

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball

Chapter 1281 –

Chapter 1281 Take It As We Have Enjoyed It

Seeing the intimacy between the two adults, the little ones looked at each other with smiles on their faces.

When the adults approached them, the kids pretended not to see and discussed what they were about to play in the park.

Then, they got into the car.

Byron took them for breakfast. Only then did they head to the amusement park.

When they arrived, the park was crowded.

Looking at the park, Rosalie recalled the day she went on the hot spring vacation where she almost lost Nox. It made her feel uneasy.

Her thoughts were written on her face.

Byron held her hand. "If you're worried, I can have my men clear this place."

Rosalie snapped out of her worry and shook her head with a smile. "Forget it. The kids won't enjoy the atmosphere."

Nox knew Rosalie was worried about losing him again. He lifted his wrist and showed her the watch he wore.

"Don't worry, Mommy. We're all wearing smartwatches! If you can't find us, give us a call!"

Lucian and Nox also promised. "We'll stay by your side!"

Rosalie smiled and touched the little ones' heads upon hearing their promises. "Just have fun."

The children smiled and went to play as they had planned, i

Rosalie played with the kids in the kids' section, yet they still felt it was not fun enough.

"Mommy, roller coaster!"

Nox looked at the roller coaster passing through from above, and his eyes lit up.

Rosalie was troubled by her son's enthusiasm. "You're not old enough to ride the roller coaster. Let's forget about it this time."

Byron reminded Rosalie, "I just saw a roller coaster for children. We can let them ride that."

Rosalie was about to agree when Nox refused. "That isn't exciting at all!

We want to play this!"

Rosalie felt helpless.

The little ones were not old enough to ride the roller coaster.

Even if Byron arranged for someone to give them access to the roller coaster, Rosalie would not be at ease.

As she was thinking of how to persuade them to give up, Lucian spoke.

"Since we can't go, can you and Mr. Byron go on behalf of us? We can take it as we're the ones enjoying it!"

The other two little ones nodded.

Rosalie looked at the man beside her subconsciously.

She was fine as long as the kids were happy. It was just that... Byron was not the type of person who would agree to something like this.

She could not imagine him on a roller coaster.

"Mr. Byron!"

"Daddy!"

The children knew who they should persuade and quickly persuaded Byron.

Rosalie feared Byron might feel troubled and wanted to reject on his behalf.

Unexpectedly, before she could speak, Byron spoke.

"Sure, but the three of you wait for us down there. You can't go anywhere, and you can't go anywhere with anyone else."

Byron looked at the three kids seriously.

When he agreed, the little ones cheered and agreed. "We'll be good and wait for you!"

Then, they urged their parents to line up.

Rosalie said nothing more since Byron agreed. Byron held her hand and took her to the line.

Caught in the crowd, Rosalie looked at Byron, who seemed to be trying to adapt. She asked with concern.

Byron looked at the kids gently and said, "It's alright. They like it."

Then, he looked at Rosalie. "Remember to hold my arm if you're afraid later."

Rosalie was startled when he teased her, and she felt complicated emotions rising, making her lower her head to hide it.

Over the years, she had taken Lucian and Nox to amusement parks.

The kids had said they wanted to ride the roller coaster, but they never did.

Never before had the little ones asked her to take their place.

They might not have asked her to do that because they were worried she would be scared.

Only today did the kids request something like that. They looked excited about it and not worried at all.

Undoubtedly, the little ones felt that Byron would take their place and protect her.

Even she felt the same way.

Rosalie lifted her head and smiled at Byron. "Thank you."

Her hair blew in the wind as she spoke, and Byron tucked it behind her ears for her. "I should thank you for giving me a chance."

Their appearance and temperament were outstanding among the crowd.

The people around them kept a distance from them, yet they could not help themselves from looking.

Someone took out their phone to take a photo of them, but that person forgot to disable her flash.

It flashed Rosalie's eyes, and she looked in the person's direction.

The girl smiled awkwardly at her. "I'm sorry, but you guys look like a perfect couple. Can I keep this photo? If you mind..."

Rosalie could see the sincerity in the girl's request, and she could not bear to reject her. However, she was not the only one in the photo.

She looked up at Byron.

Byron turned around and looked at the girl.

The girl had been looking at Rosalie and could only see Byron's profile all this while.

When Byron turned around, the girl was astonished by his appearance.

Then, his temperament charmed her. She was so nervous that she almost said she wanted to delete the photo.

"Send me a copy of the photo."

Byron took out his phone and asked for the girl's number.

Rosalie and the girl were both startled.

It took her some time to react, and her hands were trembling in joy.

Who would have thought she could be lucky enough to get a handsome guy's number just by taking a candid photo?

After exchanging numbers, she sent the photo to Byron as he had requested.

Byron glanced at the photo and was pleased. Then, he tapped on something on the screen.

Suddenly, the girl received 10,000 bunks in her PayPal. A notification was sent to her.

"Erm... I don't need this. It's just a casual, candid photo, and it isn't that nice w

The girl felt uneasy.

Byron said, "You took a good shot. Delete the one on your phone now."

Then, he kept his phone.

The girl looked at Rosalie for help.

She was embarrassed to accept such a sum of money.

Rosalie was speechless. "Accept it and delete the photo on your phone.

Take it as we're buying it from you."

In the end, the girl accepted the money after Rosalie persuaded her. Then, she deleted Byron's number in front of Rosalie.

Byron lifted his eyebrow silently.

Rosalie did not know why at first. Only when she was on the roller coaster did she realize the girl was afraid she would mind another girl having Byron's number.

While she was distracted, the staff member fastened the safety belts and checked them carefully.

The roller coaster started slowly.

"Come on. Mommy!"

"Way to go, Auntie!"

From beyond the fence came the shouts of the little ones.

Rosalie smiled at the little ones, and she was relaxed.

As the ride began to pick up speed and the slope increased, Rosalie began to feel fear.

Their seats were in the front row.

The people behind her were screaming, but Rosalie felt that her throat was dry, and her heart was leaping out.

Just as she felt suffocated, Byron grabbed her hand.

Sensing his presence, Rosalie's heartbeat calmed down, and she felt better.

Rosalie subconsciously looked at the man beside her.

The people behind them were screaming and cursing, yet Byron seemed calm. If it were not because his hair was messy in the wind, Rosalie would have doubted if Byron was a robot.

It amused Rosalie to see him like that. Soon, she calmed down and screamed as the roller coaster moved.

His hand was slightly relaxed as he held her, and his eyes smiled as he listened to her unabashed cries.

Finally, when the roller coaster stopped, Rosalie gasped for air and almost fainted when she got up.

Luckily, Byron held onto her, preventing her from humiliating herself publicly. 2

Byron held her as they walked out. The little ones were already waiting for them at the exit.

When they came out, the kids surrounded them.

They were worried when they saw Rosalie's pale face. "Mommy, are you okay?"

Rosalie had recovered from her dizzy state. She smiled and shook her head. "I'm fine."

Then, she looked at the expressionless man beside her and chuckled as she said, "I even feel like riding it a few more times."

The kids did not know why Rosalie laughed and thought the roller coaster was fun.

Nox clenched his fist and said, "I'm going to ride it countless times when I grow up!"

Lucian held his brother's hand. "I'll go with you!"

Estelle also said, "Estie wants to join you!"

Lucian and Nox said, "Sure! You can sit in the backseat."

The little ones chattered as they walked. Rosalie smiled as they looked at the naive kids.

Byron looked at the little ones and then at the woman beside him.

Rosalie had recovered, but she looked a little pale because of the roller coaster.

“I’m going to get us some water. Don’t wander around,” Byron said.

The children nodded.

Rosalie also nodded subconsciously.

She realized Byron treated her like a kid only when he walked away.

Realizing this, Rosalie laughed again.

Seeing the smile on Rosalie’s face, the little ones laughed along even though they did not know why.

A woman and three kids were laughing heartily at a corner of the park.

That was what Byron saw when he was back with the water bottles.

The little ones were gathered around Rosalie happily, and Rosalie was smiling.

Byron was happy to see them like that, and his gaze softened.

The little ones waved happily at him when he came back.

Byron strode toward them and distributed the water he bought as he listened to their conversation.

“Weren’t you afraid just now?”

Suddenly, Rosalie looked at Byron.

The kids were looking at him too.

Byron lifted his eyebrows confidently. "I've done parachuting, and it's more dangerous than this."

Rosalie was surprised to hear that.

She had thought that someone like Byron would not do something adventurous.

Lucian's and Nox's eyes lit up in excitement. They tugged Byron's clothes and said, "Mr. Byron, take us with you next time!"

Byron smiled and agreed without hesitation, "I'll take you when you're old enough."

The little boys cheered again.

Rosalie was touched to see Byron and the little ones getting along well.

Sure enough, the kids still needed their father.

She had always known that these little guys were bold and wanted to try all sorts of activities.

However, the little boys always cared about her feelings and were afraid she would be frightened. Thus, they never made those suggestions before.

The little ones were open to being themselves in front of Byron.

Presumably, with Byron's accompany, the boys would grow up happily in the future.

As she pondered, someone tugged her shirt.

Rosalie snapped out of her thoughts and looked at the kids.

It was Estelle who was looking at her without even blinking her bright eyes.

"What's the matter, Estie?"

Rosalie squatted and asked the little girl softly.

Estelle hugged her neck and whispered in her ear, "Auntie, can Estie call you 'Mommy'?"

The little girl's voice sounded timid, and she was afraid Rosalie would reject her.

Upon hearing that question, Rosalie subconsciously at the man talking to Lucian and Nox.

They did not seem to notice her and Estelle.

Estelle explained anxiously, “I feel like we’re a family, and didn’t you agree to date Daddy, Auntie? We’ll be a family in the future!”

The little girl’s face was full of anticipation.

Her words touched Rosalie.

Indeed, she had already decided to accept Byron.

However, she was not sure what would happen in the future.

If she promised the little girl now, she would not know how to face her if she had to let her down in the future.

Rosalie hesitated.

“Auntie...” Estelle thought Rosalie would refuse her, and she looked like she was about to cry.

Rosalie did not have the heart to reject her upon hearing the little girl’s voice. She could only try to persuade Estelle. “Your daddy and I...”

She wanted to say they were not married, but it might cause a misunderstanding. She hesitated, skipped that sentence, and said, “If you wish to take me as your mommy, why don’t you call me ‘Godmother’? Is that okay?”

The little girl pouted her lips and was a little reluctant.

However, she could only agree since Rosalie had given in so much. “Okay.”

The two adults took the children around the amusement park the whole day.

For dinner, Byron took them to an upscale restaurant nearby.

“I want to sit with Godmother!”

Estelle grabbed Rosalie's clothes when they were at their table and did not want to let go. She looked proud.

Byron and the little boys were startled to hear Estelle calling Rosalie that. They looked at Rosalie subconsciously. 1

Rosalie did not dare to look into the man's eyes. "Estie wants to take me as her mommy. So, I agreed. If you mind, I can-"

Byron lifted his eyebrow and interrupted, "I feel that this isn't intimate enough, but if that's what you wish, she can call you that for the time being."

Then, Byron and the kids took their seats.

Estelle and Rosalie sat side by side. Meanwhile, Lucian and Nox showed that they wanted to sit beside Byron through their actions.

In the end, Rosalie and Byron sat opposite each other while the three kids sat beside them.

The little ones were delighted. When Byron looked up, he could see Rosalie, and that was what he wanted.

Dinner was booked in advance, and they ordered the restaurant's signature dishes.

Byron even ordered ice cream for the little ones.

The shape of the ice cream was unique. They had no idea what the waiter did that made the ice cream change shape instantly.

The kids clapped their hands in surprise.

Rosalie had the habit of cutting the kids' steaks for them and wanted to do what she usually did.

Unexpectedly, as soon as she looked up, she saw that Byron had taken over her job.

The man cut the steaks slowly and did not show any trace of impatience.

He seemed to sense Rosalie's gaze, and their eyes met when he lifted his head. "Do you need me to help you with that?"

Byron looked at her untouched steak as he asked.

Startled, Rosalie shook her head embarrassedly. "I can do it myself."

Byron said nothing more, helped the little ones cut their steaks, and handed the plates back to them.

It was a very warm dinner.

Somewhere where they did not notice, Melody was staring at the happy family of five and was displeased.

Although she already knew Byron intended to get back together with Rosalie, she did not expect them to have come this far.

Those who knew nothing about their family would think Rosalie and Byron were a married couple with three kids.

Melody gritted her teeth in fury as she watched Byron cut the two little boys ' steaks for them.

She raised him, yet he had never cut steak for her. However, now he was taking care of someone else's sons.

Melody did not know what was wrong with her son.

That Jacobs woman was not a good woman and even had two kids, yet her son loved her so much.

Melody's brows furrowed upon watching the five leave after their meal. She suppressed her displeasure and looked away.

Her seat was near the door, blocked by some potted plants.

Rosalie and the others did not notice her even when they walked to the door.

'Thank you, Godmother!'

Rosalie handed Estelle a piece of candy, and the little girl thanked her cutely.

Behind the plants, Melody was pissed off to hear how Estelle addressed Rosalie. She almost could not control herself from rushing out.

They came out of the restaurant and got into the car, but for a long time, Byron did not start the car.

Rosalie gave him a puzzled look.

When she turned her head, she bumped into the man's deep eyes.

Rosalie was taken aback suddenly and felt a little nervous for no reason.

After a while, Byron showed some regret on his face. "It would be nice if it rained heavily now."

Rosalie had not reacted yet.

The little ones in the back row looked at their daddy curiously. "But if it rains heavily, we won't be able to go back!"

Byron simply smiled, said nothing, and started the car slowly.

The little ones did not hear Daddy's answer and were a little confused.

However, they reminded Rosalie, and she suddenly understood what Byron meant.

'His subtext is to hint to me that he doesn't want to go back tonight!'

Realizing this, Rosalie's face gradually blushed. She turned her eyes away and did not dare to look at Byron's face. "It's getting late. Let's go back quickly. The kids must be sleepy too."

The little ones blinked their eyes in confusion as they were used as excuses by Rosalie. However, the kids felt that the two adults seemed to be saying something they did not understand, so they never intervened.

On the way back, it was uncertain whether Byron was doing it intentionally or not, but he drove the car very slowly. The children were caught in a daze one by one.

Rosalie was also a little tired and stared blankly with her eyes downcast.

When she came back to her senses, the car had already stopped slowly at the gate of the villa.

Rosalie turned around and woke up Lucian and Nox, telling them to get out of the car with her.

"Godmother..."

Estie was going home with Byron today, and she was reluctant to part with Rosalie.

Rosalie patted the little girl's head reassuringly. "Good girl, you've been staying here for a long time. It's time to go home." i

The little girl was still a little reluctant.

Rosalie seemed to have thought of something and looked at Byron awkwardly.

Before she could open her mouth, Byron's voice sounded. "In the past two days, I asked Luther to complete the transfer procedures for Estie. From next week onward, she'll return to her original kindergarten."

Hearing this, several pairs of eyes lit up.

Lucian and Nox hugged Little Estie excitedly. "Yay! Little Estie can go to school with us again!"

Estie also had a smile on her face.

A big stone fell away from Rosalie's heart. She smiled and said to the little girl, "In the future, you and the little brothers can still meet in the kindergarten. If you want, you can also come to stay at my house for a few days anytime."

The joy of transferring back to her original school diluted the little girl's reluctance to part with Rosalie.

Hearing this, Estie nodded obediently. "Godmother, you must come and pick up the little brothers!"

Rosalie smiled and agreed.

Byron started the car slowly.

Lucian and Nox waved to him. "See you, Mr. Byron!"

Byron nodded to the little ones, then deeply looked at Rosalie, waiting for her to speak.

Due to what he said just now, Rosalie was already a little shy.

Upon meeting his gaze, her face blushed uncontrollably again. She only whispered, "Bye."

Byron raised his eyebrows, apparently dissatisfied with her expression.

Rosalie frowned in embarrassment, hesitated for a few seconds, and said, "See you on Monday."

If there were no contingencies, they would have to pick up and drop off their children on Monday. They would be meeting often.

Only then did Byron smile at her with satisfaction. "See you on Monday."

After speaking, he started the car and drove toward Lawrence Manor.

Rosalie and the little ones watched Byron's car leave, then turned and walked toward the villa.

The three of them had just returned to the villa. Rosalie wanted to put the little ones upstairs to bed when the doorbell suddenly rang.

Lucian and Nox thought it was Byron and Estie who went and came back, so they excitedly ran to open the door. Even Rosalie could not stop them.

After the little ones opened the door, they were a little dumbfounded when they saw the person at the door.

"Where's Rosalie?"

Melody looked down at the two little boys with an ugly expression, her eyes were full of displeasure.

The little ones had just gotten along well with their daddy. When they suddenly faced Grandma's undisguised disgust, there was an inevitable gap. The smile on their faces wa gradually withdrawn and replaced with a look of wariness.

Melody did not expect them to answer. After she asked, she raised her eyes and looked into the living room.

At a glance, she saw Rosalie walking toward the door.

From inside, Rosalie heard Melody's voice, got worried about the little boys, and rushed out immediately.

“Mrs. Lawrence, it’s so late now. What’s the matter?”

She quietly protected the two little guys behind her and met Melody’s gaze with a cold expression.

Melody looked her up and down. “Let’s go in and talk.”

Rosalie frowned and hesitated for a moment but still made way for her to go in.

‘Anyway, Melody came alone. At most, she’ll just say some nasty things.

‘If I really want to be with Byron, I’ll have to pass this test with Melody sooner or later.’

The little ones could not help feeling a little anxious when Mommy actually let Melody in, for fear that Melody would bully their mommy like those two mean aunties.

Rosalie watched Melody take a seat on the sofa, then squatted down and looked into Lucian’s and Nox’s eyes. “Go up and rest first. Mommy and Grandma Melody have something to say.”

Lucian grabbed Mommy’s hand worriedly. “We’ll stay with you, Mommy!”

Nox nodded vigorously too.

Rosalie’s heart broke upon seeing their worried faces. She raised his hand and stroked their heads reassuringly. “Don’t worry, we’re just talking.

Nothing will happen. You’ve been playing for the entire day. I’m sure you’re sleepy too. Go wash up and rest early.”

The little guys were still a little reluctant.

Rosalie had no choice but to look back at Melody.

The older lady did not notice this, so Rosalie assured the little ones discreetly. “Even if she wants to do anything, she’s no match for Mommy.

You know that.”

The little ones remembered Mommy heroically beating those two aunties the last time, so they nodded in agreement.

Before going upstairs, the children greeted Melody very politely. “Good night. Grandma Melody.”

Melody snorted coldly as if she did not see them.

The boys were somewhat disappointed, but they did not say anything. They turned around and went upstairs obediently.

As the little ones went upstairs, Rosalie walked into the living room, poured a cup of tea for herself and Melody, and sat down on the single sofa beside Melody, i

“It’s just the two of us now. You don’t have to be such a hypocrite. I don’t buy it!”

Melody glanced at the teacup Rosalie put in front of her and made no secret of her disdain for Rosalie.

Rosalie’s face remained unchanged, and she said calmly, “That’s just basic courtesy. Even if Miss Fuller came, I would do the same. If you don’t like it, you don’t have to drink it.”

Melody lost her composure at Rosalie’s calmness. She pushed the cup in front of her away and looked at Rosalie with a cold face. “Tell me now, what will make you stay away from my son? Do you want money? Or something else? No matter what the request is, as long as I can do it. I’ll satisfy you.”

These words sounded inexplicably familiar to Rosalie.

‘This seems like a cliché line in some TV novela.’ Rosalie even found it a little ridiculous.

Melody was oblivious and carried on, “Six years ago, you were the one who wanted to leave Byron. Nobody forced you. Back then, you left when you wanted to, and now you come back as you please. What do you take the Lawrence family for?”

At the mention of what happened six years ago, Rosalie suppressed the messy thoughts in her head and looked at the person in front of her. “First of all, you may have misunderstood. Whether it was my departure six years ago or how far Byron and I have developed, it’s not as simple as my own decision.”

Melody did not expect her to refute, and her face became increasingly unhappy.

Rosalie continued to state the facts calmly, “Six years ago, you knew Byron’s feelings for Wendy, but because the old man needed to be cheered up, you forced me to wedge myself between them. Byron's indifference tormented me for three whole years. I had no choice but to choose to leave."

Her statement was equivalent to implicating the Lawrence family for her departure six years ago.

This was also Rosalie's true thoughts all along.

She chose to leave six years ago and did not feel sorry for anyone, except for her daughter who died young!

"When I left six years ago, I was already disheartened. I came back this time only because of work. It wasn't my wish to come to this point with Byron."

Rosalie looked straight at Melody. "If you really can't accept me, then go tell Byron. I can't make the decision myself."

Melody became angry from embarrassment at what she said.

"You ruined the six-year engagement between Byron and Wendy, yet you don't feel any guilt at all. You even have the audacity to say that it's all the Lawrence family's fault? If you really had no intentions, why did you come back?! Why couldn't you have worked elsewhere? Did you have to come back to Somerland? Did you have to come back to Coast City?"

Melody struggled hard to distort reason with her overbearing words.

Rosalie frowned, but she was still calm. She threw the ball back to her court. "The decision wasn't mine. It was my teacher's idea. You can ask him."

Melody's eyes widened angrily. "I don't care what you have in mind! Let me tell you, as long as I'm still alive, it's impossible for you to enter the Lawrence family again! And Byron, he's my son. I know him best! You used three years, yet he still never liked you. Why do you think that he'll fall in love with you after six years of absence?! What's more, you still have two bastards with you!"

No matter what Melody had said before, Rosalie's expression was always calm as if she never took her words to heart.

However, Rosalie's face suddenly darkened upon the attack against Lucian and Nox.

"Mrs. Lawrence, you've lived for so long, so you should know that adults should settle matters between us as adults. Why are you dragging the kids through this? You keep saying that this is for the Lawrence family's reputation. Now you're verbally attacking two innocent children. Don't you feel that you've embarrassed the Lawrence family with that behavior?"

Melody felt secretly gleeful upon the woman's change in demeanor and continued to trigger her.

"Did I say something wrong? How old are those two boys? Five or six years old? You left the Lawrence family for less than a year and gave birth to some random man's kids, but you're still insisting on how much you like Byron! I think the only thing you like is the Lawrence family's money! Now that you're back, you're playing the victim as if Byron wronged you. Do you think you can fool me?"

Melody thought she had found Rosalie's weakness. Unbeknownst to her, the more she spoke, the more ridiculous Rosalie found it.

'I faked Lucian's and Nox's ages. That made things difficult for Melody. She's making speculations for nothing.

'If she finds out about Lucian's and Nox's identity in the future and then thinks of what she said to me today, I wonder what the look on her face would be?'

Thinking of this, the expression on Rosalie's face gradually became indifferent again. "If that's what you think, so be it."

Melody was already angry, but the target of her anger remained calm, which made her explode. "If that's the case, then you should stay away from Byron and Estie! Don't think that I don't know what you're using to get close to Byron!"

Rosalie raised her eyes to meet hers in puzzlement.

She really did not know what method she was accused of using.

"Just because Estie likes you, you think you can be Estie's mother! Let me tell you, don't even think about it! Whoever Estie's mother may be, she can't be you!"

Melody was furious. "You just happen to have two children of the same age who attracted Estie! When Wendy gives birth to a child, Estie will also like her!"

When Melody was in the restaurant just now, Estie calling the woman 'Godmother*' not only made her feel ironic but also reminded her of something.

She belatedly realized that Rosalie had no idea that Estie was her biological daughter!

If she knew, she would not let the little girl call her 'Godmother*!

Therefore, on the way here, Melody planned to use this as an excuse to drive Rosalie away from her son!

"No matter what, our family will do whatever it takes to find Estie's biological mother and let her be the young wife of the Lawrence family. It'll definitely not be you!"

Melody's words sounded.

Rosalie frowned in surprise.

'No matter what?

'In other words, even the Lawrence family doesn't know who Estie's real mother is

'What about Byron? Does he know?'

Seeing that she was distracted, Melody's eyes burned more and more, but she did not want to lose her composure in front of Rosalie. She suppressed her anger and said word by word, "While I can still talk to you properly, it's best for you to be sensible. Take what you want and disappear from Coast City. Otherwise, don't blame me for not remembering the past in-law relationship between us!"

Rosalie came back to her senses and smirked sarcastically. "Haven't you already ignored it?"

Even during her years in the Lawrence family, Melody had never regarded her as a daughter-in-law.

Her relationship with Melody was just a joke.

Melody was speechless for a moment after being called out.

Rosalie picked up the teacup and took a sip without even looking at her." Besides, Mrs. Lawrence, you can't afford what I want. I'll pretend I didn't hear what you said today. It's late. Please go back."

"Don't be ignorant!"

After a long time, Melody threw out a sentence forcefully.

Rosalie stood up and opened the front door, her face unchanging. "I won't see you off."

Rosalie's eviction order was issued so clearly. If Melody refused to leave, she would really lose her posture.

After deliberating for a moment, Melody strode out of the villa with displeasure.

Rosalie closed the door behind her back.

Rosalie originally wanted to see if she had a chance to have a good talk with Melody, but she did not expect Melody's animosity to be so strong.

She had no choice but to face it head-on.

However, what Melody said about finding Estie's biological mother left a deep impression on her.

'After so much trouble, even the Lawrence family doesn't know who Estie's biological mother is...

'Since that woman has been reluctant to show up for so long, can I take care of Estie in her place instead with peace of mind?'

On Monday morning, Lucian and Nox woke up early.

When Rosalie went downstairs, the two little ones had even prepared hot milk and sandwiches.

Rosalie could not help feeling amused seeing how much the little ones were looking forward to it.

"Mommy, eat quickly. Once you're done, you need to send us to school!"

Nox pushed the hot milk toward her.

Rosalie nodded with a smile, had breakfast with the little ones, and then took them into the car.

Ever since Estie transferred to another school, she had never seen these two little ones looking forward to school so much.

Now that Estie has transferred back from, Lucian's and Nox's love for kindergarten had also returned.

At the entrance of the kindergarten, Rosalie saw Byron standing next to Miss Leigh Ann with Estie from a distance. They were talking along with the principal of the kindergarten.

"Mr. Byron, Little Estie!"

The two little ones were still in the car, and they kept screaming excitedly.

Rosalie looked at Estie's little figure and could not help but smile. Then, she took the little ones out of the car.

As soon as they got out of the car, Lucian and Nox ran toward Estie as fast as they could. They gave Estie a big bear hug on each side.

"Little Estie, welcome back!"

When Estie faced Miss Leigh Ann, she was still a little cautious.

However, as soon as the two little brothers came over, the little girl chuckled out loud. She smiled from ear to ear.

After Lucian and Nox welcomed Estie, they turned to greet Byron and Miss Leigh Ann.

"Good morning, teacher. Good morning, Mr. Byron!"

Miss Leigh Ann broke into smiles as she had not seen the two little ones so happy for a long time, i

The principal did not bother about the two little boys. After all, he had read Rosalie's file, but she was just a doctor. He did not need to try hard to curry favor.

Byron raised his hand and touched their heads. He was about to ask the little ones where Rosalie was when he saw Rosalie's skirt appear in front of him.

"Miss Jacobs, good morning!" Miss Leigh Ann greeted Rosalie with a smile.

Rosalie nodded with a smile, "Good morning, President Lawrence, and good morning, principal."

After she was done speaking, she could not help lowering her eyes to look at Estie.

After she parted ways with Byron, she insisted on picking up Lucian and Nox personally in order to see Estie at the gate, but she never saw her.

Now that she finally saw the little girl, Rosalie was filled with emotions.

“Godmother!”

Estie called out at Rosalie crisply in front of Miss Leigh Ann and the principal.

At that moment, Miss Leigh Ann and the principal were both taken aback.

It was Miss Leigh Ann who came to her senses first. She took a look at Byron and saw that he did not seem to be unhappy, so she smiled and acknowledged Rosalie. “Estie and you have a really good relationship.”

Rosalie pursed her lips and smiled, looking down at the innocent look on the little girl’s face. Suddenly, Rosalie felt that there was nothing to hide, so she patted the little girl’s head generously and said, “Estie, you must listen to Miss Leigh Ann in class. If there’s anything, just tell the little brothers. Do you understand?”

The little girl nodded obediently.

Lucian and Nox also quickly said, “We’ll definitely take good care of our little sister and won’t let her be bullied again!”

Although Rosalie did not say anything, the little ones could guess what had happened to Estie in the new kindergarten. They were very angry but did not have a chance to stand up for their little sister, so they could only protect her in the current kindergarten!

Only then did the principal react belatedly. He smiled eagerly at Rosalie.” Miss Jacobs, you can rest assured that the environment in our kindergarten is very good. There’ll be no bullying among children!”
