

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 1064-1068

Chapter 1064

"I don't know anything," Ms. Lawson said as she trembled.

Duke did not care whether she was a woman or a man. He just reached out to break her wrist.

The baby had been handled by this nurse's hands at that time, so she needed to suffer the consequences.

Ms. Lawson screamed in pain. "Does law still exist? I'm going to call the police!"

Adina let go of her with contempt. "Okay, let's call the police. Let the police investigate your illegal operation from three years ago."

The surgery had been an underground operation. Those who participated were paid off to shut their mouths.

If there was an investigation, it would be impossible to not find any evidence.

The nurse held her broken wrist and dared not breathe heavily.

She was sure that if she insisted on not telling the truth, the man would also break her legs.

"The baby was dead when she was handed over to me." Ms. Lawson closed her eyes. "But while I was taking care of her, she suddenly started to cry and breathe again."

Adina's eyes shone brightly.

She was so worked up that her hands trembled, but she dared not interrupt Ms. Lawson from making her statement.

"When the baby came back alive, I tried to return her to the Willis family, but they were too busy. I waited in front of the hospital for one day, but I couldn't meet them. In the end, I met a couple who needed a baby girl, so they paid me $5,000 and bought the baby..."

"What did you say?" Adina growled.

Her emotions had gone through many ups and downs. At this point, her expression was extremely cold and ruthless.

Duke gently patted her on the shoulder before he sternly asked, "Do you still remember how the couple looked?"

Ms. Lawson tried her best to recall. "I remember that the man was tall and big. There was a big birthmark on his chin. They paid me $5,000 in cash before they left with the baby."

Adina had an extreme headache.

Five thousand dollars!

Her daughter was worth $5,000!

It felt like her heart had exploded! That was how painful it was.

4

"Dan, take Addy out for a breath of fresh air," Duke said coldly.

When Daniel saw how pale Adina looked, he immediately held her shoulder. "Duke will handle everything. Let's go out for a walk."

Adina really could not bear to stay there any longer.

She massaged her forehead while she followed Daniel to the backyard of the hospital.

"Addy, the baby is still alive. This is the best news. Nothing's better than that," Daniel comforted her. "I heard from Duke that your blood type is rather rare, so it shouldn't be difficult to find a child with such a rare blood type."

Something crossed Adina's mind, but she did not quite catch it.

"I'll contact the DNA center, so don't worry anymore, Addy." Daniel changed the subject. "Oh, Addy, do you know what Dad's been doing all these years? He's traveled around the world to search for you. He's currently in Ascrialia, so he can't come back to meet you. "even if he wants to because he can't get a flight ticket. I guess he'll only be back the day after tomorrow."

Dillon's face appeared in Adina's mind.

After they reunited four years ago, they were separated for another four years before they could get along well enough.

She really wanted to meet her old man.

The siblings talked about their lives over the past four years. A while later, Duke came downstairs.

He pursed his lips and said, "I produced a rendering of the couple according to Ms. Lawson's description. After I keyed in the big data, I found that the man was a human trafficker. He was arrested three years ago, and all the kids he kidnapped were sent to an orphanage in Cloud City..."

Boom!

Adina's mind was instantly blown.

She finally realized what had just crossed her mind.

Adina grabbed Duke's hand. "Hurry over to Grapie and do a paternity test!"

She slowly uttered those words with hope, anxiety, and fear.

Duke was stunned too.

Grapie was the little girl he had met once. Her eyes were similar to Melody's when she was little, and she also looked like Addy.

Was she really their daughter?

Chapter 1065

"Daniel, bring your sister for a cup of coffee. I'll go and do it now!"

Duke hurried to the hospital.

Adina's limbs were cold, and Daniel helped her to a nearby cafe. She finally felt more comfortable after she took a sip of coffee.

She dared not dwell on it too much and just waited in the cafe quietly.

Daniel accompanied her in silence.

Time flew.

A month later, Grapie was discharged.

It was lively outside the hospital.

"Georgie, Hal, Al, Mel!"

Grapie tilted her head and smiled sweetly as she greeted every one of them.

She was only three years old, which was the age when girls were the most adorable and innocent. Her eyes were as vibrant and attractive as grapes.

((

Her four elder brothers and sister surrounded her. Grapie, we prepared a huge room for you. We also bought you a ton of Barbie Dolls and toys. We'll play with you every day!"

Grapie could not help but clap. "Really? I'm so happy!"

At the side, Adeline silently wiped her tears. "This is great! Grapie is with her biological parents now. It's truly wonderful! I'm really happy for her!"

Adina gently patted her shoulder. "Medical treatment in Sea City is advanced. Adeline, if you need any treatment in the future, you can come to me in Sea City. We've added each other on WhatsApp, so you can contact me anytime."

She had taken Adeline's favorite Grapie, so she hoped that Adeline could be pregnant with her own child too.

Adeline leaned against Candon's arms while she looked at the little girl reluctantly.

Grapie turned back and smiled brightly at Adeline. "Mom, I'll come back and visit you and Dad!"

She still called them Mom and Dad.

She looked at Adina again. "Mommy, it's okay for me to visit my mom and dad, right?"

Adina tussled her hair. "Of course. Whenever you don't have school, I'll drive you over."

Even though they were reluctant to part, they still had to bid goodbye.

Duke carried Grapie who had just been discharged, while the four other children surrounded them. As Adina held her kids' hands, Mr. Brown opened the car door respectfully, and the family of seven entered the car.

The car slowly disappeared from the street.

A cool breeze traveled in from the car window and blew through Adina's hair.

She was taking in the wind and crowded streets.

She saw clouds in the sky, birds flying in the air, and passersby on the roadside.

She had muddled through the past few years, living aimlessly in the same way every day.

At this time, she finally found meaning in her life.

It was the man next to her.

It was the five children by her side.

What had she done to deserve such a perfect lover?

What had she done to have five perfect kids?

Real happiness was not sudden excitement, occasional surprises, or pain and sadness. It was like the air, the sunshine, and the rain, which were silently around her.

Her life was long and bright. Being an ordinary person in the crowd was enough for her.

“Mommy, what are you thinking about?”

“I’m thinking about what I should cook for you when we get back!” she answered softly before she and the man beside her looked into each other’s eyes with a smile.

When love was reciprocated, that was where she found a home.

Her life was serene and good.

It was complete.

Chapter 1066

Fifteen years later, in a crowded airport...

A pretty and adorable girl moved across the crowd, and after she entered a quiet washroom, she turned on her phone. It had been vibrating for a long time, and she finally answered the call.

“Good afternoon, Georgie.” The girl’s voice was cute and soft. She even sounded as if she was acting cute. “My class just ended. What is it?”

A cold, deep, and husky voice came from the other end of the line. “Tell me your schedule.”

“About my schedule...” The girl took a peek at the pedestrian flow outside before she covered her phone more tightly and answered, “Today is still filled with classes. I just finished attending a course in economics, and I still have to prepare for defense later. I’m also going to a new Italian restaurant next to my dorm tonight. It’s a wonderful day for your dear sister!”

“Okay, good girl,” the voice finally responded from the other end as if the result of his trial had been determined.

The girl sighed in relief and patted her chest. Suddenly, the man called out to her again.

“Grapie.”

“Huh?” The girl was stunned for a second before she softly asked, “What’s wrong, Georgie?”

“Don’t eat anything spicy. It’ll cause pimples.”

The girl was speechless. What an outrageous and tactless man?! No wonder he failed to win back his first love!

On the other side, George still had no idea that his own sister was secretly ridiculing him. After he briefly gave her some instructions, he finally hung up.

Right then, the girl who was holding her phone, Ninian Winters, was so excited that she almost screamed.

She had finally sneaked back to the country!

She had escaped from George! At last, she could happily enter the entertainment industry and look for her idol whom she had been longing for!

Fifteen years ago, she was brought back to the Winters family after she was separated from her family for three years. Since then, her parents, Uncle Daniel, three elder brothers, and one sister had pampered her a lot

Sometimes, being pampered was another burden for her. Everyone was afraid that she would get hurt or that anything would happen to her, so they were very strict with her. She finished all her college courses a long time ago, but George still restricted her in school abroad and did not allow her to wander around.

It was the first time that Ninian had successfully broken out of his control!

Naturally, it was also thanks to Harold’s help.

Harold was the one who pampered her the most in the family! George, Alden, and Melody were considered mature and calm. Only Harold was the same as Ninian, who could mess up everything in the house.

Their daddy thought that they were too annoying, so he handed the properties of the Winters family to her brothers and sister to manage, while he traveled with their mommy all the time.

Ninian initially thought that she would be free once Mommy was not at home. Unexpectedly, the demons, Georgie and Alden, controlled her very strictly.

The poor thing planned for so long and finally got the chance to break out of her prison.

Just as Ninian left the restroom and was about to call Harold to report her situation, she heard some unexpected exclamations from the crowd.

“Ah! It’s Everett Craig!”

“Everett’s so handsome!”

Ninian was stunned. When she raised her head and looked over, she immediately saw Everett who was surrounded by fans not far away.

As the top celebrity in the entertainment industry, Everett was incredibly popular.

This should be part of his private schedule because even a die-hard fan like Ninian, who had been following him for a long time, did not know that he would be there. However, many excited fans were around the airport.

The staff in Everett’s team surrounded him, separating him from the fans at the side.

Ninian felt a little worried. She knew that Everett had severe mysophobia and hated touching strangers the most.

The group who had followed him was insane. They kept pushing toward him and were clearly stepping over the boundary.

A fan nearly fell on Everett, but his assistant managed to help her up at this critical moment. At that moment, Ninian frowned.

Her exquisite face darkened, and the joy in her eyes was replaced with anger.

Chapter 1067

She put her phone in her bag, rolled up her sleeves, and rushed forward.

“Get lost, all of you! Don’t push and hurt my Everett!”

She was a real fan!

She was powerful!

F*ck those insane fans! They could go to hell!

Ninian’s growling and imposing manner successfully suppressed the fans on the spot.

While everyone looked dumbfounded, she squeezed into the center and grabbed the loudspeaker from the staff.

“All of Everett’s fans, listen!

“Do not squeeze in. Move to the side and leave a path in the middle!

“Do not disturb Everett! Do not obstruct other travelers from going through!

“Do you hear me?”

The airport became quiet. A while later, the fans started moving. They obediently moved to the sides and left a path in the middle.

The assistant had initially felt troubled, but he was totally stunned when he saw this.

“Oh, God, what kind of angelic fan is this?”

Everett had been ignoring everything around him, but he finally raised his head this time. He set his sights on the exquisite, youthful girl, whose hair was in a bun. Something secretly flashed in his black eyes.

However, after a glance, he looked down and separated himself from his surroundings again.

While Ninian was maintaining order, she vaguely sensed a gaze that was hard to ignore.

When she raised her head and looked over, though, she saw Everett’s team protecting him and helping him to quickly move through the path.

The young teen had his head lowered the entire time, and he did not even glance at her.

Nevertheless, the assistant beside him politely nodded to express his gratitude.

Ninian quickly responded with a smile. Her skin was fair and rosy, while her eyes were black and bright just like a dark starry night. They crinkled in amusement.

The assistant was dazed by Ninian’s smile. He was nearly stupefied, and he even lost his footing slightly. When he snapped out of it, he anxiously looked back and continued moving forward with red ears.

The assistant continued to feel his heart pound until they walked out of the airport and got into a special RV.

He had seen many beautiful girls in entertainment, but none of them looked like that girl just now. She was wonderful and pretty like a piece of gem, yet she was cunning and adorable like a kitten. She was bright, dazzling, and impressively stunning.

“Is she pretty?”

The assistant heard a cold tone and subconsciously nodded.

“Yes, she’s really pretty!” The assistant sighed emotionally but was instantly taken aback.

The voice belonged to...

When he raised his head, he noticed Everett’s profound. and cold gaze.

“Get out,” the teenager softly said. His tone was calm yet terrifying. “Get out of my sight.’

}}

The assistant was slightly stunned before his complexion instantly turned pale.

He wanted to say something, but the bodyguards beside the teenager had already moved forward. They covered his mouth and dragged him down.

When Zayn Barnes, the agent, saw this, he did not say a word. He was used to the teenager’s character.

But...

When Zayn looked at the teenager’s indifferent and eccentric side profile, his eyes were filled with worry. Everett’s disease had seemingly become more severe.

Chapter 1068

By the time Ninian found the address that her best friend, Nerola Barlow, had sent her, the sky was already dark.

If she had not been afraid of giving out her details for registration and risking the demons at home finding out, she would have checked into a hotel.

Searching for a place was painful for someone with a poor sense of direction.

Luckily, when she arrived outside Nerola’s neighborhood, Nerola was already waiting there.

When Ninian saw the familiar figure, she rushed forward without even pushing her luggage. “Nerola!”

“Ninian! You’re finally here!”

Nerola rushed over too. They gave each other a big hug. They were girls of a similar age, and they held each other excitedly without letting go.

“Why are you so late? I’ve been waiting for you for ages!” Nerola complained in a joking manner.

"It's Harold's fault. He's so unreliable. He said he would pick me up from the airport, but he stood me up at the last minute. I took a cab over, but I went to the wrong address. These obstacles made things difficult."

"Aww, you poor thing! Let's go upstairs." The two of them pushed her luggage and happily went back.

After Ninian unpacked, Nerola sent her a contact number. "This is my agent, Amber Ward's WhatsApp. She watched the commercial that you filmed three years ago and liked it a lot. When she heard that you were ready to come back and start your career in the entertainment industry, she asked me to keep you and not let any other agent take you."

"Hey, let me make this clear first." Ninian raised her eyebrows and said, "I'm entering the entertainment industry not because I want a good career. I just want to look for "

"Look for your idol whom you've been longing for. I know." Nerola snorted and handed her a document. " Take a look. It's a present from Amber. You might be able to act alongside Everett."

When she said that, Ninian's eyes instantly lit up.

Acting with Everett!

It was something that countless actresses dreamed about!

Three years ago, after the eighteen-year-old Everett debuted on a talent show and instantly became popular, he immediately entered the filming industry. He collaborated with a famous director to film a literary film.

At that time, the Internet criticized Everett. They said that he was indifferent, eccentric, and arrogant. Plus, he had violent tendencies and a personality disorder. Anyway, all kinds of criticisms were thrown at him.

An idol, who became popular because of his appearance, had managed to collaborate with a famous director for his first film. He took many people's opportunities and made countless people jealous.

Therefore, the Internet looked down on Everett constantly and claimed that the director's reputation would be ruined because of him.

Unexpectedly, after seven months of shooting and five months of post-production, which was just under a year, the literary film that had been criticized became popular right after its release. It had the best box-office sales and the highest ratings. It even defeated many opponents at the Oscars and won a few big awards.

Everett won the Best Newcomer Award too.

Back then, some netizens still defamed him for being successful only because of the director. However, Everett chose to collaborate with small, unpopular casting crews in his subsequent films.

In just three years, he was nominated for awards in every film, and he became the youngest best actor in the history of the Oscars.

Therefore, Everett became the most sought-after actor in the entertainment industry.

All the famous directors wanted to work with him.

Famous scriptwriters would write characters for him, and even famous or unknown actors wanted to act alongside him to boost their fame.

Therefore, Amber's offer was really attractive.

The bright-eyed Ninian blinked, and there was a glint in her black eyes.

Meanwhile, Nerola was still convincing her.

"Ninian, I know that you want to join the same company as Everett, but his team is nearly independent of the company. Even if you join the company, you won't have the opportunity to see him.

"Besides, there are countless celebrities who've joined Everett's company. In terms of appearance, you're one of the best, but in terms of experience, you can't even be ranked. I guess it'll be really difficult for you to get a chance to act with Everett."