

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1049-1053

Chapter 1049 Adeena raised her voice and spoke.

Adeline slowly looked over and instantly recognized Adeena.

She was only part of the working class, so she had a very strong impression of people like Adeena, who seemed rich at first glance.

She moved her lips to speak but could not say anything.

She had been crying for so long that her voice had become hoarse.

If Grapie had not shielded her at that critical moment, she would have been the one lying in the ICU now.

She had just adopted Grapie not long ago, but they had grown very close as mother and daughter.

Even though Grapie's fate remained unknown, she refused to leave.

She just kept sitting there.

When Adeena saw how she looked, her eyes became teary for some reason.

She turned around to hide her tears. She also wanted to see that little girl.

Through the glass windows, she looked at the previously agile and active little girl who was lying on the hospital bed. Her body was full of infusion tubes as she lay there in undetermined condition. Adeena's heart could not help but tighten. She softly asked, "Mrs. Harris, what blood type does Grapie have?" Adeline drank some water, and her voice finally sounded better. "It's a negative Rh blood type. It's difficult to find worldwide, and unless we find Grapie's parents, we can't help her."

There was a glint in Adeena's black eyes.

She dared not give Adeline false hope. As such, she kept quiet and just walked toward the doctor's office. When she stated the purpose of her visit, the doctor immediately arranged for a nurse to withdraw her blood.

She still needed to wait twenty minutes for the result.

So, Adeena walked into the corridor and sat beside Adeline.

Adeline cast a glance at her. The moment she noticed that Adeena's wrist was covered with disinfected cotton wool, she asked in surprise, "Ms. Willis, what's this?"

"I just gave it a try. Maybe I'll match?" Adeena leaned back in the chair and softly said, "You've spent a lot of money to save Grapie, haven't you?"

Adeline shook her head. "Money isn't important . I just want Grapie to recover."

Adeena did not know what to say.

She suddenly felt a little frightened. She was actually hoping that Adeline would give Grapie up.

That way, she would be able to reasonably adopt Grapie.

"The doctor says if no suitable blood is found, Grapie might not be able to survive."

Adeline cried again. In truth, she had also been suffering from heavy pressure. She could not get pregnant, but just when she finally convinced her family to adopt a child, a car accident happened soon after the adoption.

Her nearby relatives and neighbors told her that Grapie was a misfortune to the family, and they wanted her to abandon Grapie as early as possible.

How could she do that?

She was reluctant!

She would rather get a divorce than lose Grapie!

Adeena sat in the corridor quietly. Time passed by quickly, and before long, it had been twenty minutes.

She got up and went to the reception to get the test result.

"Your blood type matches with Peachlyn Harris." The nurse appeared surprised. "Grapie will be safe!"

It turned out that Grapie's real name was Peachlyn Harris. Adeena was not fond of the name.

However, it had been given by her parents . Adeena did not have the right to comment on anything.

She followed the nurse to the blood – drawing room and closed her eyes as she let the nurse withdraw 400ml of blood.

Her face quickly turned pale as if all her blood had been withdrawn.

Chapter 1050

Grapie had experienced a hemorrhage, so 400ml of blood was insufficient.

However, the nurse dared not withdraw more. "Ms. Willis, are you okay?" she asked carefully.

Adeena felt a little dizzy and had trouble sitting up.

She supported her head with one arm, took a forced breath, and said, "I'm okay. Continue withdrawing the blood. Saving Grapie is more important."

The nurse made up her mind and withdrew another 200ml.

A total of 600ml was sufficient. If any other accident happened again, more blood would need to be withdrawn.

The nurse softly said, "Can I get your contact information? If there's a problem with the follow-up treatment, we might have to contact you for another blood donation."

Adeena gave out her phone number straight away.

She pressed down the cotton wool and stood up, but she suddenly felt dizzy and fell on the chair again.

The nurse quickly gave her a cup of sugar water. "Drink it all at once and lay down on the bed for a while. Don't rush to leave."

A fit young man would also feel weak after losing 600ml of his blood at once, let alone a skinny woman.

If they had not required her blood type to save Grapie's life, the nurse would not have dared to do this.

Adeena drank the sugary water and lay on the hospital bed. As she lay there, she fell asleep just like that.

She woke up with a jolt after sleeping for a long time.

It was already dark outside.

If she was not mistaken, she had arrived in the morning. Why was the sky suddenly so dark?

When she moved her arm, she realized that she was receiving an IV drip.

The same nurse was by her side, taking care of her. "Ms. Willis, why didn't you tell me that you underwent surgery three years ago? Your body isn't in as good a shape as other regular people. You could have died with that blood withdrawn at once!" Adeena muttered, "I read the remark, and it said I could donate if I have not had surgery within a year."

Even if the instruction manual stated that she could not donate her blood, she would still go through with it.

She would rather something happen to her than have the child die.

This strange affection happened so suddenly that she did not even know why it was so strong and overwhelming.

The nurse felt slightly puzzled too.

Unless it was a big surgery that involved her whole body, donating blood should not have caused such a serious effect. Yet, after Ms. Willis donated her blood, she suddenly fell unconscious, and the nurse could not wake her up. She immediately called the doctor to come and check on Ms. Willis. Only then did she find out that something serious had happened. Ms. Willis had previously received an infusion with at least 2000ml of blood. Only someone who underwent huge surgery would need so much blood.

“Ms. Willis, thank you very much!”

Adeline walked in from the outside with teary eyes and instantly held Adeena’s free hand.

“Grapie’s surgery was successful, and she’s out of danger now. It’s all because of your blood, Ms. Willis. Thank you very much! Our family doesn’t know how we can repay your great kindness!”.

Adeena instantly felt relieved. “Anyone who encounters such a situation would do their best to help. You really don’t have to thank me.”

The nurse shook her head. “Many people with rare blood types often wait until their death. If they find a suitable donor, that person will usually refuse to donate blood or ask for a lot of money. People like you are really rare, Ms. Willis.”

Adeline felt so grateful that she did not know what to say. “Ms. Willis, you haven’t eaten anything the entire day. I’ll go downstairs and buy you some food. Miss, what can Ms. Willis eat in her current condition?”.

“Just buy her some porridge and soup,” the nurse replied.

Adeline immediately went downstairs to buy them, and Adeena smiled faintly.

It was great that Grapie was out of danger now.

Her mood instantly brightened at that moment.

It seemed that as long as Grapie could survive, everything else was trivial.

Meanwhile, Ruth was sitting in the living room of her family's mansion and frowning.

She looked at the text message on her phone for the hundredth time. Daniel had sent her about four text messages continuously.

(I'm in Cloud City. Let's meet.)

[Ms. Willis, did you receive my message?]

[Ms. Willis, I want to see you. There are some things that I want to ask you in person.]

Chapter 1051

(Ms. Willis, if you don't reply to me, I'll have to visit you in the Willis family's mansion.)

There were even a few phone calls between the text messages.

She did not answer any of them.

She had a feeling that Daniel might want to ask some questions that she was not willing to answer.

At this time, she just wanted to avoid it all.

"Ruth, what's wrong?" Jada walked over and softly asked.

Ruth raised her head and looked at her mother.

Four years ago, her mother had worked down to the bone to save her. She looked much older than other rich ladies her age. Her mother had only started to dress up and slowly look the way a rich lady should look after she completely recovered.

Even so, the rich ladies in Cloud City were nothing compared to the rich in Sea City.

The Willis family did have a high status in Cloud City, but if either the Winters family or the Jones family did something, the Willis family would be completely doomed.

"I'm fine."

Ruth stood up and tidied up her clothes and hair. "Mom, I'm going out to meet a friend." Jada took a look at the time. "It's so late now. Why are you meeting a friend at this time? Is it a guy or a girl?"

“Mom, it’s just a normal friend. Why are you asking so many questions?”

Ruth grabbed her bag and went out.

Jada could not help but mumble, “You just came back from Sea City and haven’t even chatted with us. Why are you going out again?”

When Ruth heard what her mother said, she suddenly felt sad.

She dared not tell her mother that the Willis family was going to be doomed.

She drove all the way to the address given by Daniel.

It was a five–star hotel. After she parked her car, she walked in fearlessly. She entered the elevator and went to the presidential suite on the top floor.

Once there, she gently knocked on the door.

“Come in.”

The voice was deep and gentle.

Ruth took a deep breath and pushed the door open.

Instantly, she saw the man sitting on the couch. He bent down slightly as he set up some teacups. The aroma of the tea calmed her impatient heart for some reason.

“Ms. Willis, please come and have a cup of tea.” Ruth slowly walked inside. “You don’t seem to be surprised that I’m here.”

“It doesn’t matter if you’re here or not, I’ll still drink the tea.” Daniel’s voice sounded very indifferent.

But it shocked Ruth.

She had gleaned another meaning from his words.

He seemed to say that even if she did not come today, he would still find out what he wanted using other methods.

She looked down slightly and sat down across from Daniel.

The tea was just normal Earl Grey tea. The tea leaves floated on the surface, and the aroma of the tea filled her nose.

Daniel held a small and delicate teacup as he softly asked, “The traffic was heavy when you traveled over from the Willis family’s mansion, right?”

Ruth pursed her lips. "It's past the peak hour when people clock off, so it's fine. You're looking for me because you have something to discuss, right? Let's talk."

The two of them never said anything outright, but the atmosphere between them suddenly changed.

In the beginning, Daniel had given her some presents to show his friendliness.

After that, she kept going after him. She did not know how they ended up like this.

Chapter 1052

"I heard that you've been in poor health since a child," Daniel took a sip of the tea and asked softly.

Ruth's fingers trembled. He even figured that out.

It looked like it would not take a long time for him to find out about Adeena.

Should she wait until he figured it out or should she take the initiative to tell him everything?

Even if she told him everything, it would not change the fact that the Willis family had caused the death of Adeena's baby.

"I heard that you nearly died four years ago. Luckily, the Willis family found a blood donor. Only then did you survive, right?" Daniel continued asking.

Ruth clenched her fists, raised her head, and asked, "Why are you looking into my past?"

Daniel looked at her quietly. "What do you think? Why am I looking into your background?"

Ruth's heart trembled.

She was just a young girl in her early twenties, so she could not bear being questioned like that.

All kinds of ideas crossed her mind. She gritted her teeth and said, "I don't know what you're trying to do, but whatever it is, it's none of my business!"

She got up and tried to leave.

Then, she heard Daniel's soft voice behind her. "Ms. Willis, you have one last chance after this."

Ruth stopped walking for a while before she left in a hurry.

The hotel room door was slammed shut.

Soon after, a tall and straight figure slowly walked out. It was Duke.

"This Ms. Willis clearly knows something," he said coldly.

Daniel nodded. "When the news got out, she should've known about it. Addy's memory loss has to be related to the Willis family, or else, Ms. Willis wouldn't be so scared."

"Since that's the case, I have to do something about it." Duke's gaze was sharp. "If you don't have other matters here, you can go back to Sea City first."

Daniel shook his head stubbornly. "No, I want to stay here and be with my sister."

He could not meet her, but he would feel slightly at ease when they were under the same sky. He had not told his father about this. Otherwise, his father would rush over that very night too.

He had to bring his sister back to Sea City as soon as possible, and he could not take any risk. Ruth nearly ran back to the Willis family's mansion.

She suddenly returned after she left half an hour ago. Jada tore off her facial mask. "Ruth, what happened? What's wrong with you?"

"Mom!"

Ruth rushed into Jada's arms.

She realized that this was not something she could carry on her own.

Daniel alone had managed to frighten her.

If the entire Jones and Winters families were present, she would be killed.

"Adeena's families are coming for us!" Ruth spoke incoherently. "She's from Sea City. She's Ms. Jones and Mdm. Winters!"

Jada was slightly confused. "Which Jones family? Which Winters family?"

"The Winters family from Sea City. She's the wife of Winters Corporation's CEO!" Ruth calmed down slightly and said, "The Winters family and the Jones family have been looking for Adeena for four years! I don't know why they didn't identify Adeena straight away. I don't know if they're still not sure or there are other reasons..."

Jada was completely shocked.

She had a feeling that her foster daughter held an unusual status.

Unexpectedly, Adeena was Mdm. Winters.

The Winters family owned the top transnational corporation in the world, and its net worth was ranked top three globally.

Chapter 1053

It was that big family. The Willis family would never compare even if they worked hard for hundreds of generations.

The Willis family was envied in Cloud City, but there were always much better families out there, and the Winters family was clearly the better one.

“Ruth, you’re not talking nonsense, are you?” Jada asked in a trembling voice.

Ruth shook her head. “It’s true! Adeena’s biological brother is in Cloud City now. He’s investigating the Willis family! He knows that I’ve had poor health since I was young, and he also knows that I received a big surgery four years ago. He’ll find out that Adeena also had surgery. When that happens...”

Jada’s fingers instantly became stiff.

At that time, the Willis family would be doomed. They would instantly become trash of the lowest level in Cloud City.

Just then, Kendry came back.

He frowned. “What’s wrong with the two of you? What happened?”

When the family’s backbone returned home, Jada calmed down. She took a deep breath and said, “Mdm. Winters of Sea City’s Winters Corporation is our foster daughter.”

“What?”

Kendry was stunned.

When Brady was in Sea City the past few days, Winters Corporation had protected him. So, Kendry thought that Winters Corporation really favored Adeena.

Unexpectedly, Adeena was a member of the Winters family.

If that was true, why did Winters Corporation not identify her and take her back?

“Dad, if the Winters family finds out that the Willis family withdrew Adeena’s blood and even killed her baby, they won’t spare us.” Ruth looked frightened.

Daniel, who used to be gentle and elegant, had suddenly become terrifying. Their meeting earlier was terrifying. It was a huge contrast to how well he used to treat her. "Calm down. Why are you afraid?" Kendry said seriously. "I've destroyed Adeena's patient records. The Winters family will never find anything."

"The Willis family is nothing. We are just a second-tier family in Cloud City. How can Winters Corporation not discover the things that we destroy?" Jada said softly. "As long as it's something that used to be saved on a computer, there will always be a trace. Unless, it wasn't electronically archived when Adeena was hospitalized for surgery."

In this era, anyone and anything would be saved on a computer, or else, nothing would work.

Everything saved on the computer had been removed four years ago, but as long as the information used to be online, there was a possibility of finding it.

Kendry began to look a little dour.

"Daniel told me that he'll give me one last chance."

Ruth bit her bottom lip and spoke.

Buzz!

Kendry's phone suddenly vibrated.

He glanced at it and saw an incoming call from his secretary. "Mr. Willis, something bad has happened. Four important clients have suddenly requested to terminate their contracts..."

"What's going on?" "The CEOs said Winters Corporation is paying them a lot of money to collaborate..." Kendry's expression instantly darkened.

Winters Corporation was not covering up its actions at all.

It was clearly showing the Willis family its strength.

Right after Kendry hung up, Clarence called again. "Kendry, the secretary in Winters Corporation called me just now. He says if you still don't confess, they'll make sure Willis Corporation dies today. What kind of cr*p did you do?"

Kendry's expression darkened even further.

It seemed that in just a few minutes, Willis Corporation had been pushed toward a cliff.

Meanwhile, he was standing on the edge. He was close to falling, and he might die horribly.

One could say that he had been waiting for this day to come after that surgery four years ago.

The day was finally here. Aside from feeling anxious, he actually felt a little relieved. It was as if the trial for his fate had finally arrived.