

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 111 –

Chapter 111 Guilty And Unbearable Rosalie figured it out, cleared her mind, and drove home. The two little ones had already eaten, and Mary was watching the science channel with them. Seeing her enter the door, the three stood up and greeted her.

The two little boys sensed that Mommy's mood did not seem right. They hugged Rosalie around her legs, one on each side, and looked at her with concern. "Mommy, is something wrong? You look exhausted."

Rosalie felt the warmth from their concern, forced a smile, and ruffled their heads. "It's nothing. Work is just a little troublesome to deal with."

The two boys knew that Mommy's work was difficult, so they did not suspect a thing and comforted her, "Mommy, you're so powerful. Things can definitely be solved!"

Rosalie smiled and nodded. Glancing at the time, she urged them to go to bed. The boys obediently went upstairs to rest.

Only Rosalie and Mary were left in the living room.

Mary undeniably saw the uneasiness in her best friend and asked suspiciously, "What's going on? Don't fool me. You were lying just now. I could see it."

Rosalie hesitated for a few seconds but told the truth about the events that unfolded today.

Hearing that Byron was still targeting the two little ones, Mary was furious. "Is he even a man? What kind of weakling picks on children?! The audacity to bully my godsons! No, I have to go kick his *ss now!"

She was ready to head out as soon as she finished speaking. Rosalie hurriedly stopped her, led her to the sofa, and smiled helplessly. "No, I've already met him about this. I've thought about it for a while, and I've figured it out. I'm taking this opportunity to sever ties and distance my children from him. Now, I don't have to worry about him taking them away from me." Mary still felt uneasy. "How are you going to explain this to Lucian and Nox?"

This question gave Rosalie a headache too. She hesitated and replied, "I'll think of a suitable explanation." The two of them discussed this matter. After chatting for a while, it was getting late, so Mary bade goodbye and went home. The following day, the two little boys got up early, had breakfast, and waited for Mommy to send them to kindergarten.

Rosalie stayed up all night to figure out an explanation. Her heart hurt watching the two boys waiting obediently to go to school. Nevertheless, she still explained the only reason that she could come up with overnight. "I've thought about it for a while. I feel that your abilities are going to waste if you just attend kindergarten. How about you both go for enrichment classes in the future, okay?" The two little ones did not react at once. Rosalie smiled casually. "Nox, you love calculus, don't you? I'll sign you up for a calculus enrichment class. How about that? Lucian, do you want to study finance? Or do you two want to learn something else?"

The two little guys reacted after they realized where this was headed. They looked at Mommy, puzzled. "Mommy, why aren't we going to kindergarten all of a sudden? We didn't say goodbye to our little sister. If she doesn't see us in kindergarten, she'll cry again."

Rosalie thought of what had happened the last time, and there was another burst of irony in her heart.

Previously, Byron personally brought Estie over and spent a night with the two little boys. The atmosphere seemed to be harmonious.

Back then, she was still worried about Byron finding out the truth.

She did not expect such a thing to happen in just a few days.

Thinking of this, Rosalie put away her thoughts and said to the two little guys, "I'll help you inform your little sister. Prepare yourself. I'll handle your withdrawal from school later." The boys were still puzzled, but since Mommy seemed to have made a decision, they could only agree. When Rosalie left the room, the two little ones ran to knock on their neighbor's door. When Mary opened the door, she saw the two of them standing at the door. Immediately, she thought of Rosalie's words last night. She felt guilty, and it was unbearable.

In the face of the pressure from the two little ones, she did not hold on for long and came clean about the whole situation.

Hearing that Daddy had asked the kindergarten to expel them, the light in the eyes of the two boys dimmed suddenly. Their faces were full of loss.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 112 –

Chapter 112 I Won't Pester You After learning the truth, the two boys said goodbye to Mary and went back to their own home.

Mary was disappointed with herself for giving up the truth so easily. Seeing the heartbroken little boys, she hurriedly took a day off work and went to accompany them.

Lucian and Nox were filled with disappointment.

After getting along for some time, they thought that Daddy would not hate them so much.

However, Daddy still asked the kindergarten to expel them.

Maybe they were wrong and Daddy still hated them.

The disappointment was too overwhelming. Nox could not help as his eyes reddened. His little hands grabbed the sofa cover, and his mouth was pursed.

Lucian's heart was just as sad, but he was calmer than his younger brother.

Seeing that Nox was close to tears, he gently cupped his brother's face. "Don't be sad about that man. He doesn't like us, and we don't have to like him either. Besides, Mommy doesn't seem to want us to know about this. We'll just pretend we don't know to not worry her."

Nox sniffed and nodded quietly. Rosalie completed the withdrawal procedures for the two little guys and just came out of kindergarten. At the same time, Byron came to send Estie to school. They both met. Estie pouted, looking very unhappy while being led the way by the man. The little girl's eyes lit up as soon as she saw Rosalie, her gaze looked as if she was expecting something Rosalie's heart softened at the sight of Estie, but when she saw the man beside her, it immediately sank again. The two quickly walked toward her. Estie held Rosalie's skirt and looked up at her pitifully, eagerly waiting for her to say something

Rosalie was silent for a while, then she released her skirt from the little girl's hand. She took two steps back to create a distance between them. "Lucian and Nox will not be here in the future, so you must... take care of yourself and try to get along with other children."

The light in the little girl's eyes slowly disappeared from what she said. Rosalie could not bear but look away. She forced herself and said calmly, "I have to work I need to go now."

She finished speaking and was about to walk past them. As she walked past the man, his big hands grabbed her wrist. Rosalie stopped abruptly and turned back to meet the man's gaze with a blank face. "Is there anything else, President Lawrence?"

Byron furrowed his brows. "You've greatly misunderstood. I never intended to expel those two children."

Hearing this, Rosalie said sarcastically, "If you still wish to defend yourself, I don't mind listening to what you have to say. Whose fault is it this time?"

Byron did not mind her tone and replied earnestly, "I got Luther to investigate this matter. It turns out that Wendy made the decision without authorization. Due to my previous order, the principal mistakenly thought I acquiesced..."

Speaking of this, Byron felt embarrassed.

After learning about this last night, he was even more regretful about his thoughts. If it were * not for what he said before, the principal would not have misunderstood.

He wanted to right the situation, so he came over this morning to the school. He did not expect to meet this woman here. Rosalie's expression became even more sarcastic after hearing his explanation. "So, this was Wendy Fuller's idea? Isn't that your idea too? Is there anyone in Coast City who doesn't know about the marriage union between the Fuller and Lawrence families? Now, you want to disassociate from her. Aren't you afraid that your future wife will be sad when she finds out?"

Rosalie pulled back her hand fiercely and said coldly, "Don't worry, President Lawrence. I'm not shameless, and I won't pester you. You don't have to explain anything." After speaking, she left without looking back.

Byron's face sank as he watched her leave.

Estie was stunned for a few seconds as tears poured out of her eyes uncontrollably. She hurriedly shook off Daddy's hand and ran behind Rosalie's car. She had a feeling that after the beautiful lady left this time, she might never see her again. Thinking of this, Estie was very uneasy, and her eyes were full of panic. In her panic and unstable steps, Estie stepped on a loose stone and fell to the ground.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 113 –

Chapter 113 Meltdown Byron was caught in surprise as he watched his daughter run after Rosalie's car. This little one had only met Rosalie a few times, but she was so attached to her...

Just as Byron was lost in thoughts, the little girl suddenly fell. He came back to his senses sharply and quickly. Stepping forward, he took Estie into his arms. "Where did you hurt yourself? Let me have a look."

Little Estie hugged his neck tightly and did not want to let go.

While Byron was caught up in the moment, the little girl's cries were loud and clear in his ears.

For a split second, he could not believe his ears.

Although she was crying, it was also the first time Estelle made a sound in her whole life.

Estie's tiny body shook as she cried hard. She dug her nails into her daddy's neck, causing a tingling pain. Byron quietly endured it and kept trying to comfort the little girl despite battling the complicated emotions within himself.

"Aunt... I want Aunt..."

Suddenly, Estie said a few words intermittently. Byron stopped dead in his tracks.

He never expected Estie's first words to be this.

That woman was so important to her.

It was a very unpleasant feeling in his heart, and he could only tell the little girl the cruel truth, "Aunt is gone. Don't cry. I'm here for you." Little Estie still chose to cry with all the strength in her body, twitching with every snuffle. She exhausted herself completely.

Byron was helpless, so he could only ask for a day off from school for her and send the little girl home. On the way home, the little girl slowly stopped crying. She just sat quietly in the back, sobbing from time to time.

F

When she got home, she paid no one any attention and went back to her room. She slammed the door.

Byron only thought that Estie was just throwing a tantrum with him again. After all, this had often happened before. Moreover, the company needed him today.

After hesitating for a while, Byron told Mrs. Nora to pay attention to Estie's situation and drove to the company.

In the afternoon, just after he was done with work, Mrs. Nora called. "Master, please hurry home! Something is wrong with Little Lady!" Her tone was full of sheer panic.

Byron's heart dropped to his gut. He put down his work and sped all the way home.

"After you left, I tried to comfort Little Lady, but no matter what I said to her, she didn't respond at all..." Mrs. Zora's voice trembled with anxiety.

Byron's footsteps were hurried and fast. He walked into Estie's room, only to see the little girl curled up in the corner with empty eyes. There was no response when she saw them coming in.

"Estie, I know you're angry. I promise that you can still meet Aunt again, okay?"

Usually, if Rosalie was mentioned, Little Estie would at least have some reactions.

This time, however, Estie did not even move her eyes as if she was completely immersed in her own world.

Seeing this, Byron's heart sank. The little girl is having a complete autism meltdown!

Realizing this, Byron immediately called his best friend, Dr. Lucas Montgomery, and asked him to come over as soon as possible.

Dr. Montgomery has made great achievements in the field of psychology. Over the years, he had been treating and managing Estie's condition.

Lucas got there in no time. Seeing Estie's situation, his heart sank. He turned around and said to the two of them, "Please give us a moment. Let me talk to her."

Byron and Mrs. Zora cooperated and exited the room.

In the room, Lucas patiently spoke to Estie, but no matter what he said, the little girl did not respond at all. Her eyes were completely empty. Her current situation was worse than her previous episodes.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 114 –

Chapter 114 Dissatisfied with Him Lucas came out of the room wearily after nearly two hours. In order to get Estie to give him a little response, he had tried every trick in the book but to no avail. “How is it?” Byron asked nervously.

Lucas shook his head. “Estie has completely closed herself off and is unwilling to communicate with others. She’s resistant to me as well. It’s probably because of a major trigger. We might be able to remedy the situation if we find the source of the trigger.”

Byron’s expression hardened. Lucas did not notice his buddy’s awkward reaction and asked him seriously, “Has Estie encountered anything that changed her mood recently?” The scene of the little girl talking because of Rosalie in the morning was deep in Byron’s mind. There was only one obvious answer to this.

Byron paused for a moment, then recalled what happened in the morning.

Hearing that the woman could actually make Little Estie’s emotions turbulent, Lucas could not help being surprised. Then, he said, “Perhaps, that woman is the root cause. If she can come over, Estie’s situation might change for the better.”

Let the woman appear in front of Estie. Byron thought of how Rosalie had left in the morning and frowned a little irritably. “I see. I’ll talk to her and try to get her to come over.”

Lucas nodded.

Rosalie knew nothing about Estie’s situation. After leaving the kindergarten, she could not calm down. Byron’s explanation stayed with her for a long time.

In retrospect, the man’s tone and expression did not seem to be fake at all.

However, reason told her that this matter must have something to do with Byron.

Even until she got home, Rosalie’s mood was foul as ever, but she was worried that the two little boys would figure it out. Hence, she tried her best to calm down.

The two little ones had calmed down a long time ago, and when they saw her entering the door, they greeted her obediently, “Mommy! Have all the procedures been settled?”

Rosalie smiled casually and nodded, even mentioning that she had met Estie. “Yup, all done. And I helped you boys explain to your little friend.” “Thank you, Mommy!” The two little boys thanked her.

Rosalie ruffled their heads, finally feeling a little more at ease. Mary's heart ached as she watched the three of them put up a front with each other from the side. She became more and more dissatisfied with Byron Lawrence.

The two little boys led Mommy by her hand and sat down on the sofa. They enthusiastically suggested, "Mommy, since we're no longer going to kindergarten and haven't registered for enrichment classes, can we rest for a while?"

Rosalie felt sorry for them. Hearing their request, she agreed without hesitation. "Okay. When you've had enough rest, I'll arrange enrichment classes for you."

"Can Mommy also take a break for a while?" Nox hugged Rosalie's arm with affection. "We've been back for so long, but we haven't gone out to play. Mommy, would you like to go out with us? Our godmother just told us that Movie World City is very special and fun. We both want to go!"

They discussed it just now. It was not only the two of them who were sad as Mommy was definitely not feeling great that Daddy made the kindergarten expel them. Hence, they thought about letting Mommy take a break

Rosalie hesitated.

Mary knew what the two little boys were thinking and nudged her best friend. "I haven't been there for a long time, and it just so happens that I have a day off today too. Why don't we go together?"

Rosalie did not feel like going to the research center. Plus, there was nothing important to do today. After hesitating for a while, she agreed. The four simply packed up and set off for Movie World City.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 115 –

Chapter 115 We'll Protect You The four soon arrived at Movie World City.

Although the boys' main goal was to let Mommy relax, they had wanted to have fun in this place for a long time. They had already strategized. As soon as they entered the gate, they dragged their mommy and clamored to go to Prehistoric Land to see the dinosaurs.

Rosalie agreed immediately and took the two little boys to Prehistoric Land, where Lucian and Nox explored with great enthusiasm.

After coming out of Prehistoric Land, they went to the Alien Cave and went to space on a bicycle with an alien.

After the two rides, Rosalie was already a little tired, but the two little boys were still in high spirits and went on more rides in the theme park.

Every time they got to a ride, they would want to take a group photo. Rosalie obliged every single park ride and photo request. After spending time hanging around with the two little boys, the weariness from the past two days was also forgotten.

After discussing with Lucas, Byron felt that the sooner he called Rosalie, the better. Hence, he picked up the phone immediately. However, the phone call was not getting through.

Byron was flabbergasted.

During this time, he almost forgot how cruel this woman was. Not only did she not listen to his explanation, but she even blocked his contact information so quickly as if to prove her determination. "How is it?" Seeing that there was something wrong with his expression, Lucas' heart sank. Estie could not wait that long, and the longer it dragged on, the more severe her symptoms would be.

Byron followed his best friend's line of sight and glanced at Estie's room. He said solemnly, "Please look after her for a while. I'll find Rosalie now."

After that, he called for Luther and went straight to Rosalie's home. He met the nanny at the door. She greeted him with a smile. "Are you looking for Miss Jacobs? She's not here now. Why don't you come in and wait?" Byron was stunned. "Where did she go?" Nanny Lisa said, "I think she went to Movie World City. Is there anything you need from Miss Jacobs? Maybe you could leave a message?"

Byron had already turned and left.

Behind him, Luther smiled at Nanny Lisa. "Oh, no worries. We'll go look for her now."

After that, he quickly followed his master's footsteps.

"Master, so where do we go..." That was just a throwaway line to Nanny Lisa. Luther was not aware that was also how Byron felt.

Byron pressed his eyebrows. "We're going to Movie World City."

Luther responded and sped in the direction of Movie World City.

- After buying the tickets and entering, the two realized that they did not know which part of the amusement park Rosalie was in.

Byron coldly instructed, "Let's search separately. Notify me immediately if you find her."

Luther nodded, and the two went in different directions to start searching.

After a while, Luther called. "Master, I seem to have seen Miss Jacobs." Byron asked for the location and hurried over. It was a working day, so there were very few people in Movie World City. They could see four familiar faces standing at the entrance of the haunted house at a glance. It seemed that the four of them were in a standoff. To be precise, it was just Rosalie who was in a standoff with the two boys. The two little boys pulled Rosalie's arms, while Rosalie stood still for a while. "Mommy! Come in with us. We'll protect you!" Nox tugged playfully. Rosalie's face was full of hesitation.

Lucian also echoed, "Mommy, you're so timid. How can you set an example for us?"

Rosalie said, "...Okay, fine. I'll go in with you."

Then the two boys dragged the stiffened Rosalie into the haunted house. At the same time, Byron strode behind them and walked in.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter

116 –

Chapter 116 Bumping Into His Arms As soon as they walked in, darkness enveloped their eyes. Rosalie was holding the hands of the two little boys tightly, while Mary led the way in front of them. Lucian and Nox snickered in their hearts, but they did not expect Mommy to be so afraid of ghosts. However, after being frightened in the haunted house today, they would surely forget those troubles!

The two made small calculations and did not say that their hands were hurt by Mommy's death grip. They just dragged her forward without saying a word. Rosalie felt her scalp tingling as she walked. She has been afraid of all kinds of terrifying things since she was a child. Although she knew that the ghosts here were fake, she still felt apprehensive about the background sounds and light effects. Especially since it was still unknown when the 'ghosts' of the haunted house would appear. The three people in front, who just said they would protect her, seemed to be doing this on purpose. They did not say a word, which made her feel even more frightened. She wished she could just turn around and go out.

When she thought of what Lucian said just now, she decided that she wanted to set an example for the two little boys. Hence, Rosalie could only bite the bullet and move forward.

Just when she was uneasy, a pair of stiff legs suddenly appeared in front of her eyes.

Rosalie was stunned for a moment, then she looked up subconsciously. In the dim light, a pale face with a tongue sticking out appeared in front of her. "Ah..." Seeing this scene, Rosalie's heart almost came to her throat. She was so frightened that she could not even make a sound.

It was too late when the two little boys found out that something was wrong with Mommy.

Rosalie threw off their little hands and ran from where they came in a panic.

"This is terrifying. I want to get out of here!"

"Mommy!" The two little guys were stunned by her actions. They then came back to their senses as they quickly turned around and chased after her. Mary felt helpless as she looked back and saw the hariging ghost who appeared at an unknown time.

This haunted house character appeared at the most opportune time. She and the two little boys were fine when they walked over, but it appeared right in front of Rosalie.

The three quickly followed behind Rosalie, but after turning two corners, no one could be seen.

For a while, Mary and the two little boys were a little worried.

They knew how scared Rosalie was of these things. They only persuaded her to come along hoping to change her mood. They did not expect such an accident to happen. If she encountered another scary contraption by herself, they were afraid she would be terrified to the point of...

"It's all my fault. I shouldn't have insisted on making Mommy join us." Nox lowered his head in guilt.

Mary was lost for words for a while.

Lucian grabbed Nox's little hand and looked around. "Now isn't the time to blame ourselves. Let's find Mommy first. If this doesn't work, we'll get help from the staff."

The three frantically searched the haunted house

Rosalie knew nothing about the worries of the three of them as her heart was completely occupied by fear. Her mind kept racing toward the sight of the stiff legs and the pale face of the haunted house character. She even forgot the existence of the boys and her best friend. She only wanted to get out quickly. After running for a long time, she could not find an exit. Rosalie could not help but feel desperate. As she ran, she muttered to herself, "Don't scare me, please don't scare me..." Scrambling in the dark, Rosalie hit against what felt like a person's hard chest.

Rosalie froze all over, then she cried out in horror as her mind went blank

After Byron entered the door, the shadows of the four people disappeared. As a result, he walked through a different entrance from them. After searching for a long time, he did not see anyone. Just when he was feeling irritable, someone bumped into his arms. He wanted to push the person away, but when he heard the familiar, terrified cries of the person in his arms, his hand stopped resisting and turned to hold the person into his protective embrace.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 117 –

Chapter 117 What Is There Left To Explain? Rosalie, who was paralyzed in fear, was trembling unconsciously as she instinctively burrowed into his arms.

Noticing her trembling, his heart softened as he said gently, "Why come in if you're so scared?"

Rosalie could not react for a while when she heard the familiar voice.

Byron sighed helplessly. "Let's get you out of here."

Rosalie slowly recovered, only to feel that the voice in her ears was very familiar. The smell that lingered around her made her heart sink.

'Byron Lawrence? No, how could he be here...!

Rosalie raised her eyes in suspense and met the man's genuinely concerned eyes.

Looking at each other, Rosalie froze again. The panic she experienced earlier completely evaporated as she broke free from the man's arms with a blank expression.

Byron was deeply aware of her resistance, and the soft emotions in his heart slowly faded away, allowing her to retreat from his arms. "Why are you here?" Rosalie looked at the person in front of her with vigilance and estrangement. Byron gathered himself and replied coolly, "I'm looking for you." Hearing this, Rosalie was annoyed. "I thought what I said was clear enough, President Lawrence. You still spent so much effort to come look for me. I presume that you need something from me?" That morning after leaving the kindergarten, she had blocked Byron from contacting her. Byron must have gone through a tremendous effort to come all the way here to look for her. Rosalie could not think of any other reason besides him needing her help. Hearing this, Byron's eyes darkened slightly. He wanted to get straight to the point and explain his intentions, but Rosalie's question stabbed in his heart like a thorn. If he bluntly asked for her help, this woman might just ridicule him further.

Byron paused for a few seconds and rephrased his words, "I just feel that Lucian and Nox being expelled from school is a serious matter that hasn't been explained clearly. I hope you can calm down and listen to my explanation." Rosalie had predetermined that this matter was instigated by the man himself. She felt even more insulted by his attempts. 'Explain? What good is your explanation? Haven't you had enough fun messing with our lives already?'

The thought made Rosalie's eyes flash with coldness. Her tone was even more distant now."

President Lawrence, you're of high authority, so you can do whatever you want. There's no need for an explanation after execution. I don't want to know either."

Byron frowned in frustration. "I want to do things with a clear conscience, and I'll gladly be accountable for my own actions. But I didn't do this, and I have no reason to take the blame for others. I admit that when I knew that Lucian and Nox were attending the same school as Estie, I did tell the principal that he should expel them. However, Estie threw such a huge fit that day, so I'd never do it again. The boys' dismissal was under Wendy's instigation. She sent Estie to school in the morning and saw that the boys going to the same school. She then made the principal of the kindergarten dismiss them without authorization. I only found out about it after you came looking for me."

In the end, he still insisted it was Wendy's idea.

Rosalie got angrier and spat out the words sarcastically, "So, what difference does it make? First, you made a request, then Wendy Fuller, who's your future wife, made the same request to the principal. Do you think the principal wouldn't take you into account over this dismissal? In the end, this is all still your fault!"

Byron was irritated as the woman in front of him kept lumping their names together. "She is her, I am me. Why do you have to mix things up? I have no reason to take action against Lucian and Nox. Last night, I also warned the principal that Lucian and Nox could go back to kindergarten at any time."

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 118 –

Chapter 118 This Child Was Not Wendy Fuller's It was funny how things had changed.

Rosalie clearly remembered that six years ago, Byron swore that he would only want Wendy Fuller as his wife. He even treated her coldly because she occupied Wendy's position.

Six years later, this man could not wait to draw a line between himself and Wendy.

She wondered how Wendy would feel after hearing his words.

However, despite Byron's explanation, the principal was indeed instructed by Wendy. Plus, she had already made up her mind to cut ties with Byron.

If something like this could happen once, there would be a second time. She did not want her two boys to live under someone else's mercy.

Thinking of this, Rosalie put away her thoughts and did not want to be involved with him over this issue anymore. She said calmly, "I've listened to your explanation. If there's nothing else, I need to go now."

After speaking, she turned around to leave.

She did not want to stay in this godforsaken place any longer. Now that her rational mind had returned, she should be able to find an exit soon. Then, she could wait for Mary and the two little boys.

Just as she turned around, the man grabbed her wrist. Rosalie paused for a while, then turned around and asked coldly, "What more do you want, President Lawrence?" Byron was silent, then he gave in and explained his purpose. "I need your help with something.

Rosalie scowled in irony. Sure enough, she guessed right. If it was not because he needed something from her, how could this man have spent so much effort to find this place?

"The last time Estie put up a fight with me, it was because she didn't see Lucian and Nox in the kindergarten. When she learned that the two of them wouldn't be attending kindergarten anymore, her condition got worse. After watching you leave this morning, she had a complete meltdown. She's having an absence seizure and completely closed herself up. No matter what we say, she just stares blankly ahead. The psychiatrist said you may be able to help her, so I need to trouble you to come with me.”

Byron had a serious expression, and the strength in his grip was undiminished as if he was afraid that Rosalie would just leave. Rosalie could not help but be stunned by what he just told her.

The little girl's condition was so serious that he needed to call a psychiatrist. Even then, the psychiatrist was helpless.

Moreover, it was because of her and the boys... She did not even know that they were so important in that little girl's heart. Thinking of the little girl's tearful face when she went to them the last time, Rosalie's heart shook.

However, she remembered that Estie was Wendy's child. Her heart became resolute again.

“President Lawrence, you kept saying that Lucian and Nox were expelled from the kindergarten because of Wendy's orders. Why do you think I would step in to help now? Wendy has bullied my children like this, so why should I help her child? Did you think I'm Mother Mary?” Rosalie asked coldly when she regained her senses.

After speaking, she tried to break free from Byron's hands.

The man's grip was even tighter, and there was a hint of confusion on his face.

Seeing the expression on his face, Rosalie stared back in confusion.

Byron recovered from his astonishment and narrowed his eyes slowly. His voice became cold.” What do you mean? You think Estie... is Wendy Fuller's child?” Rosalie thought he wanted to forcibly take her away and even prepared to fight back but did not expect to hear this. For a while, her heart tightened inexplicably. Even so, she forced her composure and asked coldly, “Isn't it so?” Except for Wendy, she could not think of any other woman.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter

119 –

Chapter 119 What Are You Going To Do To Mommy?

Hearing Rosalie's rhetorical question, he stared at her face for a long time but could not see a trace of pretense.

Byron withdrew his gaze. He was shocked, and then there was an overwhelming revelation.

Rosalie had always thought that Estie was Wendy Fuller's child!

He always thought that it was this woman who abandoned Little Estie. Seeing how she did not recognize Estie even after returning home, he was certain that this woman was stone-hearted.

However, it was obvious from what she said just now that Rosalie did not know that Estie was her biological daughter. 'What exactly is going on? 'Or... is the woman's acting skills so good that I can't see through her?' There was confusion in Byron's heart.

He gathered himself as fast as he could. He still held onto her slender wrist and asked with a sullen face, "When did I say that Estie is Wendy Fuller's child?"

Her wrist hurt, but she was taken by his words. She was surprised.

Little Estie was not Wendy Fuller's child!

It was no wonder when Estie fell sick that day, Wendy was nowhere to be seen. However... From what she had seen, apart from Wendy Fuller, Byron had no other woman around him.

Who else could Estie's mother be?

She wanted to ask so badly.

"Mommy!" The voices of the two little boys could be heard not far away. "We found you! Are you alright?"

The boys noticed the man standing opposite Mommy holding onto her wrist. Seeing this, the two little guys looked at each other and hurried to Mommy's side as fast as their little legs could carry them. "Don't be afraid, Mommy! We'll protect you!" Nox opened his arms to form a barrier in front of Rosalie. As the boy looked up and recognized the man, he froze.

Lucian followed suit, took Mommy's hand, and looked up at the man opposite them fiercely. As soon as Lucian realized the man was Byron, his little face tensed up as he pursed his mouth. He then summoned every ounce of strength in his little body to push the man away. "Let go! Hands off my mommy! What are you going to do to her?" Byron noticed the little boy's anger. He frowned and let go of Rosalie's wrist. He explained calmly, "I just want to ask your Mommy for a favor. I don't mean any harm."

Lucian was still staring at him with a wary expression.

Nox turned around to hold Mommy's hand and rub it. "Mommy, are you alright? Did he bully you? My brother and I will protect you!" Rosalie was still in a daze about Estie's background. When she heard Nox's words, she shook her head absently. "I'm alright, dear."

Seeing Mommy's dazed appearance, Nox was worried sick. He glared at the man opposite her.

'Bad Daddy! It's fine to bully us, but he even tried to bully Mommy while we weren't around!'

When he grew up, he had to avenge Mommy for this mistreatment! * For a while, the atmosphere in the room was stiff.

Although Mary was also deeply dissatisfied with Byron, she was calm enough to realize that this place was not appropriate for a discussion. She stepped forward and held Lucian back, then she said, "If you all need to talk, let's go outside." Then, she comforted Rosalie. "If you're afraid, we'll stop here. Let's go out together." She gently patted her best friend's back. Rosalie came back to her senses. Without looking at the person on the opposite side, she nodded silently and followed Mary from behind. Nox held Mommy's hand tightly, worried that Mommy would be frightened again. He protected Rosalie like a little knight all the way.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 120 –

Chapter 120 Must Protect Little Sister Seeing them leave, Byron followed along immediately. The exit was not difficult to find, but Rosalie was frightened out of her mind earlier so she got lost while running around.

As she had calmed down now, they eventually found their way out of the haunted house.

Rosalie felt disoriented from the dazzling sunlight hitting her face. Byron followed closely behind her, his eyes locked tightly on her. The two had different thoughts.

Sensing the strange atmosphere between the two, Mary took Rosalie aside and whispered in her ear, "What's the matter? What is he asking you to do?"

Rosalie came back to her senses and subconsciously glanced at the man inches away, only to see that the man's eyebrows were tightly furrowed with anxiety and worry

She thought of what Byron had said in the haunted house just now.

He did not seem like he was lying.

Thinking of this, Rosalie could not help but worry about Little Estie.

Even before when she thought that Estie was Byron and Wendy's child, she could not help but adore that little girl. Now that she knew that Estie had nothing to do with Wendy Fuller, she found the feelings even more unbearable. "It's nothing, just some personal matters," Rosalie muttered to her best friend. Mary was still suspicious.

'Are there any more personal matters between the two of them? Byron could even find this place.

Just as she was about to ask, she saw that Rosalie had left her and walked toward the man over there.

Mary was even more confused at this point. Seeing the woman walking toward him, he frowned slightly and decided to continue asking her for help. Rosalie interjected, "I'll go with you."

Byron breathed a sigh of relief and nodded. "Thanks for the trouble."

Rosalie had decided to go check on Estie's situation, so she took the two little boys from Mary and said to her best friend, "Why don't you head back? I'll take the boys to Byron's."

She knew that Little Estie was also very dependent on her two little boys, so taking them there might be a good idea.

Mary did not want to ask any further and just watched as the four of them left like a family.

They only came in one car, which Mary drove home after they parted ways. After coming out of Movie World City, Rosalie and the little boys got into Byron's car. Luther was already waiting in the car. Once they entered the car, he ignited the engine and headed toward Lawrence Manor. On the way, Byron briefly told Rosalie about Estie's condition and the course of treatment over the years.

When Rosalie knew that the little one had suffered from mental breakdowns at such a young age along with the many ups and downs she had experienced over the years, it broke her heart. Moreover, according to Byron, Estie's meltdown this time was more severe than before. Thinking of this, Rosalie blamed herself. If she had known that the little girl's condition was so serious, she would never have said this in front of her.

The two boys sat quietly beside Mommy. As they listened to Byron, their dissatisfaction with him was slowly replaced by their deep concern for their little sister.

Their little sister was the same age as them, but she had gone through so much and was still being ostracized in the kindergarten. They must protect their little sister! Luther drove so quickly that they arrived at the manor in no time. After getting out of the car, Byron took Rosalie and the two boys straight to the second floor. Lucas was still waiting upstairs. Due to Estie's resistance, he just left the door open to keep an eye on her in case she partook in any dangerous behaviors. Seeing the four of them, Lucas raised his brows slightly and nodded to Rosalie. "Hello, Miss Jacobs." She nodded in response. Thinking about Little Estie, she asked, "Where's Estie? I'll go check on her," Lucas raised his finger and pointed to the corner of the room.

They only came in one car, which Mary drove home after they parted ways. After coming out of Movie World City, Rosalie and the little boys got into Byron's car.

Luther was already waiting in the car. Once they entered the car, he ignited the engine and headed toward Lawrence Manor. On the way, Byron briefly told Rosalie about Estie's condition and the course of treatment over the years.

When Rosalie knew that the little one had suffered from mental breakdowns at such a young age along with the many ups and downs she had experienced over the years, it broke her heart. Moreover, according to Byron, Estie's meltdown this time was more severe than before. Thinking of this, Rosalie blamed herself. If she had known that the little girl's condition was so serious, she would never have said this in front of her. The two boys sat quietly beside Mommy. As they listened to Byron, their dissatisfaction with him was slowly replaced by their deep concern for their little sister. Their little sister was the same age as them, but she had gone through so much and was still being ostracized in the kindergarten. They must protect their little sister! Luther drove so quickly that they arrived at the manor in no time. After getting out of the car, Byron took Rosalie and the two boys straight to the second floor. Lucas was still waiting upstairs. Due to Estie's resistance, he just left the door open to keep an eye on her in case she partook in any dangerous behaviors. Seeing the four of them, Lucas raised his brows slightly and nodded to Rosalie. "Hello, Miss Jacobs." She nodded in response. Thinking about Little Estie, she asked, "Where's Estie? I'll go check on her." Lucas raised his finger and pointed to the corner of the room.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-