My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1361—He Would Not Allow It

Wendy sat weakly on the stage when she heard that.

They had sacrificed so much for the Fuller family, but now it belonged to others...

Byron did not want her anymore, and she did not even manage to protect the Fuller family.

In despair, Wendy's hatred for Rosalie grew stronger!

She would not have ended up like this if it were not because of that b*tch Rosalie!

The Lawrence family broke the engagement tie with the Fuller family, and their lies spread through the upper circle.

Xander knew about the matter immediately when the two broke off their engagement.

He could not understand why Byron had finally done it and felt uneasy. Thus, he asked his assistant to investigate it.

His assistant came to report the result of the investigation the following day.

"Young Master Xander, there are now rumors about the little lady of the Lawrence family being Miss Jacobs' daughter. Even Miss Jacobs has gotten to know about it. Maybe because of this, Miss Jacobs' attitude toward President Lawrence changed. They've been very close lately."

Xander was in a bad mood upon hearing that.

Estelle was Byron and Rosalie's daughter.

No wonder he had always heard that the little girl's speech issue was related to Rosalie.

He also finally understood why Byron did not stop Rosalie and Estelle from getting along with each other.

It turned out that they were related.

Xander had always known that Byron and Rosalie were married before, but he did not expect them to have a child.

It would not be easy for him to do anything if they had a child between them.

Xander was unhappy with that and reluctant to give in.

After getting to know Rosalie in the free clinic and seeing her exquisite medical skills, she was the best candidate to be his wife!

He still wanted her even though she had a kid with another man!

Xander had always been fascinated by medicine but also wanted to seek a breakthrough in the Lancer family's medical skills.

It was the first time he had seen such a skilled woman, and he was inevitably attracted to her!

He frantically hoped Rosalie had the same thought as him and that she wanted to study medicine together and strive further.

He only had one way to make Rosalie loyal to him. It was to marry her!

He believed that it would benefit both of them greatly if they were a couple!

It was also because of this that Xander had been trying to have a closer relationship with Rosalie just to get her to date him.

However, he never expected Rosalie to still choose Byron.

"Byron! It's him again! Why does he always disrupt whatever I want to do?" i

Furious, Xander shoved everything off his table.

Whether it was Heronial Corporation or Rosalie, Byron had been snatching them from him!

Anger overpowered Xander at the thought of Heronial Corporation.

Xander was a genius since young and rarely experienced failure. He grew up in the praises of others.

It was the first time he had ever competed with anyone and lost!

Now, that person was trying to snatch the person he liked.

Xander refused to allow that to happen.

He had to snatch Rosalie back! i

He believed with Rosalie by his side, they could research deeper into the medical field and dominate the industry.

What if it was the Lawrence family's empire? He felt he and Rosalie could also build their empire in medicine!

Rosalie had no idea about the little boys meddling with Wendy's issue.

The following day, after waking up, Rosalie immediately looked at the comments online.

All she saw was the announcement by Byron last night still hanging on the top of the list, and all the trending topics from yesterday had been removed. Even the comments beneath the post had been removed.

That was the end of the matter.

Rosalie was finally relieved to see that.

She got up and went to prepare breakfast for the little ones.

Suddenly, she received a call from Xander.

Rosalie thought it was about the project and picked up immediately." Young Master Xander, what's wrong?"

She thought her reputation had affected the project and sounded remorseful.

Xander's voice from the other end of the call sounded concerned. "Are you okay? I saw the comments on the internet yesterday and wanted to visit you, but I wasn't free. So, I thought of calling you to ask if you're alright now."

Startled but touched, Rosalie said, "Young Master Xander, thank you for your concern. I'm fine, and this matter is over. I'm just afraid it might affect our project."

Xander smiled and said, "It's great to hear you're fine. I'm taking care of the project. You don't have to worry about it."

Rosalie felt grateful and thanked him. "I've had enough rest thanks to you. I'll be back at work next week."

"Don't worry. That's not why I called you."

Xander suddenly said something weird, "I thought your mood might be bad after what happened yesterday. So, I wanted to ask you if you'd like to go out?"

That sounded ambiguous.

Rosalie frowned and refused without hesitation. "No..."

Before she could finish speaking, 'You don't have to refuse me. This outing is not only to lift your mood. It's mainly because the Lancer family is organizing another free clinic, and Grandpa wants me to take you along and teach you some of the Lancer family's medical skills."

Since Xander had mentioned Old Master Lancer, it would be difficult for Rosalie to reject his invitation.

Moreover, Rosalie was moved because he mentioned teaching her the Lancer family's medical skills.

"There's a nursing home in Hino. The person in charge took away all the funds, leaving a group of helpless old people and a few compassionate staff behind. Although the employees are kind enough to care for the elderly, they have no financial support. Many of the elderly there are facing health problems, and some starved to death. The remaining old people are suffering from illness."

Xander introduced the situation of the free clinic, "So, the task of the free clinic is very heavy. The Lancer family is sending all the doctors there, and everyone is heading to Hiro to treat the elderly. My grandpa recognizes your medical skills. He asked me to take you along."

As if afraid Rosalie would hesitate, he added, 'This free clinic will take a long time. We'll stay in Hiro for two days. If you don't have time, I won't force you. After all, you have children to take care of."

Rosalie knew she could learn the Lancer family's medical skills if she made this trip. She also heard that the elderly were seriously ill. She would accept that invitation for sure. "Okay, I'll be there on time!"

A glint of pleasure flashed through Xander's eyes. "I'll wait for you, then." Rosalie agreed without hesitation.

After hanging up the call, Rosalie headed upstairs to call the kids for breakfast.

Estelle was still in her bedroom, asleep on the big bed.

Rosalie woke up the little girl first and took her to the bathroom to wash up. Then, she knocked on Lucian and Nox's door.

The two little boys got up early and looked at comments on the internet together.

Seeing that the posts were deleted, the little ones admired their dad's efficiency in dealing with things more.

'After this, don't you dare say anything bad about Mommy on the internet!'

Hearing the noise at the bedroom door, the little ones were shocked. They quickly closed the laptop and ran to open the door.

"Are you awake? Come downstairs and have breakfast."

Rosalie smiled, relieved to see that the little ones had finished washing up.

The little ones nodded, closed the bedroom door, and followed their mother downstairs.

"Mommy is going on a business trip for a few days tomorrow. I'll ask Linda to take care of you. You need to listen to her, and you can't wander around yourself, okay?"

During the meal, Rosalie mentioned to the kids that she was going on a business trip.

Hearing this, the little ones immediately lost their appetite.

"Mommy, are you going on a business trip? Can't you take us with you?"

Their mommy had not been to work for a long time and had been staying home with them.

The little ones did not like the idea of their mommy leaving them for a few days as soon as she returned to work.

Estelle was reluctant too. "Mommy, take Estie with you! Estie doesn't want to separate from Mommy!"

The little girl felt insecure because she would have to separate from her mommy just after getting along with her for a few days.

Rosalie noticed Estelle's uneasy feeling and felt sorry for her.

However, she thought about the intensity of her work if she went, and she might neglect the kids. Thus, she might as well let them stay at home.

Rosalie still refused. "Mommy's work is hectic. If you all miss me, you can call me, okay? I'll answer it when I see it!"

Estelle was still reluctant to give up. She turned around and looked at her brothers, hoping they could say something.

Lucian and Nox also felt sorry for their sister, but they knew how busy Mommy's work was.

When they were abroad, their mommy would be away occasionally and leave them to Linda.

"Estie, be a good girl. Linda is a nice person. She'll take good care of us. Mommy will be back soon."

Lucian patted Estelle's arm, trying to comfort her.

Estelle puffed her cheeks unhappily and continued having her breakfast.

Lucian looked at his mommy. "Mommy, what will you be doing on this business trip?"

Rosalie did not plan to hide anything from them. She told them everything Xander told her, focusing on how bad the conditions of the nursing home were and how she might not be able to care for the kids if she brought them along as she would be too busy.

The little boys nodded when they heard their mommy was going to a free clinic. "The situation of the elderly there sounds sad. Mommy, promise us you'll cure them. We'll wait for you at home obediently!"

Estelle also said, "Estie will wait for Mommy to come back home obediently!"

Seeing the little ones so sensible, Rosalie was relieved. 'Thank you. I'll solve the problem there as soon as possible and come back to accompany you.'

The kids obediently ate and served food on Rosalie's plate from time to time.

It was a harmonious breakfast.

After breakfast, Rosalie thought of taking the kids out to play again.

Lucian and Nox refused. "Mommy, we're tired after the outing yesterday and want to rest at home today. You have to go on a work trip tomorrow, and Estie would want to spend more time with you too."

Estelle did not know why her brothers suggested that, but she did want to spend more time with her mommy.

The little girl nodded and agreed without hesitation, "Mommy, let's play together at home!"

Rosalie did not insist on going out since the kids said so. "I need to clean up the kitchen. You guys play for a while."

Lucian and Nox nodded as they took Estelle upstairs.

The three little ones went straight into the bedroom.

As soon as they entered, Lucian and Nox gave the little girl a toy.

"Lucian and I want to watch the stock market for a while. Estie, why don't you play with the toy for a while?"

Nox was like a small adult and arranged something for Estelle to do in his cute voice.

Estelle was forced to hold the doll, and she wanted to protest.

However, her two brothers were already whispering.

“Mommy said she’s going to a free clinic. She must be going out with Uncle Xander again!”

Nox looked worried.

Lucian also said thoughtfully, “However, Mommy is going to help those old people. We can’t stop her from going.”

The little boy still felt that the old people’s illnesses were more important than Daddy and Mommy getting back together!

Nox pouted his lips when he heard what Lucian said. “I know, but... what if Mommy changes her mind during the free clinic?”

Uncle Xander had given flowers to their mommy, after all!

The little one was worried about what Uncle Xander would do when the two were alone. What if Mommy was touched and changed her decision because of him?

In that case, they would lose their daddy.

Lucian’s forehead puckered, and he pondered.

Indeed, what Nox said was also something they should worry about.

They could not leave Mommy alone with Uncle Xander.

“We can’t stop Mommy, but we can tell Daddy about it.”

After a long time, Lucian suggested seriously.

Nox’s eyes lit up in joy.

If they told Daddy about it, Daddy would think of something.

With that in mind, the little boy heaved a sigh of relief, took out his smartwatch, and decided to text his dad.

“Lucian, Nox, what are you talking about? I’m bored!”

Estelle held the doll in her arms and approached them in grief.

She was unsure if she was thinking too much or if her brothers had started talking about things behind her back since they found out she was their sister.

They used to whisper and plan things together back then!

The little girl was unhappy about this.

Nox felt guilty upon hearing Estelle's voice and smiled mysteriously at her." Nothing. It's about the stock market. You're still young and haven't gotten exposed to these matters yet. We're worried you might feel bored listening to us discuss it. That's why we're talking about it without asking you to join us."

The little boy forced himself to come up with a lie to deceive Estelle.

Looking at Estelle's innocent face made Nox feel even guiltier and look away. He was afraid he might blurt everything out.

They could not tell Estelle that her daddy was theirs too.

Estelle would not hesitate to tell her daddy about it.

Mommy would be so mad at them if she knew!

The little ones had to discuss it behind their sister's back.

Estelle felt it sounded convincing and nodded her head innocently.

It was true that she did not know anything about the stock market, and it did not sound interesting to her.

"Quickly finish discussing and play with Estie, then!"

Estelle urged in her cute voice.

Nox felt guilty and nodded.

Watching Estelle heading to her bed, Nox quickly took his smartwatch and sent a message to their daddy.

Byron received the message and knew Rosalie was going to a free clinic with Xander. The feeling of displeasure rose in him. i

However, he could not bear to stop Rosalie from going.

He was also reluctant to keep the feeling in him and say nothing.

After pondering, Byron called Andrius and blamed him for telling Rosalie about the Lancer family's free clinic back then, giving her a chance to get to know Xander.

Andrius was speechless when he heard Byron's complaint. "Hey! I did that to help you keep your wife in the country. Your dear wife would've left the country if it were not for the Lancer family's project!"

He stopped calling Rosalie 'Miss Jacobs' when he knew Byron had broken off his engagement with Wendy.

John was happy to hear Rosalie being called his wife, and he sounded less displeased.

"Anyway, they know each other, and your act has brought them together. I'm still in the process of winning Rosalie's heart, yet she's going on a free clinic trip with Xander. I can't stop her or say anything. Otherwise, she might say I'm taking away her freedom. What do you think I should do?"

Startled for a few seconds, Andrius finally realized why Byron called him."

Why couldn't you just tell me you wanted me to give you some advice?"

Byron did not deny it and said, "Yes. So, do you have anything in mind?"

Andrius did not have any ideas.

That was a matter between the two of them. He, as an outsider, could not meddle with it.

Moreover, it had already been proven when his old tricks did not work.

The person who managed to win Rosalie's heart in the end was Byron himself.

However, Byron came looking for him just to vent his anger.

He could only bear with it and think of a way for Byron...

After a while, Andrius asked tentatively, "You can't stop her from going, and you're worried about her spending time alone with Xander, right?"

Byron answered, "Mm."

Andrius said, "Why don't you... go with your wife, then? You can decide where you want to be. She can't stop you."

There was no response from the other end of the call.

Andrius thought Byron was dissatisfied with the proposal and wanted to suggest something else. Just as he wanted to speak, he noticed that the person on the other end had cut off the call.

He could only sigh as he thought.

'When exactly are they going to get together?

'When can I stop being a tool to get them together?'

Meanwhile, Byron was in the president's office of the Lawrence Corporation.

Luther looked at Byron in a puzzle. "Sir, are you sure you want to check the accounts in Hiro personally?"

Byron nodded decisively. "What's the problem with that?"

Luther was speechless.

He had just been called in by Byron, who said he would examine the accounts of a branch office in Hiro.

However, it was always the treasurer in the headquarters who would go and check on them. Byron did not need to go himself.

He could not see the point of Byron going there, especially when the headquarters needed his presence more than the branch office.

However, he could say nothing since Byron had already decided.

"Also, I'll be there for a few days. Postpone all the other schedules," Byron said calmly.

Luther could only nod and take the order.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1366–We Can Pass Your Words

The following day.

Linda arrived just in time when Rosalie was having breakfast with the kids.

“Miss Linda!”

Lucian and Nox greeted Linda enthusiastically upon seeing her.

When they were abroad, Linda took care of them when their mommy was busy with her work.

To them, Linda was like Mary. She was kind of like their godmother.

Linda was also enthusiastic when she greeted them, “Sweethearts, long time no see!”

After hugging Lucian and Nox, Linda looked at Estie behind the two little boys.

Estelle seemed a little shy before someone she had just met.

“Are you Estie?” Linda held out her hand and smiled gently. “Hello, I’m Miss Linda, your mommy’s assistant. I’ll be taking care of you these two days.”

Estelle looked at her mommy and her brothers.

When they all beckoned her to respond, she slowly stretched out her hand and shook Linda’s hand.

Linda knew what was happening and did not force her to say anything.

After shaking hands, she let go and looked up at Rosalie.

“How are things in the institute?” Rosalie asked with concern.

After the uproar had died down, she became busy preparing for the free clinic. Thinking Linda would be here today, she waited until now to ask.

Linda smiled. “Everything has almost been solved. Many business partners who proposed to cancel the contract before have come back to cooperate with us. What do you think about it?”

Rosalie hesitated for a few seconds. “Continue with the cooperation.

Those business partners are only after benefits. We can’t expect too much from them.”

In the past, the business partners had asked to terminate their contracts because public opinion could harm their interests.

After all, they had no personal relationship, and Rosalie had no reason to ask them to trust the institute.

It was the nature of businessmen to seek advantages and avoid disadvantages, i

Linda was not surprised by her answer and simply agreed.

“I don’t know how long I’ll be on my work trip this time. I’ll have trouble you again with the children and the research institute.”

Rosalie sounded apologetic.

Linda shook her head. “Working in the research institute is my job, and I love the kids. They’re obedient and cute.”

Lucian and Nox agreed with that and nodded.

They had always been nice to Linda.

Rosalie smiled and touched the heads of the little ones. “When I’m away, you must listen to Miss Linda and not trouble her, okay?”

The kids agreed obediently.

After talking to Linda and the children, Rosalie looked at the time and knew she had to leave.

“I’ll leave now. Be good boys and girl, okay?”

Rosalie dragged the suitcase and decided to leave.

Nox was a little anxious when his mommy was leaving as his daddy was not here yet.

“Mommy!”

In desperation, the little boy stopped Rosalie.

Nox looked at his brother and sister. They did not look like they were about to speak.

After a while, the little boy said, “You gave us so many reminders. Do you have anything to tell Mr. Byron? We can pass your words to him!” 2 Rosalie suddenly remembered something and frowned slightly.

In the past, Rosalie did not care about telling Byron if she was going on a work trip.

However, she was still going on a work trip with Xander even when she knew Byron hated Xander. Thus, she felt she should tell him about it.

Over the past six years, she had gotten used to leaving anytime she wanted without caring about anyone else.

She would have forgotten if Nox had not reminded her.

Nox noticed the change on his mommy's face. He knew what he said had taken effect and looked at Rosalie with expectation. He prayed silently, hoping their daddy would be there soon.

Rosalie pondered for a while before taking out her phone to dial Byron's number.

Unexpectedly, just as she had found Byron's number in her contact list, she heard a honk outside the villa.

Rosalie seemed to know it was Byron and kept her phone before walking out of the house with her suitcase.

The Bentley pulled over at her doorway. Byron wore a grey shirt, and his cuffs were folded up. He casually got out of the car and headed toward them.

"Why are you here?"

Rosalie felt an indescribable feeling rising in her when she saw him approaching.

Byron looked at Rosalie's luggage and lifted his eyebrow. "What about you? Where are you going?"

Rosalie glanced at him and felt guilty when she remembered she was going on a work trip with Xander.

Before the children, she could not be so frank and said, "I am going to Hiro on a work trip and thought of letting you know, but you came in time."

With that, Byron took her suitcase.

Rosalie's brows furrowed, and she looked at him in a puzzle. 'What's going on?'

Byron carried her luggage into the car, and Rosalie followed him hesitantly.

Nox was relieved to see that his daddy had finally arrived. He made a grimace behind Rosalie and looked at Linda.

"Miss Linda, it's getting late. Please take us to the kindergarten!"

They should stop being third wheels there!

Linda glanced at the time and left with the kids in her car after letting Rosalie know.

Thus, only Rosalie and Byron were left there.

When she saw him putting her suitcase in his car boot, Rosalie still did not know what Byron was up to. "It's getting late. We'll talk about it later when we reach Hiro."

Byron turned around and looked at her. Then, he grabbed her wrist and stuffed her in the passenger seat.

Rosalie entered the passenger seat bewilderedly and saw Byron getting into the car.

"I came to greet you. Also, I happen to have something to deal with in Hiro. Since we're going to the same place, let's go together."

Byron said calmly and did not give Rosalie any chance. He started the car engine.

Soon, the car slowly drove away from the villa door.

Rosalie sat in the passenger seat, thinking of what Byron had just said. She found it strange.

How could such a coincidence occur?

Before that, Byron had never mentioned going to Hiro.

However, Byron did not know she was going to Hiro before this either.

Rosalie looked through the rearview mirror. Byron was focused on driving and did not look like he was lying.

When Rosalie realized what she was thinking, she could not help but wonder why she would have such a thought.

Why would she think Byron was lying?

What was worth lying about?

Byron's car gradually drove up the highway.

Rosalie still found it strange and finally could not suppress her urge to ask.

"Are you going to Hiro because of work?"

Byron focused on the road, but he nodded when he heard her question." There are some account problems in the branch in Hiro that need to be checked."

Doubtful of that answer, Rosalie asked, "Do you need to go personally?"

Although she did not have much experience in business, she felt it was not necessary for the company's president to check on the problem with the accounts personally.

"The person in charge over there is a member of the Lawrence family. If we send someone over, we may be unable to overpower them, so I have to go there myself."

Rosalie finally believed him, and it changed her perception of Byron.

She had always thought that all he needed to do was sit in an office and come up with strategies.

Unexpectedly, the company had so many trifles that he needed to worry over.

"What about you? Why do you have to go on a work trip so suddenly when you've just recovered?"

Byron looked at her, questioning Rosalie, but Rosalie did not realize it.

Facing the man's query, Rosalie felt a little guilty after snapping out of her thought.

She had been ready to tell him the truth.

However, when she was sitting by his side, she did not know how to tell him.

4f| If

Rosalie hesitated for a moment before avoiding mentioning Xander as she said, 'There are some problems in a nursing home in Hiro, and I'm going to give free medical treatment to the elderly there.'

"Free clinic?" Byron asked intentionally, "With whom? Did your research institute organize it?"

Rosalie looked away guiltily. "No. It's Lancer Corporation. Young Master Xander called me yesterday morning and asked me if I wanted to go."

Subconsciously, Rosalie explained, "Young Master Xander told me that the situation in the nursing home is serious. Moreover, I can learn the Lancer family's medical skills through the free clinic, so..."

As she spoke, she observed Byron's expression through the rearview mirror.

She thought Byron would be upset to know that she was going on a work trip with Xander.

Unexpectedly, Byron's expression carried no anger. He nodded in agreement. "Since the elderly's condition is serious, you should go and help them. Take care of yourself and remember to rest well."

Surprised, Rosalie asked, "You have nothing else to say?"

All she saw was Byron frowning and looking puzzled.

Realizing what she said, Rosalie regretted it and knew she could not take back her words.

It was a long while before Byron's voice sounded again in the car.

"I've nothing else to say. Saving people is part of your job, and I can't decide who your work partner is. Xander is an outstanding doctor, and it's fine if you're happy with your cooperation with him. I believe you have no other feelings for him."

Recalling Byron's discriminatory attitude toward Xander and listening to him saying this made Rosalie feel everything was like a dream.

In her amazement, she did not notice Byron was clenching the steering wheel when he spoke.

Obviously, they were not his real thoughts.

It was quiet again in the car.

Byron thought Rosalie would comfort him or explain after his generous words.

However, Rosalie said nothing for some time.

Anger almost overpowered Byron, but he had just said those things and could only endure the wrath.

Fortunately, Nox told him about it in time.

Otherwise, the thought of Rosalie taking for granted her working with Xander made him angry.

‘You can also take this free clinic as a trip away from the incident before.’

Byron said something he did not mean to say, ‘The comments on the internet in the past two days must have caused a great impact on you. It’s my fault. I originally planned to take you on a trip when I returned from a business trip, but this free clinic seems a good opportunity.’

Rosalie snapped out of her thought. Something struck her, and she said, ‘I’m sorry to trouble you because of the comments.’

Byron frowned. ‘It’s because of me that you were wronged. I should apologize to you.’

Rosalie hesitated and continued. ‘Even so, I should be the one filing a lawsuit against those who criticized me. I’m afraid everyone will misunderstand your actions...’

She was afraid everyone would misunderstand that they were married.

That was precisely what Byron wanted.

Puzzled, Byron asked, ‘What misunderstanding would it cause?’

Feeling helpless, Rosalie looked at him and said nothing.

The man knew exactly what she meant, but he pretended not to understand.

Byron could see through her thought, but he did not feel guilty. "Just let them misunderstand, then. Anyway, I don't wish anyone to offend my woman foolishly."

With that announcement, Byron could announce his relationship with Rosalie to the public, which pleased him.

He had no plans to remove that announcement anytime soon.

Rosalie knew she could not convince him. She could only let him be and take it as she had not mentioned it.

After driving on the highway for a while, Rosalie heard a sudden sound outside.

Then, the car jerked.

"It's a flat tire."

Byron looked at the dashboard and frowned, and his expression was serious. "Sit tight. I remember there's a highway exit ahead. We can hang on for a while."

He looked at the traffic before him and changed lanes to the slow lane.

It was a new experience for Rosalie, so it made her glance in the rearview mirror now and then. She was afraid of a rear-end collision or the tire bursting as the car might overturn.

Fortunately, their car was not fast, and they were close to the exit.

They got off the highway safely.

'You must have been scared.'

Byron pulled over by the roadside and looked at the woman beside him apologetically. 'The car was fine when we left. Maybe something pierced the tire.'

Rosalie's heart hammered until the car pulled over safely. She heaved a sigh of relief and said, "Fortunately, nothing serious happened, and we were near the exit."

Suddenly, something struck her. She looked at the time on her phone and was anxious. "I might not make it to the free clinic."

Byron said, "If you're in a hurry, wait here first. I'll have someone drive another car to take you there."

Subconsciously, Rosalie asked him, "What about you? Don't you have work to do in Hiro?"

Byron tapped on the steering wheel and said confidently, 'TH go repair the car. It shouldn't take long.'

Rosalie looked around them.

They were not even near the toll or any service area. No one was around, and the place looked deserted.

She could see no building nearby, not to mention a car repair workshop.

"Don't you have a spare tire?"

Rosalie asked, hoping they were lucky.

Byron frowned and answered, "I used it a while ago and forgot to put a new one back."

Feeling helpless, Rosalie looked at their surroundings.

No one would notice them there even if they had a car crash.

That thought made Rosalie feel uneasy.

'You shouldn't take any chances. I think it's a long way from the workshop, and the tire won't last that long. Why don't you call the service hotline and we'll wait here for them?'

1

She looked back and tried to advise Byron not to take the risk.

If they were together, they would at least have company.

Byron looked at the time. "You're going to wait with me? Aren't you in a hurry? The elderly in the nursing home need you to get there soon."

Rosalie hesitated when Byron mentioned the elderly there, but she still made up her mind.

"It doesn't matter. Young Master Xander and other doctors are at the nursing home. The elderly will be fine."

Byron nodded and took out his mobile phone to call the service hotline.

The two sat quietly in the car, waiting for the tow truck to arrive.

Rosalie took out her phone and texted Xander, telling him she might be late.

It was such a long way from town that the car from the service company finally arrived after a while.

Byron had asked someone to come along, and he got into the car in front of Rosalie. It took them to the town nearby.

The service workshop was far from the town, and they did not follow it.

Byron took Rosalie's suitcase from the car and asked her to wait. Then, he spoke to the mechanic before returning to Rosalie's side.

"What were you saying to them?"

Rosalie looked at them, bewildered.

Byron said, "I asked them to do a full car inspection to troubleshoot the faulty parts. I saw some other problems through the dashboard."

Rosalie did not think much about it. She felt the lingering fear even after the incident. "Fortunately, we're fine."

She felt that something seemed strange.

Byron rarely drove that car, and it was considered new. She could not understand why it would break down.

Her thoughts were almost written on her face.

Byron noticed it and reached out to hold her hand.

It interrupted her thought, and she was startled as she watched his hand approach hers.

'You...'

For a moment, she thought Byron was trying to hold her hand, and she was a little alarmed.

However, the man just took the suitcase from her hand and pushed it forward for her.

Rosalie felt relieved and delighted at the same time.

Fortunately, she bought a large black one for convenience purposes.

If she had bought pink, it would have been weird...

Byron walked in the front with the suitcase while Rosalie followed behind silently.

Occasionally, they would talk casually.

Rosalie's gaze fell on Byron's other empty hand.

Recalling how she had misunderstood Byron's intention, she thought that it was funny.
