

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 191

Chapter 191

Jared decided to go and meet the people in Box Two for a while.

Dino, who was behind Jared, was stupefied. He rarely doubted his own eyes, but this time, he did. "Mr. Johnston?"

Everyone in the auction hall rubbed their eyes and looked at the numbers displayed on the massive overhead screen with their mouth agape

'Is this person a fool?'

The blonde had also calmed down. Performing an auctioneer's duty, she gently tapped the auction hammer in her hand. "The bidder of Box Two has placed a one-hundred-million dollar bid for this difficult-to-evaluate item," said the blonde calmly.

"One hundred million once. One hundred million twice. One hundred million three times. Sold.

At the moment when the blonde shouted out "sold," Nicole's bulky computer screen had also completed a scan for all databases, showing a line of Nicole's personal information. Nicole hit "Enter" calmly to delete her personal information before closing the laptop. She lowered her hat as she was prepared to pay and leave immediately after the item was sent in.

Jared in the Box One looked back at Dino almost at the moment Nicole won the bid.

"Bring me the info of the bidders in Box Two immediately."

Dino looked at his face and hurriedly took out his phone and said something in a foreign language.

The auction house staff were walking toward Box Two with a tray. The moment they entered, Jared caught a glimpse of a figure wearing a baseball cap, but he looked away after that. He wondered if Nicole would come here.

In Box Two, Nicole was sitting in a dead camera zone, calmly checking the authenticity of the item on the tray. The auction house staff saw she was so young and had an impatient look on their faces, as they did not believe that she could come up with a hundred million dollars.

"Don't kid with the Moon House. Please pay now," one staff member said. But a senior staff member immediately stopped the first staff member.'

The inspection was an inevitable process of auctions. It was still not too late, even if an hour had passed. With this in mind, there was a hint of disdain on the first staff member's face.' Given the young age of this girl, she might have used some dirty trick to get into the VIP box,' the staff member thought.

Nicole ignored their urging and examined the item carefully. After confirming that it was authentic, she took out a black card and handed it to the staff. The staff members were shocked the moment they saw it.

Even the senior staff member looked at Nicole in disbelief. Having worked at the Moon House for a long time, he could tell at a glance what kind of people were qualified for this card. There was now a look of respect and fear in his eyes. "Just a moment, please," he said.

The staff members went out. When the new staff members saw their faces and no one was talking, they were puzzled.

“What’s wrong with you guys? Is that girl so scary?”

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 192

Chapter 192

Nicole’s face was not clearly visible because she was wearing a hat. However, she was apparently young, so that staff member was rude to her.

The other staff members heard what he said and glared at him. ‘This kid has almost gotten us into trouble!’

The senior staff member’s face was even graver. He looked at that rude staff member and said in an icy voice, “Take a look at this black card. You are fired. You can just pack your things and leave.”

That rude staff member was surprised the moment he heard that. He looked at the black card on the tray, and his face turned pale as if he had thought of something. Before coming to the Moon House, someone had clearly taught them that there were only ten people in the world who could hold black cards. All of them were the top clients of the Moon House, and no one could afford to offend them.

Unfortunately, he did not take that information seriously, thinking it would be very unlikely to meet such VIPs, not expecting that he would be so “lucky” to see one here. Some people had not even bumped into one in their entire lifetime. The staff member’s face was decadent, and he did not go further. The rest of the staff members did not wait for him but walked to the trading desk

It did not take long before several staff members returned to the box, handed the card back to her, and said respectfully, “Our distinguished guest, the transaction is completed. Do you need the Moon House to send you two back?”

“No.” Nicole shook her head.

She then casually threw the fragment into her backpack. On the other hand, Zeke was looking at the staff members, whose attitude toward them had taken a one-eighty turn. Nicole raised an eyebrow at him and said, “Let’s go.”

Only then did Zeke get the hint and lower the brim of his baseball cap, just as Nicole did, to hide his face in the shadows. The two hurriedly walked out of Box Two and came down to the ground floor.

Jared was waiting in the box for Dino’s reply. He seemed to be looking in a direction, but his mind was elsewhere. He was a little absent-minded.

Dino had noticed something was wrong with his employer and stepped forward to ask respectfully, “Boss, are you not happy with something?”

Jared gently rubbed the index finger of his right hand and asked faintly, “When you can’t stop thinking about someone, but she has no feelings for you, what would you do?”

Dino looked at him, pondered for a second, and replied with a subtle smile in his eyes. “I swear to you, she couldn’t be without feelings. No one can resist your charm.” In his eyes, his boss was the most perfect person in the world, and no woman could refuse him.

Jared looked at him with amusement. He should not have asked this loyal subordinate of his.

At this moment, Dino's mobile phone rang. He browsed through the information and said in a loud voice, "Boss, we got it. This person's name is..." his voice suddenly went low for a moment, and then it got loud again with a hint of doubt, "Doggie Anderson." Jared raised an eyebrow when he heard the name "Let me see." Dino hurriedly asked the staff to hand over a high-tech tablet. Jared looked at the name displayed on the screen, his eyes narrowing slightly. There was a possibility that someone among the guests might really have such a name. But it was more likely that someone had created a virtual identity to get a gold card, infiltrated into the hotel, and ultimately made his way into the Moon House. The person then had not only helped him raise the price of the pink diamond to ninety million dollars but spent a hundred million dollars to buy the most valuable item at the auction house. Jared thought of the person wearing baseball cap. But that person was a buyer who had paid a fair price for this transaction. There was no reason for the Moon House to take action against him. 'What if that person's name is really Doggie Anderson?' However, even he was dead sure that it was impossible.

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 193

Chapter 193

He had appointed his most elite hackers to supervise the network security here, so no one could infiltrate the network. Unless it was that person. Jared's expression turned grave, and then he suddenly laughed sarcastically. 'The world is so big; how could that person come to my turf, sneak around under my nose, and bid away my treasure?' Jared said in his mind. The probability of this was almost negligible. He took a deep breath, stood up, and said casually, "Let's go. We should go back, too." Dino nodded and followed him. Ignoring Chloe, who looked at Jared from behind, the two left the box. They did not shy away from Chloe when they talked. But it was not out of trust but out of total disregard. Chloe did not deserve any attention from them. This was also the first time that Chloe, who always had high self-regard, felt worthless. She gazed at Jared from behind with a hint of gloominess in her eyes. She was determined to capture an aloof man like Jared. Meanwhile, Nicole had walked out with Zeke. She seemed to be walking slowly, but Zeke was panting, trying to keep up with her. As the two then got on the back of the motorcycle and before Nicole fired up the engine, Zeke asked, "Why do we have to walk through that section of the road just now?" He wondered why they could not use the bike. Nicole did not look back. She grabbed the handlebars and drew her hair behind her ear." Because there's quicksand ahead." Zeke had not seen quicksand in person, but he was well aware of its danger. His face turned pale in fright. "Who would want to build on quicksand?" Nicole glanced back at him and said with a half-smile, "Didn't you just see it?" Those people had even built the most important section under the quicksand. Zeke broke out in a cold sweat, thinking about the hazard he had gone through yet was lucky enough to leave the goddamn place alive. Seeing that Zeke was no longer talking, Nicole fired up the engine and sped all the way back to the hotel. They returned to their rooms respectively and took a hot bath. It was only after that Zeke felt that hungry. Knowing that Nicole was familiar with this place, he came to Room 401 looking for Nicole, asking her to take him to the best local restaurant, Nicole shot him a glance and said, "The best I've ever eaten is the buffet at this hotel. Would you like to try?"

"I want to see the night view here." Zeke insisted. He had not been to Nottingbrook State, so he did not know where to find the best local food and visit the best places. Nicole thought since they had finished their job and would be going back to Hustuaburg the day after tomorrow, maybe she should show Zeke around.

"Let's go," she said and stood up.

Zeke was jumping for joy and prattling as he followed Nicole. But as soon as they stepped out of the door, Nicole saw someone who should not have been there. Harvey was standing outside Room 403 with a key card in his hand, seemingly going to open the door. He was slightly stunned, too, when he saw Nicole and Zeke.

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 194

Chapter 194

: Harvey looked at Zeke inquisitively with a rare, unsmiling face. His smile returned when he shifted his attention to Nicole. "What a coincidence, Nicole. I didn't expect to see you here."

Nicole glanced at Harvey. It was the first time she had seen him since that night. He had changed little, but she had an unexplained feeling that something was different about him.

She nodded at him, said not a word, then took Zeke downstairs.

Harvey felt depressed when he saw Nicole's distant attitude and how merciless she was toward him and his grandfather the other day. Instead of reaching out to grab Nicole, he looked at them from behind with gloomy eyes. He wondered why Nicole was in this hotel.

It was not long before Edwin returned and gleefully asked Harvey, "Guess who I saw!" Harvey glanced at him with a faint smile.

Edwin did not mind but pulled open the door with one hand with a mysterious expression. "You'll never think of it. I'll tell you, it was-"

"It was Nicole," Harvey said softly, without waiting for Edwin to finish. He stood and looked back at Edwin with a smile. "I saw her. She's staying in the room next door."

Edwin was bursting with excitement. "The room next door? Room 405?"

Room 402 was opposite Room 403, which adjoined Room 401 and 405. Edwin certainly would not have thought that Nicole could afford to stay in the most expensive Room 401. After all, even he and Harvey could only stay in Room 403 and Room 404.

Harvey shook his head and looked downstairs thoughtfully.

Edwin was stunned. "So, her room is Room 401?"

Harvey did not look at him or reply, so Edwin knew Harvey's silence meant yes. His shocked expression slowly faded. He then entered Room 404, sat on the couch with his mind full of doubts.

Edwin met Nicole on the first floor, thinking that the rooms on the second floor were the most she could afford, not expecting that she was staying in Room 401. That room was of class even higher than his and Harvey's. 'Just who is this Nicole?' he wondered.

After Nicole and Zeke left the hotel, they sauntered down the street. Zeke's eyes darted around the bustling street scenes excitedly. However, he was puzzled at the thought of the two guys they met in the hotel just now.

"Tell me honestly, Nicole. Who are those two guys? What is your relationship with them?" Zeke asked. He was keenly aware that something was amiss with the identities of the two guys.

Nicole gave Zeke a casual glance and did not mind his tone of voice. "They're students in my school, but we aren't close."

Zeke looked at her fixedly for a few seconds and admitted to himself with frustration that he could not tell if Nicole was lying. So, he did not harp on the matter but rushed to the food stall up ahead. He found that street food was the best no matter which country he was in. Had he not had gastroenteritis as a child and his dad would not allow him to take even a bite, he would have tasted every street food in San Joto he could find.

Just as Zeke rushed ahead with excitement, Nicole grabbed him by the back of his neck and squinted at him.

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 195

Chapter 195 "You're only allowed to take a few bites."

She knew Zeke had a bad stomach. Because of that, their missions were often disrupted, and he was hospitalized a few times.

Zeke's excitement died down instantly the moment he heard that. But he quickly comforted himself, "Better than nothing," and continued to dart toward the food stalls.

Nicole did not stop him again but slowly followed him.

The two of them sat down in front of a stall. The stall owner who thought they did not speak the local language asked them in poor Esperian what they would like to eat. Nicole looked at the many types of food in front of her eyes. "What do you like?" she asked Zeke softly.

Zeke pointed to a few sticks of grilled chili peppers. "I want this!"

Nicole looked at him expressionlessly. "No."

Zeke looked disappointed and then cautiously pointed to the grilled fish marinated with a layer of red, spicy oil. "How about this?"

"No." Nicole still gave the same answer.

At last, Zeke could only order a bowl of ramen with extreme disgruntlement. The ramen tasted bland to his taste bud as he looked indignantly at Nicole, in front of whom were chili peppers and grilled fish. When Nicole slowly savored the food in front of her with a straight face, Zeke could not believe his eyes. He wondered if the food was as spicy as he had imagined.

Even the stall owner was puzzled, doubting if the chili peppers he used had expired. But that was impossible. He apparently had only taken the chili pepper out last night. No way it would lose its spiciness so quickly. When Nicole ordered food just now,, she had spoken local language. That impressed the stall owner, who started to become curious about Nicole, He could not help but ask, "Isn't it spicy?"

"It's okay," Nicole replied nonchalantly.

Zeke had no idea what the two were saying, but he could guess something through the stall owner's expression. He secretly grabbed a dried chili pepper in front of Nicole and put some in his mouth while Nicole was talking to the stall owner. He immediately felt a spicy taste coming from his lips, and his lower lip was swollen with a burning sensation.

He quickly spat out the pepper and drank several mouthfuls of water. Zeke then mumbled," Nicole, are you still a human?" It was so spicy, yet she remained so nonchalant.

Nicole looked at Zeke with a half-smile. She had already noticed his action earlier but did not expose him. She wanted him to know his limit through mistakes.

The stall owner looked at the two of them with a smile on his tanned face.

Just then, Nicole felt a gust of wind from behind. Her expression became grave in an instant as she tilted her head slightly to the side. Immediately, a wooden plank hit the grilled fish and smashed it in front of her.

Zeke looked at the grilled fish with a trace of anger slowly creeping across his face. He jerked his head back, looking at the person behind him with fiery eyes.

It turned out that the attacker was a local guy with profound facial features. A group of guys in messy and dirty punk attires was wielding wooden sticks and crowbars in their hands. All of them had their hair dyed in different colors. However, as if they had not washed it for many days, the supposedly bright color had turned dull.

The leading guy, a blue-haired man, looked at Nicole with amazement. "This chick is stunning!"

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 196

Chapter 196

Zeke could almost see a huge piercing on that talking guy's tongue. He was wearing a spiked shoulder vest that revealed his bare chest, which made him look disgusting. Nicole apparently felt the same way. She looked at the dozen guys with a forbidding look in her eyes. "Who sent you?";

As Bluehead looked at Nicole, he swung the wooden stick in his hand as if that would make him look cool. "Baby, you don't have to know that. You're so pretty. Why don't you be my woman and I'll consider letting you go? What do you think?" Before Nicole could speak, Zeke saw the lewd look in Bluehead's eyes and scoffed at him. "Get yourself a mirror."

SIL

A faint smile crept across Nicole's face as she looked at Bluehead with frosty eyes. Bluehead seemed to be angered by Zeke's disdain. He sneered. "Do you know who I am? You're looking for trouble!"

The stall owner behind him looked nervously at the group of guys. He was a local, so he knew this gang of notorious hooligans was related to the local criminal forces. Every time they got arrested by police, they would walk out free eventually. With this in mind, the stall owner spoke to Nicole in desperate tone, "It's best to avoid clashing with them. You should calm down. You don't want to mess with them." He kept winking at Nicole, not only worried about her safety but also afraid that these thugs might destroy his stall. Nicole was well aware of his concerns. She grabbed her bag, stood up with no expression on her face, and spoke to Zeke, "Let's go."

Zeke nodded with no hesitation. He quickly finished the last bite of ramen before getting up to leave.

Nicole took out cash to pay the stall owner. The two of them seemed to disregard the group of guys completely. It angered Bluehead. He ordered the red-haired and yellow-haired guys, "Beat the hell out of them!"

After Nicole and Zeke left the stall, Zeke could no longer keep his cool and looked back at the gang behind him. He then took Nicole's hand, wanting to run. But Nicole did not follow him. Instead, she shoved her bag in his arms and said, "Go. I will come in a minute."

Zeke looked at her with doubt. Nicole might know how to fight, but he would not leave a girl to fight so many guys alone. He looked at Nicole, who was standing there. He gritted his teeth and also stood still. Nicole frowned but said nothing. She was confident in protecting him.

The group of hooligans had rushed up and surrounded them. The leading guy, Bluehead, saw that Nicole was standing in place and snickered. "Why didn't you run?" Nicole did not respond. She pushed Zeke out of the encirclement and then stood there with a nonchalant look in her eyes.

When Bluehead saw Nicole was not afraid of him at all, his dirty thoughts left him. He was consumed by anger at being looked down upon. A dozen guys behind him also looked at Nicole maliciously. They had seen enough mad people like her. They were going to fix her and then do whatever they wanted with her. ,,

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 197

Chapter 197

Bluehead had obviously thought of this. The anger in his eyes gradually went away, replaced by a hint of contempt and triumph. "Beat the daylights out of her, mates!" A dozen guys giggled as they approached Nicole, the steel weapons in their hands glinting under the streetlights.

The stall owner behind them looked worriedly at what had happened. He was expecting those hooligans to besmirch Nicole's dignity. When he thought of her leaving with no hesitation, not wanting to implicate his stall when danger loomed, he took out his mobile phone to call the police with trembling hands. He knew very well what might happen after he called the police. The hooligans might likely take revenge. But for now, he could not care less.

Just as he got through to the police, things unfolding in front of his eyes stunned him beyond words. The police on the other end of the phone did not hear anyone speak and hung up impatiently. Nicole had beaten down all the hooligans. They were severely injured and could not even get up. Especially Bluehead, who lay like a starfish in front of the stall, as if he had been kicked and sent flying backward for quite a distance before crashing to the ground. There was a look of disbelief and pain on his contorted face. Zeke, who stood close to Nicole, was just as stunned as the stall owner, his mouth agape. But he did not see clearly what had just happened. It seemed that Nicole had instantly knocked the gang down when they surrounded her. She stood in the center, her right leg still in an uplifted posture. When she saw everyone lying on the ground, she slowly eased up and stood in place with a strange facial expression. Zeke felt it was absolutely a disgusted expression, if he was not mistaken. His mouth twitched, and he had no words. There was a look of vicissitudes on his baby face. He felt as if he had suddenly grown older after just spending two days with Nicole. " Nicole gave her wrists a little stretch. She had not really fought with her full strength. These people were apparently too weak.

Those people on the ground saw her move her wrists and quickly crawled backward in horror despite the pain in their bodies. It was a strange scene.

Bluehead had come to his senses. Suffering the most severe injuries, he looked in horror, and he shuddered involuntarily as Nicole walked toward him calmly. "Who the hell is this woman? How come she can be so frightening?" he wondered. As if unaware of his fear, Nicole walked up to him and looked at him condescendingly. "Who sent you?"

It scared the hell out of Bluehead, "I-I don't know the person who hired me. He was wearing a mask. I couldn't see his face clearly. He's a sissy. And that's all I know, We were just doing our job. Please spare us."

The gopher was a bossy guy all this while. But now, he was begging for his life in front of Nicole. When the stall owner behind Nicole and Zeke saw this, his mouth twitched, and he had no words. He had reasons to believe that if this man could move, he would definitely get up, ; kneel to Nicole, and beg for forgiveness

But the stall owner could not fully understand his feelings. He put down his mobile phone, which he had hung up, and looked at Nicole with a mixed expression. Nicole had almost guessed it after hearing what Bluehead said. She stood up and left the hooligans alone. "Let's go now," said Nicole as she motioned to Zeke.

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 198

Chapter 198

Zeke looked at the hooligans collapsing in the throes of agony on the ground, muttered his acknowledgment expressionlessly, and followed Nicole back toward the hotel.

'It seems like Lucifer is really gentle with me,' Zeke thought. 'Had she treated me like how she treated these hooligans, I would've...' He shivered involuntarily at the thought. Nicole looked at him and frowned. "You're cold?"

Zeke shook his head vigorously. "I just suddenly feel you are really nice to me." Nicole looked at him. She had no words. She reflected on how she had given him this illusion. Zeke did not care what was on her mind. Instead, he looked at her longingly, his voice adoring her. "Lucifer, could you teach me a few tricks?"

Nicole studied him for a while and said, "It's kinda hard, as your foundation is too shallow."

Zeke refused to give up. "You can train me. I saw that on TV; they all do that –" Seeing Nicole's contemptuous gaze, he could not continue his sentence but lowered his head, feeling dejected. "My father didn't like me because I was physically weak. He didn't care much about me or place his hope on me. But I also wanted to be strong."

Nicole looked at him with no emotion in her eyes and said calmly, "As far as I know, you're the only child in the family. I know your tricks left and right. It isn't going to work on me."

Zeke choked. He could no longer shuck and jive. 'How could I forget that she knew me better than my parents did?' So, Zeke said nothing more and dragged his feet to step back.

Zeke did not lie or even exaggerate when he said that just now. He was born into such a family. He had a little problem with his health when he was small, so he could not learn martial arts. The only thing he could do was study computer science every day, and because of that, he had unwittingly carved a path for himself. But being a boy, he still liked martial arts. While Zeke was deep in thought; Nicole's voice suddenly came from behind. "Wait for me at the entrance of the Royal Creek Institute at four-thirty every morning."

Zeke's eyes lit up. Knowing that Nicole had agreed, Zeke looked back excitedly at Nicole, bright-eyed and bushy-tailed. "Lucifer, you are so nice!" He planned to give that most beautiful diamond to Nicole when he returned home.

Meanwhile, Bluehead was lying on the ground, and a few of his underlings had finally gotten to their feet. They endured the pain in their bodies and helped Bluehead up. Never did they expect Bluehead to scream in pain when they touched him. It was as if he had fallen apart at the seams

A yellow-haired underling carrying his feet saw Bluehead was in pain and suggested, "Boss, I think we should call an ambulance."

Bluehead fought back the pain and gave this underling of him a kick in the face. "Are you stupid or something? If the ambulance comes, it'll make me a laughingstock in front of many people!”

Yellowhead had also suffered injuries, so he could not stand the kick from Bluehead . He was knocked down on the ground, bringing Bluehead down along with him.

Bluehead groaned in pain and snarled, “You son of a b*tch! Are you trying to kill me?”

Yellowhead quickly apologized. “Boss, what should we do next?” he said.

Bluehead’s eyes flashed in a cold light. He would not let this woman go unpunished after she had made him so miserable. Suddenly, he thought of something and broke into a sinister smile. He waved at Redhead and Yellowhead and said a few words in their ears. There was a triumphant smile on their faces. It seemed that they had heard some brilliant ideas.

“You’re smart, Boss,” Yellowhead praised.

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 199

Chapter 199

Bluehead was triumphant, wanting to say something, but his excited movement caused more pain in his injured abdomen, and he cried out in pain. He looked bitterly in the direction Nicole had left and cursed in his mind, ‘You wench! I’m going to make you pay!’

Nicole and Zeke returned to the hotel. After a long day and because of the jet lag, Zeke had been yawning big time. Nicole watched him enter Room 402 before she swiped the key card to open the door of her room. Just as she was about to enter, the door of Room 403 next to her opened. She quickly closed the door back behind her, but a large hand reached in the gap of the door in the nick of time, holding the door and resisting her strength. If Nicole had insisted on closing the door, the hand would have been absolutely crushed. Nicole looked at that hand expressionlessly, pondered for half a second, and decided to let off.

Harvey’s face looked somewhat pale under the light in the hallway. He stared at Nicole with eyes that appeared like abysses and took two steps forward into Room 401 with no smile on his face.

“Where did you go with that guy? Why did you come back so late?” Harvey asked.

Nicole looked at him with the same frosty face. She threw the bag at her feet and replied with an equally indifferent voice, “What does it have to do with you? Get out.”

To Nicole’s surprise, Harvey squinted and reached out a hand to clasp Nicole’s jaw.

“Tell me!” His voice had never been colder.

Nicole sneered and raised a kick to strike at the side of Harvey’s waist. If this strike hit its target, it could damage the person’s kidney, not to mention snap his lumbar spine. Harvey knew Nicole would not show him any mercy.

He let off his hand that clasped Nicole’s jaw, spun around, and came out of Room 401.

His eyes looked foggy and revealed nothing of his emotion. “Nicole, you’ve let me down.” Harvey took a hard look at Nicole, his gaze deep and unfathomable as the ocean. At last, he let out a soft smile and said in an upset voice, “Why do you always not listen?” He was upset that Nicole had never listened to him or had him in her heart. At the same time, he wondered why he could not give up on a girl like her.

Nicole looked at him, and a sneer gradually appeared on her face. "I thought I had made it clear to you that day."

Harvey lowered his eyes at the thought of her hard-hearted rejection of him the other day, 'I already wanted to avoid you, yet you came to me every time. Since this is the case, how can you ask me to let you go?' he said in his mind.

Nicole looked at Harvey's expression with forbidding eyes as she knew what he was thinking." Harvey, you're just being influenced by your obsessive desire to control. You'll know how stupid your recent actions have been when you calm down." She paid no heed to Harvey's expression and closed the door, leaving Harvey standing outside the door of Nicole's room.

His eyes were glazing over as he was in deep thought. He had heard that the Moon House had a Gold Session, so he had booked a flight that night and flew over, wanting to stay away from Nicole for fear that her deadly attraction would make him do something irreparable. But now, he was standing outside her room like a dejected madman pain and snarled, "You son of a b*tch! Are you trying to kill me?" Yellowhead quickly apologized. "Boss, what should we do next?" he said.. Bluehead's eyes flashed in a cold light. He would not let this woman go unpunished after she had made him so miserable. Suddenly, he thought of something and broke into a sinister smile. He waved at Redhead and Yellowhead and said a few words in their ears. There was a triumphant smile on their faces. It seemed that they had heard some brilliant ideas.

"You're smart, Boss," Yellowhead praised.

Chapter 199 Bluehead was triumphant, wanting to say something, but his excited movement caused more pain in his injured abdomen, and he cried out in pain. He looked bitterly in the direction Nicole had left and cursed in his mind, 'You wench! I'm going to make you pay!'

Nicole and Zeke returned to the hotel. After a long day and because of the jet lag, Zeke had been yawning big time. Nicole watched him enter Room 402 before she swiped the key card to open the door of her room. Just as she was about to enter, the door of Room 403 next to her opened. She quickly closed the door back behind her, but a large hand reached in the gap of the door in the nick of time, holding the door and resisting her strength. If Nicole had insisted on closing the door, the hand would have been absolutely crushed. Nicole looked at that hand expressionlessly, pondered for half a second, and decided to let off. Harvey's face looked somewhat pale under the light in the hallway. He stared at Nicole with eyes that appeared like abysses and took two steps forward into Room 401 with no smile on his face.

"Where did you go with that guy? Why did you come back so late?" Harvey asked.

Nicole looked at him with the same frosty face. She threw the bag at her feet and replied with an equally indifferent voice, "What does it have to do with you? Get out." To Nicole's surprise, Harvey squinted and reached out a hand to clasp Nicole's jaw. "Tell me!" His voice had never been colder.

Nicole sneered and raised a kick to strike at the side of Harvey's waist. If this strike hit its target, it could damage the person's kidney, not to mention snap his lumbar spine. Harvey knew Nicole would not show him any mercy.

He let off his hand that clasped Nicole's jaw, spun around, and came out of Room 401. His eyes looked foggy and revealed nothing of his emotion. "Nicole, you've let me down.” Harvey took a hard look at Nicole, his gaze deep and unfathomable as the ocean. At last, he let out a soft smile and said in an upset voice, “Why do you always not listen?” He was upset that Nicole had never listened to him or had him in her heart. At the same time, he wondered why he could not give up on a girl like her.

Nicole looked at him, and a sneer gradually appeared on her face. “I thought I had made it clear to you that day.”

Harvey lowered his eyes at the thought of her hard-hearted rejection of him the other day, ‘I already wanted to avoid you, yet you came to me every time. Since this is the case, how can you ask me to let you go?’ he said in his mind,

Nicole looked at Harvey’s expression with forbidding eyes as she knew what he was thinking.” Harvey, you’re just being influenced by your obsessive desire to control. You’ll know how stupid your recent actions have been when you calm down.” She paid no heed to Harvey’s expression and closed the door, leaving Harvey standing outside the door of Nicole’s room.

His eyes were glazing over as he was in deep thought. He had heard that the Moon House had a Gold Session, so he had booked a flight that night and flew over, wanting to stay away from Nicole for fear that her deadly attraction would make him do something Irreparable. But now, he was standing outside her room like a dejected madman.

Nicole could always see through him easily. Gradually, he did not even bother to put on his facade in front of her. He became irritable and difficult to talk to. Or rather, the Harvey acting out of his usual character in front of Nicole was the real Harvey.

My Wife is a Hacker Chapter 200

Chapter 200

Harvey had reverted to the self he hated the most because of Nicole. He glanced at the tightly shutdoor in front of him for the last time with gloomy eyes, as if the darkness inside would drown him.

Early the next morning, Nicole packed up her luggage and was ready to leave for Hustuaburg. But somehow, she had an uneasy feeling, as if she had something that she had forgotten. Nicole knocked on the door of Room 402. She raised an eyebrow when she saw Zeke, who answered the door, looking like he had not woken up. “It’s already six o’clock in the morning. Are you still sleeping?” Zeke seemed to become alert instantly, with his eyes wide open. “Come in and have a seat. I’ll be ready in five,” he quickly said. Nicole walked in noncommittally, sat on the couch, and took out her laptop to do her stuff. When Zeke came out from the washroom, he saw that Nicole was surfing the dark site — the Hunters — for jobs. Her name on the wanted list did not seem to bother her a bit. After erasing her information, she became undaunted and surfed the Hunters. Nicole was really a daredevil.

Zeke sat looking at what she did in horror, but Nicole just glanced at him nonchalantly and asked, “Are you ready?” Zeke nodded. She immediately put away her laptop and grabbed her travel bag. “Let’s go,” she said.

Just when the two of them stood up, there was a knock on the door, followed by a polite voice outside. Nicole narrowed her eyes, walked to the door, and squinted through the peephole. It was Dino. So, she opened the door. The door to Room 404 opened at the same time she did. Edwin was standing in the doorway with a laptop in his hand. He thought of going to Room 403. But when he saw Nicole at the door of Room 402, he stopped and smiled at her. "Good morning, Nicole."

Nicole nodded in acknowledgment and then looked at Dino. "What's up?", Dino glanced at her with a gleam of light in his eye behind the monocle. "The police are downstairs looking for someone. According to their description of the suspect, it seems to be you. I hope you can go check it out and not make a scene. If necessary, you may ask for help from the hotel," he whispered, looking up at the beautiful Nicole with mixed feelings in his eyes,

Nicole was leaning lazily against the wall as if she could not care less. "I know," she said and then walked down the stairs,

Zeke followed Nicole downstairs and said worriedly, "How come the police are looking for us?" Nicole looked up at him and said, "They aren't coming for us, but me." Zeke was used to the way she talked, so, he continued. "Do you think it's because we didn't follow the traffic rules when we came?" After all, the way Nicole rode almost caused him to vomit his guts out.

Nicole shot him a somewhat complicated look and walked down the stairs quickly, seemingly not wanting to talk to him again. Zeke followed her, still babbling on "Shut up," Nicole said impatiently.

Getting scolded, Zeke blinked his eyes and shut up at once. 16