Chapter 824

“No thanks. We’d like to sleep a little longer.” Lulu did not want to work out with Nicole before the sun even came out yet.

“Don’t you two want to? Do you know how many people want to practice with me in the morning, and I don’t take them along? Don’t take it for granted.”

“Of course, we know that someone wants to work out with you in the morning, and that person is more than wanting it; he’s cravi ng for it.” Lulu underlined the last part of the sentence in her voice. “Lulu, believe it or not, I will drag you up in the wee hours of t he morning if you talk nonsense again?” Nicole threatened her, knowing who she was talking about.

“I will shut up right away and go to sleep. Good night.” Lulu backed down.

The next day of training, Vivian and the others were not absent.

Nicole did a roll call. “Whoever didn’t come to the training yesterday afternoon, please step out.” Vivian stood in the group and felt a chill running up her spine. After a while, she took the lead and stood out. While standing in front, she realized everyone

looking at them with that kind of look.

“Why are you all looking at me like that?” Vivian felt unease being stared at.

“It was all because of you that got all of us punished.”

“We ran twenty laps and came back to the dormitory dog tired.”

“It was all because of you.” The voices of reproach resounded throughout the sports field.

Vivian looked at her piqued classmates and chopped logic. “We were called away by a teacher, and you were gone when you came back.”

“Vivian, stop lying. I dare you to reveal the teacher’s name.” A classmate mercilessly exposed her. Vivian looked at him and could not find a word to respond.

“Well, you guys who were absent from training yesterday will have to redouble your training today.

Everyone else has run ten laps, then you guys will run twenty.”

Nicole looked at Vivian with icy eyes, not happy that she always disregarded the overall interests and took the lead in picking a fight.

“Since we used sandbags yesterday, we will continue using them today.” With that, Nicole led everyone to a new training session.

Today, Nicole added some of the most basic intensive training elements to the team on top of the basic training. Those who ran twenty laps yesterday joining the intensive training today were quite okay with them, but Vivian and her gang were not. Because of yesterday’s absence, they could not cope with today’s intensive training.

After a while, Vivian and her gang lay down again. Nicole came over. “You guys’ stomachs hurt again? Do you want me to treat it?”

“We don’t have a stomachache today. We really can’t keep on. Let us take a break.”

Nicole could tell they were not lying. “Fine. You have two minutes.”

Then Nicole left to keep an eye on the training of others. Both Vivian and Gary were lazy when Nicole was not looking, so Nicole had to check on them constantly.

After walking around and returning to Vivian, Nicole found them still resting. She was angry but could not punish her classmates like she did with outsiders. She could only outsmart them. Nicole walked up to Vivian , casting a long shadow over her.

“Do you know there are prizes for this year’s sports day?” Nicole looked at Vivian. 1

Vivian immediately got up from the ground and leaned close to Nicole. “There are prizes? How come I never heard of it?”
