole mumbled and went back to sleep.

After a few minutes, the person rapped on her door again, prompting Nicole to make her way towards it with a frown. "Who is it?"

"It's me, Miss Riddle," Kelly's voice streamed in from the other side of the door.

Nicole looked at Kelly after she opened it. "What's up?"

"Miss Riddle, it's noon now. I'm just here to ask what you'd like to eat."

"It's already noon now?" Nicole looked at Kelly in a daze.

"Yeah, did you just wake up?" Kelly eyed her, scanning her from top to toe.

"Yeah, what did you and Harvey do in the morning?" Nicole took a seat on the couch.

"Harvey and I? I was in my room the whole time, so I wasn't with Harvey." Kelly furrowed her brows and looked at her.

Chapter 1156

"Oh, just ask Harvey about lunch," Nicole said. "I just woke up, so I don't really have an appetite just yet."

"Are you okay, Miss Riddle?" Kelly asked Nicole with a look of concern as she thought Nicole was feeling unwell.

"I'm fine. I'm just a little tired."

"In that case, we'll bring some food up so that we can eat together. "

"No, don't worry about me," Nicole said.

"I'll grab something when I'm hungry."

"Have a good rest. I'll go talk to Harvey now." Kelly then walked out of Nicole's room.

Nicole no longer felt sleepy after she had been awakened by Kelly, so she showered and put on a fresh set of clothes before walking out of her room.

"Miss Riddle, weren't you going to get some rest? Why are you out and about?" Kelly asked when she and Harvey bumped into her as they left their rooms.

"I couldn't sleep after you left, so I wanted to take a stroll outside. I didn't expect to bump into the both of you." Nicole looked at them, surprised.

"Well, we'll join you then." Harvey walked over to Nicole.

"Yeah, we'll keep you company and have a meal with you right after." Kelly smiled as she linked arms with Nicole.

"Won't you be starving yourselves then?"

"Nah, we're not that hungry yet." Harvey looked carefree as he stared at Nicole. 'As long as I'm with Nicole, hunger is the last thing on my mind.'

"Let's go then." Nicole took the lead and made her way to the elevator.

"Nicole, let's catch a movie in the afternoon since we're all free. What do you think?" Harvey suggested.

To Harvey, travelling abroad was equivalent to going on a vacation. This time, he had Nicole with him, and with Jared out of the picture, he wanted to do what he would have done if he was out on a date with Nicole.

"Sure," Nicole responded without hesitation.

After taking a stroll in the garden, Nicole began to feel hungry, so she looked at them and asked, "Should we have our lunch now?"

"Sounds good," Kelly said.

"Harvey, do you have any good recommendations?" Nicole asked playfully as she looked at Harvey.

"Let's see." Harvey began to ponder.

"There's a barbeque restaurant across the street, right? Should we give it a try?" Kelly pointed at the barbeque restaurant and suggested.

"Sure," Harvey agreed.

"Why are so quick to agree to it? Do you have nothing in mind?" Nicole teased him.

"You wish. I just think that barbeque is an excellent choice," Harvey replied in a serious tone of voice.

Nicole smiled as she looked at him.

"Let's go then."

"What's the deal with that look on your face?" Harvey asked as she turned her back on him.

Nicole ignored him and sauntered off to the barbeque restaurant with Kelly.

After they had entered the premises, Nicole found a quiet spot by the window and sat down. "Just order whatever you want, Kelly."

“Okay,” Kelly uttered.

The trio then chatted with one another at the table, making the atmosphere ever more joyous.

“Nicole, judging by speed of the progress in terms of research, how long do you think we're going to be here?” Harvey asked as he looked at her.

“I think we can go home in a few days,” Nicole responded.

“Wow, that soon?” Harvey blurted out, slightly shocked as he looked at her with his eyes widened.

“Why? Don't you want to go home?” Nicole asked.

“No, it's just that we'd always let go of a project only after monitoring it for a few days,” he fumbled. “Don't you think you're letting go of it a bit too soon?”

Harvey was just making up excuses at this point. He just did not wish to go home, as that would mean that he would no longer be together with Nicole every day anymore.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER BY SUMMER

Chapter 1157

“You're right,” Nicole said. “Usually, a new project has to be monitored for some time, but you've seen it yourself yesterday. They're professionals who are good at what they do, so other than a few curveballs every now and again, they'll be perfectly fine. Besides, I can't do much over here. As long as I can get updates about the research progress anytime, I can always come back.”

“Whoa, where did that humility come from?” Harvey asked as he arched his brow.

"I'm not being humble," she replied. "I'm just stating the facts.

"Okay, let's stop talking about that. Are we going to watch a movie after this?" Nicole looked at Harvey curiously.

"Sure, we can do it anytime," Harvey replied, when he suddenly noticed a familiar figure.

"Why is she here?"

"Who?" Nicole tracked his gaze and looked over.

"Chloe?"

Chloe was heading at their direction when her eyes met Harvey's, but she did not notice Nicole, whose back was facing her.

"Harvey? What a coincidence. You're here too?" Chloe walked over and greeted him.

"What a coincidence, indeed. When did you get here?" Harvey greeted her in return.

"I just came here yesterday. I was just shopping around when I saw this barbeque restaurant, so I came in to try it out. I didn't expect to see you here. Seems like it is meant to be." Chloe looked at him with a smile.

"Is this your friend?" Chloe then turned to look at the person who was sitting across from Harvey.

"Nicole?!" The second Chloe saw Nicole, she froze. The excitement that she had on her face was immediately wiped off.

"Why are you here too?!" Chloe asked, confused.

"Why can't I be here? Are you the only one allowed to travel abroad?" Nicole took a glance at her and continued eating.

“Why you...”

Harvey could tell that there was bad blood between Chloe and Nicole, so he quickly relieved the tension. "Chloe, get a table as soon as you can. This barbeque here is as good as the one back home."

Chloe knew that he was trying to diffuse the tension, but she wanted to get the upper hand in this confrontation. "Isn't the seat next to you empty, Harvey? Can I sit next to you?"

"Well..." Harvey saw that Nicole was still considering it, but Chloe had already sat down.

Seeing this, Harvey could not do anything, but get the waitress to bring them another set of cutleries.

Nicole and Chloe sat facing each other at the table, but neither of them spoke to one another. However, everyone around them could feel the tension between the two.

The grill was still piping hot, but no one was eating. Kelly looked at both Nicole and Chloe before turning her gaze to Harvey. She communicated to him with her eyes in a way that signaled, "What do we do now?"

Harvey replied with his eyes as well, with its implication being, "I have no idea."

Suddenly, an idea dawned upon Harvey as he poured a glass of water for Chloe. "Have a cup of water, Chloe."

Chloe could not ignore Harvey's gesture, so she rolled her eyes at Nicole and smiled at him. "Thankyou, Harvey."

“Don't worry about it.” Harvey seemed to have resolved the tension at the table, giving both Kelly and Harvey some measure of relief.

“Chloe, are you here for work?” Harvey asked, picking a random topic to prevent Chloe from breaking out into a fight with Nicole.

“No, I'm here for vacation. What about you, Harvey?” Chloe asked as she looked at him.

“We're here for work.”

“We?” Chice immediately understood Harvey. ‘Turns out, they came here together.’

“Yeah, the three of us are here for work,” Harvey explained without hesitation.

Chapter 1158

Then, Chloe noticed that the lady next to Nicole was her previous assistant, Kelly.

“Why are you with them?” Chloe asked, shocked as she looked at Kelly.

Kelly did not respond as she did not know how to formulate a reply that would not piss Chloe off.

“I see. You're Nicole's assistant now, right?” Chloe guessed as she glanced over at Nicole.

Kelly offered a weak nod and remained silent.

“Seems like Jared hasn't been treating you that well, hun? Even your assistant is a leftover from me.” Chloe looked at Nicole and mocked her.

She had belittled the both of them in a single sentence and was looking as smug as ever.

"That's rich, coming from a person who doesn't even deserve to have an assistant." Nicole looked around, but she did not see anyone else together with Chloe. "You're the last person who has the right to say that."

"Who doesn't deserve to have an assistant, you say?" Chloe retorted with a glare.

"You, obviously. Don't you have any self-awareness? Look around you. Is there anyone else who fits that bill?" Nicole said, her scathing remarks effectively hurting Chloe.

Indeed, Henry had fled the country and Kelly had resigned. Chloe was afraid that she would be dragged into this mess, so she quickly fled to another country, which was why she was eating alone.

Chloe was at a loss for words and could not find anything to say in response, so all she could do was glare at Nicole.

"Do you know that my assistant is unpacking my luggage back in the hotel? Do you think everyone would bring their assistant everywhere with them, just like you?" Chloe retaliated with a lie.

"You should look in the mirror. Aren't you the person who likes to bring their assistant everywhere with them?" Nicole asked, merciless in her attempt to back Chloe into a corner.

Harvey quickly changed the subject when he saw that they were fighting again. "We're almost done with our food, so it's about time we head to the theater."

Nicole took a glance at him and said, "Let's go then. The environment here sucks, and I've had enough of it."

Nicole took the lead and stood up, followed by Harvey and Kelly.

However, Chloe had not had the last word, so she was determined not to let Nicole off the hook. "Harvey, are you going to watch a movie too?"

"Ah... yeah." Harvey glanced over at Nicole before responding to Chloe.

"Which movie?" Chloe asked. "Are you going too? You know, if you leave, I'm going to be really bored eating here on my own.

"Uh..."

"Why don't you stay here with me for a bit?" Chloe looked at Harvey with a wink and a smile.

"We're leaving now, so it's up to you if you wish to stay or come with us." Nicole saw that Harvey was stuck between a rock and a hard place, so she walked off on her own.

"Nicole," Harvey called out to her, but she strutted off without another glance over her shoulder.

The moment Kelly and Nicole had stepped outside, Kelly said, " Don't let a person like her anger you, Miss Riddle. It's not worth it."

"I'm not actually pissed. I just wanted to rile her up." Nicole smirked.

"Then, are we going to wait for Harvey to join us, or..." Kelly blinked and looked at Nicole.

"We'll go to the movies first. If he wants to join us, he'll let us know. Come on." Nicole immediately took Kelly to the nearest movie theatre.

"There are so many movies, Miss Riddle. Which one are we going to watch?" Kelly asked, her eyes ranging from trailer to trailer at the counter.

"Which one interests you?" Nicole looked at the movie previews.

MY WIFE IS A HACKER BY SUMMER

"I think Sci-fi movies are more appealing to me."

"Let's watch the Sci-fi one, then."

"Alright, I'll go get the tickets."

Kelly walked up to the counter.

"Done. They're going to check our tickets soon, so all we have to do is wait here for a bit."

Kelly said, holding a big box of popcorn and two bottles of coke as she sat down next to Nicole.

"Sure," Nicole replied.

Back in the barbeque restaurant, Harvey was still being held back by Chloe, so he could only watch as Nicole left the restaurant.

"Chloe, I've had my fill. I can't eat anymore. You just got here, so you should take your time and enjoy your lunch," Harvey said, and was about to leave when she stopped him.

"What's the rush, Harvey? Is the movie really that good? If that's the case, I'm not that hungry anymore. I'll watch it with you and come back for lunch later."

Chloe stood up and walked out of the restaurant too.

Harvey was stupefied.

"Why is she joining us? Isn't that going to cause a row?"

"No Chloe, the movie isn't that good. But if you want to watch it, you can watch it some other day. Things got a little awkward between you and Nicole back there, so it's not a good idea for the both of you to be in the same room together," Harvey said in an attempt to dissuade her from following him around.

However, he did not anticipate that Chloe would be so petty and unreasonable.

The more he pushed her away, the more insistent she became.

"Harvey, it wasn't that big a deal. I was just bickering with Nicole, like sisters do all the time. Don't take it seriously. Besides, I'm older than her. Why would I argue with a little girl?" Chloe said, framing Nicole as the sole reason behind the tension.

Harvey looked at Chloe in disbelief.

'Is this really Chloe? Why is she acting like a completely different person?'

Chloe would have been able to sway a person who had just gotten to know her.

However, Harvey was not an Average Joe.

Even though he did not really know Chloe, he was certain that Nicole despised her, judging by the way Nicole reacted to her presence earlier.

Such was why he did not want Chloe around.

Besides, it was he who had come up with the suggestion of going to the theatres together, and with the fact that he did so as a means of bonding with her, he did not want another conflict to disrupt that.

"Hopefully, but I think it's best for you to watch that movie with someone else. Goodbye."

Harvey immediately walked out upon uttering the last word without sparing her the opportunity to come up with a response.

"Harvey?"

Chloe knew that Harvey was not keen with the idea of bringing her along, so she just followed him from afar.

In truth, she did not wish to watch the movie at all.

The reason as to why she had pestered Harvey was that she wanted to find another window of opportunity to humiliate Nicole, just to make herself feel better.

Harvey called Nicole while he was on his way to the movie theatre.

"Hello, Nicole. Which movie are you watching? Tell me the name, hall number, and seat number is."

"Who are you coming with?" Nicole asked instead of giving him a reply.

"I am here on my own. Chloe is still having lunch in the restaurant, "

Harvey stated with confidence.

"Hurry up, then. They're checking our tickets soon,"

Nicole urged him.

"All right, I'm going up now. See you soon."

Harvey entered the elevator and quickly closed the door.

Chloe saw Harvey's figure disappearing into the elevator, so she immediately took the other one leading up to the movie theatre.

As soon as Harvey had gotten out of the elevator, there was already a crowd lining up outside of the theatre.

"Harvey, over here."

Kelly waved and called out to him the second she saw him.

Harvey waved back and walked up to them.

"Why are you in such a rush? There are two other show times after this."

Chapter 1160

"The two of us have been waiting for quite a while. You're the one who's late, and yet you have the gall to complain?"

Nicole rolled her eyes at him.

"Okay, alright."

Harvey knew that he had messed up too.

'It's all Chloe's fault"

The usher was already beginning to check for their tickets, and the people were gradually entering the movie hall.

At the end of the line, Chloe held her ticket as she walked in with the crowd. She counted the seats in the hall and took a seat behind Nicole and Harvey.

However, none of the three noticed that Chloe was sitting right behind them.

When the time came, the lights in the hall started to dim and the screening began.

Nicole and Kelly were watching the movie without paying attention to anything else, but Harvey would steal a glance or two at Nicole's side profile every now and again.

"Miss Riddle, does Harvey want some popcorn?"

Kelly looked toward Harvey's direction and asked.

"I'll ask him."

"Do you want to eat some popcorn, Harvey?"

Nicole turned to Harvey and asked.

"Nope."

"He doesn't want any."

"How do you find this movie, Nicole?" Harvey asked, attempting to start a conversation with Nicole.

"It's not bad. I can definitely have a good time watching it," Nicole responded without looking at him.

"Yeah, the CGI is not too shoddy. Did you choose this movie?"

Harvey looked at her.

Under the dim light, Nicole's side profile was even more alluring.

To him, it was so captivating that Harvey felt slightly awestruck.

"Kelly and I did."

Time passed and the movie soon neared its climax.

Harvey was amazed by the animations and began to mumble excitedly to himself.

Nicole was also enjoying the brilliant effects in the film, but she kept hearing a constant mumble next to her.

Unable to stand it anymore, she turned to him.

"We're all watching the show. Can you keep it down a little?"

"Alright, alright," he muttered.

But as soon as she had turned her gaze back to the screen, Harvey said, "But Nicole, the animation was just too good!"

Harvey still could not suppress his desire to discuss the movie with Nicole.

Nicole rolled her eyes in annoyance, but Harvey could not see her frustration in such a dimly lit area.

"Sorry, but can you just keep quiet? You are becoming a disturbance," one of the other patrons said, unable to stand him anymore either.

"Sorry about that,"

Harvey quickly apologized.

But the silence did not last, as Harvey then opened his mouth once again.

"Harvey, can you just shut up?"

Nicole scolded as she was done being tactful.

Before Harvey could respond, a voice cried out from behind Nicole.

"Who are you to yell at Harvey? He can do whatever he wants!"

Nicole and Harvey spun around simultaneously and in unison, they said, "Chloe?!"

Nicole and Harvey exchanged looks and Harvey quickly explained, "I didn't bring her here."

"Why are you following us around?" Nicole asked, clearly displeased.

"You even came all the way here!"

"That's where you're wrong. The theatre is a public area, and I'm just here to watch a movie. Did you just say that I was following you? Well, here's a news flash. You are not as important as you think you are,"

Chloe mocked Nicole with a smug look on her face.

"I'm not going to dignify that with a response. I won't want to be a nuisance."

Nicole stifled her anger and continued watching the movie as she shifted in her seat.

"You're the nuisance, and yet you've got the temerity to claim otherwise? How hilarious," Chloe said in a condescending tone of voice. Nicole treated her words as if they are hot air and continued enjoying the movie.
