

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 751

Chapter 751 Adina and Queen Mavice sat opposite each other in a coffee shop. The children laughed and played at the next table.

"I envy you," Queen Mavice sighed. "Having quadruplets means that the most important thing in life is achieved."

Queen Mavice only had one daughter. Her daughter did not have the qualities of a queen, so she lost the opportunity to compete for the throne. If Queen Mavice could have another child, she would not need to worry about losing her power.

"The princess is only seventeen years old. She is still a minor, so her future is full of possibilities." Adina smiled. "Your Majesty, as long as you're willing to give her a chance to prove herself, I believe that the princess will grow up and become an honorable queen."

"There is no point even if I give her a chance," said Queen Mavice sadly. "The cabinet has already proposed. If she can't set an example as a princess before she is eighteen, she will be disqualified from competing for the throne."

Adina pursed her lips. She was thinking about what to say to make the queen feel better. The queen waited patiently. She paused for a moment. "The Cairnstanian media also reported on the infighting regarding the royal family.

Your Majesty, I think that the people in the cabinet unfairly criticize the princess because your parents and husband have passed away. The princess is a teenager. She is still a child trying to figure out her place in the world. It is natural for her to sometimes stray away from the path. Her status as a princess and as a potential queen makes many people threatened so they try to bring her down every chance they get."

Queen Mavice was a little stunned. She had reigned over the country for many years, but she could only discuss her difficulties with her husband when he was alive. It had been a long time since someone had offered her moral support like this. The ordinary people in the country did not dare to do so, while the noble ladies of other countries would not deliberately talk about the queen's private life.

For the first time, she felt that someone understood her.

"The princess lacks an opportunity." Adina lowered her voice. "The Hestia Border is in turmoil. Many civilians came to Yggdra, which greatly affected the safety of the country.

If the princess can solve this problem, those in the cabinet can't pick on her anymore." Queen Mavice chuckled in resignation .

“Even I can’t do anything about that situation, let alone the princess.”

Adina looked around.

There were no customers in the coffee shop except them.

The waiter was at the entrance taking a nap. and the waiter was sitting at the entrance while taking a nap.

Adina took out a document from her bag. “This is the internal information of the Black Party. Your Majesty, please take a look. I’m sure you’ll understand what I mean.”

Queen Mavice turned serious and opened the document.

After reading just one page, she closed the document.

The queen’s sharp eyes turned to Adina.

“Are you a member of the Black Party?”

“I’m not,” Adina said in a low voice.

“I admit that I planned the meeting with you today, but I had to do this to make the meeting a success. Your Majesty, if the Black Party surrenders to Yggdra during your reign, your country will expand by at least one-third. Then, you’ll become the queen with the most outstanding achievement in the last three hundred years. Nobody would dare impeach the princess then.”

Queen Mavice was astonished. If this was only for her, she would have dismissed it.

But this was for her daughter Conquering the notorious Black Party and expanding the territory of the country by one-third... If her daughter got the credit for even contributing to it, she would be the first choice for the next queen.

Queen Mavice glanced at the document again.

After a long time, she said, “How can I trust you?” Adina took a seal out of her bag.

“The Black Party had businesses with Yggdra in the past, and this seal was used as a signature.

The leader of the Black Party gave me this seal, which represents his sincerity.” “But why would the Black Party’s leader willingly give me his territory?” Queen Mavice asked.

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 752

Chapter 752 “Because he is just an ordinary person who wants to live a peaceful life,” Adina slowly said. “He can be completely free only when the Black Party disappears.” Queen Mavice pulled the brim of her hat low. “Okay, I’ll trust you for the time being. When should we start?” “The action plan still needs to be discussed in person. In a few days, Terry will secretly come to meet you. You’ll know when he does.”

Queen Mavice tore the document into pieces and poured coffee over it to blur the writings on it before throwing the pieces into the trash can.

Queen Mavice nodded and left.

“Mommy, did you succeed?” Harold asked.

Adina patted his head. “I think we did. You all did very well today, especially Mel. You played the piano splendidly! I got to invite the queen for coffee because of you. Tell me what you want to have for dinner. My treat!” Melody blinked. She thought for a while and said, “I want roast pork.” Adina smiled. “The roast pork here is not authentic. Let’s go to the supermarket and buy some pork. I’ll make roast pork for you.”

Harold licked his lips. “Wow, I haven’t eaten roast pork for a long time can’t wait!” “It’s getting late. Let’s go grocery shopping first.” Adina led the children out of the coffee shop.

When she led the children to the car and walked to the driver’s seat, she noticed a familiar figure at the side of the road. She narrowed her eyes and quickly got into the car. She looked through the car window. Her face darkened. ‘Why is Jasmine in Yggdra?’ “Mommy, what’s wrong?” Alden leaned forward and asked. Adina came back to her senses. She smiled. “Nothing. Let’s go grocery shopping first.” She glanced at Jasmine, who was standing on the side of the road, before driving to the supermarket. When the children shopped for snacks in the supermarket, she called Flint. “Hello, Addy. How’s the situation?” Adina lowered her voice. “I saw Jasmine on the streets of Yggdra. Is she here to find you?” “I don’t think so. We haven’t been in contact for a long time. She should be here on a business trip. Wait a minute, I have another call incoming.” Flint glanced at the caller ID and immediately shouted, “It’s Jasmine! She called me! Addy, stay outside with the children and wait for my update.” Flint hung up. After waiting for a few seconds, he answered Jasmine’s call. “You’re in Yggdra, right?” Jasmine asked. “I’m here too. Can we meet?” Flint said coldly, “Your arrival at Yggdra has nothing to do with me. Why should I meet you? I am hanging up.”

Madam Winters’s Fight For Her Children Chapter 753

Chapter 753 “Flint Morton, I know where you live!” Jasmine was adamant. She held her phone tightly to her ears and emphasized every word. “I’ll be at your house soon. Wait for me.” Flint was enraged. He took a deep breath to calm himself. “How do you know where I live?" "I've been following your whereabouts, and I also know that you have a woman and four children by your side." Jasmine's voice became icy. "Adina is with you, right?" Flint held his forehead. "You sent someone to follow me?"

"That's not it. Based on your bank card spending information, I found that you are in Yggdra. After asking a few people, I found out who was around you." Jasmine chuckled. "Duke was looking for Adina in the country, but his newlywed wife eloped abroad with you. If Duke knows Adina is living in your house, will Morton Corporation be safe from a crisis?" Before Flint could answer, she happily said, "I've reached your house. Open the door."

Flint looked up and saw a taxi parked outside the mansion. Jasmine was standing at the door, all dressed up.

He was angry. He turned around. "Karl, Pete, hide all the toys in the living room." The two knew it was a serious matter and quickly did as they were told. They collected the toys and placed them into a box. Then, they hid the box behind the balcony curtain.

After they cleaned up the house, Flint walked out to the door of the mansion.

"What took you so long to open the door?" Jasmine said, displeased. "I went to so much trouble to come find you. You can't treat me like this."

Flint's eyes turned cold. He had dated Jasmine for a while. He was her first love. When they broke up, she had stalked and followed him. So, he had asked Adina to pretend to be his girlfriend, hoping that Jasmine would leave him alone.

He did not want to bruise her ego, but she still shamelessly hounded him. Sheeven threatened him with Duke. Flint held the iron door but did not open it to invite her in.

He sneered. "Seriously? Don't tell me you came all this way just to spend the night with me." Jasmine blushed. She pursed her lips. "I'm not that promiscuous." He let out a bitter laugh. "Really? I have told you time and again we are done. But here you are! You sent someone to follow and stalk me and shamelessly appear at my door. Isn't that promiscuous?" Flint's tone was full of disgust. "What are you doing here then?" "I just wanted to see you," Jasmine muttered, "Why can't you see me?" Flint looked up. "I've seen you now. You can leave." Jasmine turned pale in rage. She held the iron door open as he tried to close it. "Adina is a married woman and has children. I don't understand why you like her. I love you so much. Why can't you be together with me? Flint, I'll always love you and treat you well. Give me a chance..." Flint was tired of those words. If she kept following him and pestering him, it would make his life hell. He clapped his hands and was about to instruct the bodyguards to drive Jasmine away when Karl stepped out of the house. "Wow, where does this Asian beauty come from? She's really pretty." Karl pressed the switch and opened the iron door of the mansion.

He looked at Jasmine with lustful eyes. "Darling, it's fine if Flint doesn't like you. I like you. Why don't you date me? I'll always love you and treat you well. Give me a chance." "Go away!" Jasmine said angrily, "Who do you think you are?!"

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 754

Chapter 754 Karl sneered. "Who do you think YOU are? Why are you putting Flint in an uncomfortable situation? You try to coerce him to date you but when I do the same, it's repulsive to you? The way you feel disgusted when a random man says he loves you is the same way you disgust Flint. Get out!"

Bang!

Karl shut the iron door.

Jasmine was furious. She kicked on the door, but it only hurt her toes.

She pointed at Flint. "How could you do this to me for Adina? I'll make you pay for it! You will suffer the consequences of being with Adina!"

Flint stared at her. "Whatever. I'll wait for it."

He then turned and walked into the mansion without a second glance.

Karl said worriedly, "The Duke in Cairnstan is quite capable. If he comes here, it will be troublesome."

"The real Duke is now the leader of the Black Party. The Black Party did all kinds of evil deeds, so how can they be afraid of Earl?" Flint became serious. "Duke hasn't recovered his memory, so the two brothers might not fight." Flint called Adina.

Jasmine, who was outside the mansion, was boiling with anger. She did not understand why he rejected her like this when she had come all the way for him.

She could do anything for him. Anything! 'How could he be so cruel to me? Is he not even worried that she is in a foreign country all alone?' Jasmine wept. She wiped her tears and gritted her teeth. "Well, you're the ruthless one, so don't blame me for being unrighteous." She took her phone out and made a call. In the office of a country less than three hours' drive from Yggdra, Earl stood in front of a French window, smoking a cigarette. Several people in black stood at the back, reporting to him. "Boss, there's no trace of Mdm. Winters." "Boss, Mdm. Winters may not be in this area. We should look in other countries." "Boss, Winters Corporation has an annual high-level meeting this afternoon, and you must be there in person. Should I book a flight back to Cairnstan?" Earl slowly turned around. "Cancel the meeting." He did not want to care about Winters Corporation before finding the woman. He did not believe that a person could disappear without a trace, let alone five of them. Right then, his phone buzzed. It was an unfamiliar number from Cairnstan. He thought it was a call from a client, so he declined it. He received a message from the same number. (Mr. Winters, I know the whereabouts of Adina.) Earl narrowed his eyes and called back. "Who are you?" he asked sternly. "You don't need to know who I am. Aren't you looking for Adina? She is hiding in Yggdra with her four children. You can send someone to confirm if you don't believe me."

Madam Winters's Fight For Her Children Chapter 755

Chapter 755 When Adina and the children were finished with the grocery shopping, they returned to the mansion.

The children sat in the living room watching cartoons, while Adina went to the kitchen to prepare dinner. Flint followed her.

"I drove Jasmine away," he said while peeling the beans. "I'm sorry, Addy. I didn't pay attention to my spending, so Jasmine used it to find my location. Fortunately, she didn't meet you." "It doesn't matter even if she meets me." Adina pursed her lips. "I avoided her because I didn't want to cause trouble. However, I won't be so generous if trouble comes to me. Jasmine is not stupid. She is likely to contact Earl. I tricked Earl, so he will probably come to find me in person." Flint sneered. "If he dares to come here, you and Duke can catch him and deal with him." Adina lowered her head and prepared the ingredients. Duke had lost his memories. It was unlikely that he would kill someone who looked exactly like him without knowing everything. Even if Duke recovered his memory, he might not really be able to kill his own brother.

It was not easy to deal with Earl. She had to tread carefully.

Seeing that she was in a complicated mood, Flint changed the subject. "How did it go with the queen?"

Adina smiled. "It went well. Queen Mavice has a daughter, and children are a woman's weakness. She can easily be persuaded. I'll go to Duke tonight or tomorrow morning to tell him about it." Flint shook his head in disapproval. "The Hestia Border is getting more chaotic. The subordinates of Elder Maurice have been lurking around, and you and Isabelle have bad blood from the past. I'm afraid that Isabelle will capture you before you meet Duke. Just... give him a call." "I can't tell him about such confidential matters via the phone. What if someone monitors the conversation?" Adina looked grave. No matter how dangerous the Hestia Border was, she had to go.

"Mommy, I can block the monitor," Alden stood at the kitchen door. "Give me five minutes." He turned around, walked to the living room, took out his notebook, and typed on the keyboard, with George sitting at his side to assist him.

In less than five minutes, Alden looked up with a smile on his face. "Mommy, you can call Daddy now. I promise that no one other than George and I will know the content of the call." "I want to listen too!" Harold leaned over. "Daddy and Mommy must be cheesy when they call." He laughed.

Melody tilted her head and tried to hide her smile. "Will Daddy say, 'I love you'?" Adina was speechless. She would, obviously, talk about serious matters.

How could she be cheesy in such a situation? She dried her hands on her apron and walked to the balcony to make the call. The call was answered on the first ring. "Addy?" "It's me." Adina went straight to the point. "The phone monitoring equipment has been blocked, so we can talk freely. I met the queen today, and she agreed to cooperate. You can arrange for someone to meet the queen tomorrow." "Let's wait for three days," Duke said slowly. "I'll send someone to monitor Queen Mavice for three days. If she doesn't meet other forces, it means she is trustworthy." Adina nodded. "Be careful. I still need to cook, so I'll hang up?" "Addy..." the man stopped her. His voice was husky and soft. "Apart from these, don't you have anything else to say to me?" Adina's heart pounded when she heard his low voice. She said, nonchalantly, "What else should I say?" "Hm... did you... miss me?". The husky voice came from the other end of the phone like an electric current, and it hit Adina's heart. Adina's ears turned red. She whispered, "No." "But I missed you." As soon as Duke said that, the living room burst into an uproar.