Chapter 932

On the other side, Franco listened to the report of the returning bearded man in the building, looking not the slightest surprised as if he had expected this result.

“Assemble the team right away and take four more sappers to sweep the mines, this time wiping out Zane and the others at once.”

Franco looked at the bearded man and barked his order, then picked up a glass of wine and took a sip as he looked at Roca

Este on the monitor. At noon, with the sun baking the earth, Zane’s men hid in the bushes.

As they spoke , a large group of armed men advanced toward the island at the entrance to Roca Este. As they watched, the bearded man led the group to a stop where the minefield was.

“Sappers!” the bearded man shouted.

Immediately, four sappers came forward to sweep the mines. There were no snipers among the men who had been ambushing outside the minefield , so they saw the sappers sweeping the mines but could do nothing about it.

Nicole, who ambushed at the pickup spot nearest to the minefield, saw the situation through the binoculars and immediately moved toward the minefield. By the time she reached the higher ground and was in range, the sappers had already cleared several mines. She grabbed her sniper rifle and took down the sapper, who was demining at the front. The other sappers saw that and immediately retreated for cover. A few seconds later, they came out and continued to clear the mines.

Nicole took out two more sappers with two shots. At this point, there was one sapper left. So someone immediately stepped forward to protect the only sapper, but they did not see where the sniper was and did not know which direction to return fire.

Even with protection, the sapper still had to continue to clear the mines.

Another shot was taken. Nicole took out the last sapper, leaving the enemy completely with no sappers. The bearded man furiously picked up a machine gun and shot a few rounds in random directions, hitting nothing. He looked angrily at the minefield in front of them and cursed frustratedly before ordering his team to back up and take cover.

After contemplating for a while, the bearded man and those armed men turned around, abandoning their plan to go through the minefield. The bearded man led his team, trekking through mountains and forests carefully. Perhaps afraid of stepping on a mine, they moved slightly slower. After a long while, the group came to a rocky cliff, and the bearded man looked upward.

“You two go over there and see if you can climb up.” Two men went to check under the cliff and then came back and reported.

“We should be able to get up there using grappling hooks.” The bearded man turned around and ordered . “Prepare grappling hooks and go up as fast as you all can.” His men immediately took the grappling hooks and threw them toward the top of the cliff.

“Ready to go.” “Go.” the bearded man commanded. His men climbed , following the rope lines. Halfway up the cliff, the rope suddenly snapped, and they fell from the height of dozens of feet and were severely injured.

The bearded man looked up but saw no one, thinking that sharp rock surfaces might have worn the rope, causing it to snap. So he ordered his men to bind two strands of rope into one and climb again.

As they were halfway up the cliff, the same thing happened. The bearded man looked up the cliff again with bafflement, suspecting if there was someone up there. He instructed a few men to come over.

“A few of you climb using the grappling hooks. The rest of you find some spots where you can climb with your hands and set up a human ladder.”

“Aye.”

“This time, even if there is someone up there, they can’t stop me.” The bearded man looked upward with confidence.

“What do we do this time? They’re spreading out and climbing up.” The few people Nicole had arranged to ambush here ran out of countermeasures.
