Chapter 897

Jared took Nicole’s arm and was about to walk toward the helicopter. Nicole pulled his hand and asked, “Where are we going?

What’s happening?”

Looking at a still nervous Nicole , Jared could not bear to tease her anymore. “Nothing is happening. I’m going to show you the world.”

Nicole could not believe her ears. ‘Jared has to be kidding her, right? He gets a helicopter to take me to see the world for no reason?’

She looked at him in disbelief. “Are you kidding me?”

“Nope. You will find out in a minute. Get onboard.”

Jared took her hand and got on the helicopter.

Jared made it to the pilot’s seat, leaving Nicole in the passenger seat. “Are you ready? It is a gift before we get betrothed.”

“A gift?” Nicole was completely baffled, increasingly confused by what he was saying.

But looking at him like he was going to fly the machine himself, Nicole asked with concern, “Do you have a flying license?”

“Sure. I do.”

Jared flew the helicopter up into the air, heading toward the sun.

“Look over there.” Jared pointed out to the sea, where several yachts on the sea posed in a huge heart shape.

“Do you like it?” Jared looked over at Nicole.

“Love it.” Nicole was so touched, and she kissed Jared on the lips. The sun shone brightly and warmly on the two’s faces.

Jared did not expect Nicole to kiss him, let alone in a helicopter.

The sound of fireworks suddenly came. Nicole looked outside, and a line appeared in the distance after the explosion of fireworks in the air.

[Nicole, Jared will always love you.]

It was the first time she had seen her name appear from the fireworks—one that belonged to her, the fireworks he had set off for her.

“Jared, why didn’t you tell me earlier? You caused me to worry for a while,” Nicole said.

“I’m sorry to have worried you. I wanted to surprise you.” It was the first time Jared had ever said those words to anyone, or maybe he would only say them to Nicole. Jared flew the helicopter away from the sea and off into the distance.

“Can you tell me where we are going now?” Nicole was not worried now, her tense nerves having relaxed at the sight of the gift he had prepared for her.

“We are going to the island for our honeymoon now.”

“Honeymoon? Aren’t we only going on our honeymoon after we get married?” Nicole looked at him in puzzlement

“Who says we have to be married before you can go? I can go on my honeymoon whenever I want, as long as you agree, and no one else can stop us.” Jared looked at her dominantly as if he was going to swallow her up in the next moment.

“Hell yeah.” Nicole looked at him with a smile.

“Let’s take a picture,” Nicole suggested. The time with him was always good, and she wanted to keep the moment.

Carl was still tracking White abroad. The coordinates had been narrowed down to a town, but the situation here was complicated, so he did not dare to act rashly. He had tried to contact Zane in the past few days but had not heard from him. So today, he continued to go outside to have his meal as usual.

Suddenly the beacon light on his hand flashed rapidly , and Carl immediately covered it with his sleeve, knowing White should be in his vicinity.

While eating, his eyes scanned. Suddenly, a man in a hoodie in the corner caught his attention.
