My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1401—Rosalie's pupils quivered, and her voice sounded nervous. "When did you buy it?"

They were together the whole time in the mall just now. Rosalie did not see Byron buying any gifts.

Byron's brows furrowed, and he said helplessly, "I bought it when I went to put the stuff in the car. Unexpectedly, you lost your way when I was only a few minutes late."

Thinking of the woman's rare carelessness, Byron smirked teasingly.

Rosalie blushed slightly when Byron mentioned what had happened just now. Subconsciously, she lowered her head to avoid his gaze and saw the box on her seat.

Byron coaxed her, "Get into the car. It's getting late. It'll be dark when we arrive home if we don't leave now."

Rosalie nodded hesitantly and got into the car.

Byron also got in and started the car engine.

Rosalie sat in the passenger seat. She had the white box on her lap but did not open it.

Byron did not urge her either.

After driving out of the parking lot, Byron asked her, "Do you want to drop by the nursing home or go back straight?"

He knew Rosalie would be worried about the elderly and want to head to the nursing home.

Rosalie did not expect him to think of that. Worried, Rosalie hesitated before saying, "Please take me to the nursing home."

Byron nodded and headed straight to their destination.

Noticing Byron was familiar with the way, doubt rose in Rosalie, and she wondered.

She could not remember if she had told him the nursing home's address.

However, Byron seemed to know the way...

She did not dare to think further, afraid she might misunderstand Byron.

The car pulled over at the gate of the nursing home.

When Rosalie entered, the doctors were still busy. However, judging from their expressions, Rosalie could guess the elderly were in good condition.

She approached several doctors to understand the situation and confirm the elderly's health. Only then did she feel relieved.

Before she left, she met the elderly she had treated the day before.

Noticing that Xander was not with her, the elderly asked with concern, "Dr. Jacobs, why aren't you here with Dr. Lancer? Did you two quarrel?"

Rosalie, who had been smiling and bidding farewell, froze when she heard this. She turned around and helplessly explained to the old lady, "Madam, you might have misunderstood. Mr. Lancer and I are only colleagues..."

As she spoke, she felt someone behind her seemingly leaning closer.

The two had been more intimate than this, so Rosalie did not mind.

Unexpectedly, she saw the elderly's gazes changing from one of worry to amusement.

"Oh, so it is really a misunderstanding. Are you Dr. Jacobs' boyfriend?"

The old lady observed Byron and was satisfied. "Tall and handsome. Not bad. You seem to be a good match for Dr. Jacobs."

Rosalie wanted to explain.

However, when she recalled what had happened between her and Byron all these years, she could not deny that they were a couple.

The person behind her also smiled. He looked more gentle and friendly before the elderly and did not intend to deny it either.

Then, the old lady looked at Rosalie with concern and asked, "Is this young man also a doctor?"

"He's not," said Rosalie.

The old lady shook her head regretfully. "Dr. Lancer is better than him in this aspect. You don't have the same career. I'm afraid you won't have much to talk about with him..."

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1402–The old lady was sharing her experience.

Rosalie could feel the person behind her getting upset and displeased with the old lady's comment, so she quickly interrupted.

“Madam, come on. I'm here to check your condition. If you're alright, I'll need to head back home. We'll visit you again someday.”

The elderly had chatted with Rosalie all day yesterday. Thus, they knew she needed to return to Ocean City and stopped speaking. Instead, they quickly asked Rosalie to carry on with her journey back because it would be dark soon.

Rosalie was still worried about Byron getting upset when they left the nursing home.

Byron was walking behind her and still seemed to care about what the old lady had just said. Rosalie could sense his moody gaze on her.

“Ahem...” Rosalie had to comfort him by saying, “Don't take that madam's words just now to heart. I really have nothing to do with Young Master Xander.”

Byron glanced at her. “Do you talk to him a lot?”

Rosalie explained seriously, “We only talk about some medical things, nothing else.”

She and Xander knew each other because of medicine. All they could talk about were medicine and nothing else.

It was also impossible for her to have any feelings for him after only discussing with him about work.

Byron's expression was not as gloomy as before anymore.

They returned to the car.

Rosalie still had the box on her lap and did not intend to open it.

“Why aren't you opening it? Don't you like it?” Byron started the car engine and glanced at Rosalie.

Rosalie shook her head. "No, I just want to go back and open it."

She was too shy to open his present in front of him, especially when she had no idea what he had bought for her.

Byron seemed disappointed to hear her answer, but he did not force her to open it either.

It was almost dusk when they were back at Ocean City.

Byron drove Rosalie straight back to the villa.

The three little ones were running around in the living room with Linda.

Hearing the noise in the yard, the little ones turned and ran out toward the door.

"Mommy! Daddy!"

Estelle, who had missed Rosalie so much, ran and hugged Rosalie as she stared at Rosalie's face.

Rosalie smiled and touched the little girl's hair as she asked, "Did you miss me?"

Estelle nodded and answered in a squeaky voice, "Estie missed you so much! Miss Linda even suggested video calling you later!"

Lucian and Nox stood by Estelle obediently, and they hesitated about who to approach first.

Since Estelle was with their mommy, they decided to approach Daddy.

However, the little boys were not used to getting close to Byron and carefully stared at him from a distance.

As if Byron had noticed their intentions, the little ones saw Byron smiling and approaching them.

'Your mommy has bought you a lot of presents. Come and help me carry them inside.'

Byron touched the kids' hair and opened the trunk.

A trunk full of presents was presented to the little ones.

Lucian and Nox were overjoyed when Byron touched their heads. Their happiness was overloaded when they saw the gifts. With excitement, they approached Byron and helped him.

Byron took the items out of the trunk and handed them to the boys. Meanwhile, the little ones carried the things into the villa carefully.

Rosalie was amused to see Byron asking the boys to carry the things and the excited looks on the little ones' faces.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1403—The little boys enjoyed working as 'laborers' for their daddy but were a little slow.

Rosalie observed for a while and decided to help.

Soon, all the items in the car were taken into the villa.

Estelle had nothing to do and helped unload the things from the car. When she got out of the car, she saw the white box on the front passenger seat.

Curiously, Estelle took the box down and asked Rosalie in her cute voice with the box lifted above her head. "Mommy, what's this?"

Everyone looked at the little girl upon hearing her voice.

Rosalie glanced at the box and subconsciously looked at Byron.

The man just stood by as if the box had nothing to do with him.

Estelle did not get an answer, and the adults did not say she could not open it. Thus, Estelle opened it curiously.

By the time Rosalie saw it, Estelle had taken out the content.

"It's beautiful!"

Estelle took the necklace and went on her tiptoes to reach Rosalie's neck." Did Daddy buy you this, Mommy?"

Rosalie looked at Estelle's hand and saw that it was a platinum necklace with a small diamond. It was elegant and simple at the same time.

Lucian and Nox heard it was a gift from Daddy to Mommy and came over to look at it curiously.

When they saw it was a necklace, the little ones looked at each other and quipped, "Mr. Byron, help Mommy put on the necklace! Mommy will look good in this."

Subconsciously, Rosalie took a step back and looked at the man ahead embarrassedly.
2

It was embarrassing enough to open the gift in front of Byron. Now, the kids were even asking Byron to put it on for her. 2

"Daddy!"

Estelle had already grabbed the necklace and handed it to Byron while looking at him with expectations.

Byron touched the little girl's head and took the necklace. Then, he approached Rosalie.

Subconsciously, Rosalie backed away, but she could not reject him in front of the kids.
1

She could only watch helplessly as Byron walked toward her.

The three little ones gathered around them with anticipation.

He looked at her gently and said, "Since the children want to see it, let's just fulfill their wish."

Byron made it sound like he was reluctant.

Rosalie had given up struggling and looked at the kids' eyes that were sparkling with excitement.

Knowing that the little ones would not give up if they did not cooperate, Rosalie could only lower her head and reveal her fair neck.

Soon, she saw the man's hands approaching her, and his warm and minty scent assailed her nose.

It made Rosalie tense up.

She could feel the tingle on her neck caused by the cuff of Byron's suit.

After a while, the man stepped back, and Rosalie felt a cold sensation on her neck.

The necklace was on her.

Rosalie was relieved. After adjusting her feelings and calming herself down, she lifted her head slowly.

Unexpectedly, the little ones had already seen her expression when she lowered her head.

As soon as Rosalie looked up, she heard a cute voice speaking.

“Mommy, did you blush just now?”

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1404—Rosalie’s calm heartbeat hammered again upon hearing the children’s question.

Byron’s voice sounded, and he seemed to be happy. “Do you like it? I didn’t know what to buy, and the promoter suggested I buy this. I happened to think that this necklace would suit you too.”

That gave Rosalie just enough reason to avoid looking at Byron.

Rosalie turned around and looked at the necklace through the side mirror.

The thin platinum necklace was draped over her neck, and the pendant was a simple circle with a small diamond around it. The pendant was between her collarbones, making her look elegant.

Even she was a little stunned.

Byron was behind her suddenly, and he asked again, “How is it?”

Rosalie snapped out of her astonishment and smiled at him as she turned around. “It’s beautiful, and I like it, Pre-“

She almost called him President Lawrence habitually. However, recalling their ambiguous relationship, Rosalie paused and said, “Thank you. It’s very nice of you to buy me this.”

Byron noticed she was about to address him formally and was a little disappointed, but he mentioned nothing about it.

The three little ones gathered around Rosalie and talked.

“Mommy is so pretty!”

“The necklace really suits Mommy well! It looks so much better when Mommy has it on!”

“Mr. Byron has good taste!”

Rosalie was shy, yet she kept calm and smiled at the kids. “Mommy bought you guys presents. Haven’t you guys seen them yet? Why don’t we go and take a look at them?”

The kids were excited to see their gifts and cheered as they followed Rosalie into the villa.

The living room was lively with the little ones’ cheers as they opened the gifts with Rosalie.

Seeing the children liking the gifts so much, Rosalie was delighted.

For a moment, the atmosphere in the living room was joyous.

Byron stood aside and watched Rosalie wearing his necklace and the kids laughing. He could not help imagining Rosalie putting a wedding ring on her finger.

He wondered how long the woman would keep him waiting...

Just as his mind wandered, the voices of the little ones sounded.

“Daddy, look! Estie is wearing the same clothes as Lucian and Nox!”

Estelle sounded excited.

Byron looked at the kids and noticed they were wearing the T-shirts and short pants Rosalie bought.

She bought bright colors that both boys and girls could wear.

The little ones, who were dressed in identical clothes, looked up at him.

For a moment, Byron felt that the three faces looked almost alike.

However, that feeling disappeared as soon as the little ones lowered their heads.

Only Estelle was looking at him as she tugged on his shirt. “Estie wants to take a photo!”

Before, when Byron was taking care of Estelle, he seldom took photos of Estelle. Most of the photographs of Estelle at home were shot by Melody when she visited.

However, after spending a lot of time with Rosalie, the little girl started wanting to take photos from time to time. Perhaps it was because Rosalie's habit of taking photos had influenced her.

That was an easy request, so Byron agreed readily. He took out his phone and took photos of the kids.

Byron had driven Rosalie to her business trip, bought presents, and helped her take things into the villa. Thus, Rosalie naturally invited him to dinner.

After dinner, he played with the kids for a while before deciding to head back home.

“It's getting late. I might have to leave now. Estie...”

Before finishing his sentence, he heard the little girl protesting, “Estie wants to be with Mommy!”

Byron glanced at Estelle and continued. “Estie can stay at your place for now. If you're busy, let me know and I can take the children to my place.”

Lucian's and Nox's eyes lit up in excitement.

They were smart enough to catch the point in Byron's words.

Their daddy said 'children,' so that included them.

They could not call him 'Daddy,' but he had already taken them as his kids.

The little ones' hearts were filled with joy when they realized this.

Estelle was delighted and satisfied to hear she could stay with her mommy.

Rosalie caressed Estelle's face and agreed with a smile. "I'll take good care of Estie."

Byron smiled. "I know."

Even if she did nothing and just stayed with Estelle, the little girl would already be delighted.

Byron headed straight back to the manor once he left Rosalie's place.

As soon as he entered the house, he saw Melody in the living room, looking upset.

"Why are you here?"

Byron's smile faded, and he sat expressionlessly on the single sofa opposite his mother.

Hearing her son's question, Melody's eyebrows furrowed. "Can't I visit? I'm Estie's grandma. Is there any problem with me visiting my granddaughter?"

Byron glanced at her and said, "Estie isn't at home. She's at her mommy's place."

He spoke as if he and Rosalie were just a couple in a loving relationship temporarily separated from each other.

Melody was even more displeased now.

'We worked so hard to raise Estie. That woman hasn't cared about Estie since she gave birth to her. I've done you a favor by promising to let Estie acknowledge her as her mother, but you even sent Estie there? What are you trying to do?"

To her, Estelle had grown up healthy and obedient not because of Rosalie.

No matter how nice Rosalie was to Estelle, it was pointless since she had not taken care of Estelle when Estelle needed her the most.

Byron frowned. "Rosie is Estie's mother. Moreover, there was a misunderstanding back then, and I believe you've heard of it. Rosie thought Estie was dead."

Melody snorted. "Who knows if what she said is true? I won't be surprised by Rosalie's excuses now since she dumped Estie back then."

Byron felt his mother was being unreasonable.

Melody knew her son would be unhappy with her saying that. Hence, she tried to put her words differently.

“Besides, I grew up watching Estie. Won't I, as her grandmother, miss her? What should I do if I miss Estie if you leave Estie in that Jacobs woman's place?”

Displeased, Byron retorted, “You've visited Estie so many times since she was born. It makes no difference visiting her one time lesser. Her illness is stabilized now, and she needs Rosie. It'd be better if you don't visit Estie because she'll recover better without you.”

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1406—“What do you mean?!”

Melody could not contain her annoyance when she heard her son say that about herself.

“That woman is Estie's biological mother, but I'm still Estie's grandmother! How would I trigger her emotions just by coming to see her? Yes, I used the wrong way to educate Estie some time ago, but I've already apologized and promised that it'll never happen again!”

Byron got a headache from her incessant yelling and pressed his temples with his fingers. “You know it's your fault that the relationship between you and Estie has become like this.”

Although he did not know what his mother had done to Estie to make the little one reject her so suddenly, after what happened with Wendy, Byron realized that it was important to follow Little Estie's wishes.

In regards to the people Estie rejected, Byron would try his best to keep them away from her life-unless Estie offered to forgive.

Melody was shunned by Byron's words, and her face turned ugly. She lowered her voice. “No matter what, I'll never harm Estie!”

Byron nodded in agreement. “Indeed, you'll never harm her, but you're still impatient. If you have Estie's best interest at heart, then you should understand what Estie needs most now.”

How could Melody not know?

That little one could not wait to tag along with that woman wherever she went!

Melody was very unhappy because of that.

Suddenly, she remembered something, and her expression changed. She put away all her anger.

“If you don’t want me to take care of Estie, then let’s talk about the Fullers.”

Now that his mother wanted to talk about the Fuller family again, Byron’s expression darkened. “What do you want to say?”

Melody’s expression was a little rigid, and her tone was full of disapproval.” Aren’t you going too far with the Fullers? Old Master Fuller was your benefactor, and our two families have been connected for so many years. It’s fine if you just teach them a little lesson, but are you planning to end them completely right now?”

Byron responded without changing his expression, “They asked for it.”

Melody frowned. “They made a mistake, but if you target them like this, outsiders will only feel that we, the Lawrences, are unreasonable. Who will dare to cooperate with us in the future? You’ve already broken off the engagement with Wendy. She won’t hurt Estie anymore. That’s enough!”

Not to mention that she planned to make Wendy an obedient puppet in the future.

Even if it was not Wendy, everyone had seen what Lawrence Corporation had done to the Fullers. Who would dare to offer their daughter to Byron for marriage?

The more Melody thought about it, the more worried she became. She came here just to talk to Byron about it.

Byron’s face sank hearing his mother was still pleading for the Fuller family. “Since the Fullers dared to attack Estie, they should have thought about whether they could bear my anger. To me, this is just a little lesson. It’s not enough!”

Even Melody could not help trembling in the face of her son’s anger.

Even so, she still persisted. “Wendy had waited for you for so many years. She was sincere to you, but she used the wrong method-“

Before she could even finish, Byron coldly interrupted her, “Don’t ever mention that evil-hearted woman in front of me anymore. If you came here today just to talk to me about this matter, you can go back now. I’m tired and need to rest.”

With that, Byron got up and went upstairs without giving Melody another chance to speak.

Melody was speechless from her son's firm attitude.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1407—That night, after Andrius received a message from Byron, he did not sleep well all night.

Early the next morning, Andrius strode into Lawrence Manor at dawn.

“Master Quirke,” Mrs. Zora greeted him respectfully.

Andrius nodded hastily. ‘Where’s Master Byron?’

Mrs. Zora said, “He went to the study right after his meal.”

Hearing this, Andrius nodded at Mrs. Zora and headed quickly to the study.

He had to ask Byron what yesterday’s news truly meant. Otherwise, he would be too worried!

At the study’s door, Andrius was about to raise his hand to knock when the door opened from the inside.

“Why are you here?”

Byron looked at the person in front of him indifferently, retreated, and turned around to lead his buddy into the study.

Andrius choked up.

‘Why am I here? I want to ask Byron why he sent me that message last night!

‘I don’t mind being his tool on the daily, but he just handed me a grenade in the middle of the night! I couldn’t even sleep well!’

“Buddy, why are you being unreasonable?”

Andrius sat down opposite Byron with great frustration. “Why are you throwing the Fullers’ mess to me? Even if the Fuller family is kicked around by everyone, the Quirke family shouldn’t be the one to overthrow them, right?”

Before the engagement between the Lawrence family and the Fuller family was annulled, the Quirke, Fuller, and Lawrence families were known to have a close relationship.

If the Quirke family was eager to take advantage of the Fuller family in this situation as soon as the two families fell out, outsiders would find it a bit unkind.

Although Andrius did not agree with Wendy's actions, he still had to consider things for the Quirke family's sake!

Byron raised his brows slightly and looked at him incredulously. "It's not you who was engaged to Wendy, or do you have some sort of feelings for her?"

Andrius was shocked at what his buddy said. "Me? Have feelings for that woman? No thanks!"

He would rather avoid her at all costs!

Byron pulled his lips deeply. "Then, all is well, right? The Quirke family and the Lawrence family have always been close. Now that the Lawrence family and the Fuller family have turned against each other, the Quirke family will have to take sides sooner or later."

Andrius was a little moved by what he said but frowned without refuting.

Byron continued. "Besides, the Quirkes and the Fullers are both in the pharmaceutical industry. Now, the Fuller family is down. The most suitable one to annex their business is the Quirke family. The Quirkes can also take this opportunity to advance further."

Byron's every word spoke to his heart.

The wavering in Andrius' eyes became increasingly obvious.

The reason why he did not sleep well last night was that he was weighing things in his heart.

'If the Quirke family does take this opportunity to eat away at the Fuller family's assets, it would have quite a negative impact on our external image.

'But this negative impact is nothing compared to the expansion of the Quirke family.

'What's more, just like what Byron said, the relationship between the Quirke family and the Fuller family was originally established due to the Lawrence family.

'Now that the Lawrence family has turned against the Fuller family, there's no need for the Quirke family to maintain that superficial relationship.'

Thinking of this, Andrius finally made up his mind. "I got it. Leave Fuller Industries to me."

He had nothing to hesitate about at all!

Byron smiled a little at his buddy's comprehension. "During this time, you've given me many ideas. Fuller Industries is my repayment to you."

Declare Bankruptcy

Andrius rolled his eyes in his heart upon hearing this. 'Am I not the one who has to do the acquisition?'

With the Fuller family's current situation, they had no capacity to fight back at all. This was just a free pass.

Byron looked at him inscrutably.

Andrius felt guilty when he saw that, so he changed the subject and asked about the current situation between him and Rosalie.

"How are you and the missus doing now? You both just went out. Is there no progress at all?"

He had been working hard on this plan for a long time.

If there really was no progress, Andrius would feel tired for Rosalie!

Speaking of what happened in Hino, that night of passion lingered long in Byron's head, and his eyes darkened with a slight smirk.

Andrius watched his buddy's expression change but could not guess what it meant, so he stared at him in puzzlement.

"Hey take it easy, buddy! Don't give me that smile. I'm not the missus!"

After he spoke, Byron put away his thoughts, and his expression became indifferent again. "Well, not bad, thanks to your idea."

This was Byron's acknowledgment.

Andrius still did not give up and wanted a clearer answer. "What do you mean by not bad? What stage of development have you both reached?"

Based on his understanding, the relationship between Byron and Rosalie was so tense before. Even if they just held hands, it would be considered good.

Byron just smiled silently.

Andrius stared at him for a long while and guessed that the two must be making rapid progress. Otherwise, his buddy would not have such an expression.

Realizing this, Andrius was relieved.

'It's really worth all my hard work to come up with so many ideas!'

Andrius noticed that Byron did not seem keen to say more, so he tacitly stopped asking.

The two discussed the Fuller family's resources again.

Although Andrius had decided to acquire their businesses, he still needed to be careful.

After the discussion was over, Andrius got up and left. He went directly to Quirke Corporation.

That afternoon, the situation became more serious for the Fuller family who was already in a precarious situation.

Even when Henry Fuller had given up most of the shares in his hand, he still had to clean up his own mess.

As Fuller Industries's shares crashed, shareholders complained, so the family had to lower the share price repeatedly.

Unexpectedly, several branches were required to be delisted and liquidated because the share price was too low.

The Fuller family had no choice but to cut their losses.

The rest of the Fullers who had their livelihoods tied to those companies were dissatisfied with the troubles Henry's family had brought. As they watched their own companies face bankruptcy, they almost barged into Henry's house. They wanted an explanation from him.

Henry was busy trying to put out the fire.

Even Wendy, who was dissatisfied with the current situation, had to cooperate with Henry to clean up the mess together.

The two of them worked hard for a long time but to no avail.

There was seemingly someone behind this, and Fuller Industries' decline was astonishingly fast!

In just a few days, many of the Fuller family's companies were shut down, and the few remaining companies struggled to support themselves with bank loans.

The one behind this never gave them even the tiniest bit of hope.

As if putting Fuller Industries on death row, even banks were no longer willing to give them loans and even asked them to pay off their previous loans!

However, how could the Fuller family have the ability to repay their loans now?

Their only option was to declare bankruptcy!

At this point, Wendy felt as if the sky had fallen.

Since she was a child, she had been well-clothed and well-fed. When did she ever have to experience such hardship?

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1409—Just as desperate as Wendy was Henry, who had his hands full for several days.

Melody's words gave Henry hope, thinking that she could really convince Byron to spare the Fuller family this time.

Unexpectedly, Lawrence Corporation's suppression of the Fuller family did not stop and even intensified, pushing them to the point of bankruptcy!

Henry's hard work for several days was in vain, and his relatives came to question him one after another.

After a few days, most of Henry's hair turned gray.

At this moment, Henry was sitting behind the desk in the study, face-to-face with several bank staff in front of him.

Several contracts for real estate transactions were clearly laid out on the table.

After the bank staff reviewed the contract, they pushed the contract in front of Henry. "Mr. Fuller, please sign here."

Henry came back to his senses and glanced at the properties he had worked so hard for. His hands trembled in distress, and he left his signature in a trembling scrawl.

The bank staff naturally did not empathize with him. After he signed the papers, they began to review the next property deed without hesitation.

On the side, Magdalene stood in front of the desk, her face white as a sheet. She wanted to comfort Henry, but after seeing his hideous expression, she swallowed the words back and held her breath. She only managed to pour him a glass of water.

"I don't even want to drink water!"

Henry was already suppressing his anger, and when he saw the cup of water suddenly appearing in front of him, he lost it and slammed the table. "I've lost everything! I think I'll choke on the water!"

As if to confirm his words, the bank staff spoke, "Mr. Fuller, this house is no longer your property. Our bank will seal up this house tomorrow morning. I hope you can move out on time and not interfere with our work."

Henry's voice trembled. "Get out! Get out!"

The staff knew that the Fuller family had fallen, and the man in front of them was nothing more than a tiger that had lost its teeth. They did not take his outburst seriously. "We've already contacted the moving company for you. Please move out as soon as possible. If you don't cooperate, coercive measures will be taken."

Upon hearing these words, Henry's face turned red.

The Fuller family had fallen to this point. If the banks were forced to take coercive measures, they would have no more dignity left!

In the end, he took a few deep breaths but did not say anything. He just watched the bankers leave with a gloomy face.

"Henry, are we really going to move out?"

Only Magdalene and Henry were left in the study, and Magdalene looked at him in disbelief.

Since she married into the Fuller family, they had been living here. Magdalene had gotten used to living here. All of a sudden, she was asked to move out and live in a worse environment. She could not accept it.

Henry slammed the table and snapped, "What are you asking me for? You should ask your good daughter! If it wasn't for her, how could we have come to this point?!"

Magdalene trembled from Henry's anger. Her mouth was hung open, but she dared not ask any more questions.

After losing his temper, Henry sat back down in a slump, thinking about the impoverishment he might have to endure for the rest of his life. The more he ruminated, the angrier he became.

"Henry!"

Magdalene was racking her brains to think of a way out of this predicament when Henry suddenly jumped up and strode toward the study door.

Seeing this, Magdalene hurriedly followed suit, fearing that he would do something impulsive like last time.

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 1410—At the same time, Wendy was sitting in her bedroom, completely disheveled.

'The Quirke family! It's the Quirke family!'

In the past few days, while Wendy was busy dealing with the mess, she remembered to investigate the driving force behind this.

She thought it would be other families giving them trouble.

She never expected it to be Andrius!

Without much effort, she could easily guess that Byron must have gotten him to do it!

If it was not for Byron's instigation, Andrius would not have the guts to act rashly!

'Byron Lawrence! You're so cruel to me! Do you wish to drive me to my death?'

Just when Wendy was furious, her room door was suddenly pushed open.

Wendy came back to her senses and raised her eyes to look at the door.

As soon as she saw who it was, Henry had already slapped her and knocked her over the bed.

"Henry!"

After the events of the past few days, Magdalene was already worn out from the downfall of the family. She was also triggered by the news that they had to move out, and her legs went weak.

When she finally arrived at Wendy's room, she saw Henry slap Wendy.

Although Wendy was wrong, she was still her flesh and blood. Henry's slap seemed to strike her heart. She forcefully mustered enough strength and quickly ran over to protect Wendy.

"Get out of the way! I have to teach this rebellious one a lesson today!" Henry scolded coldly.

Magdalene said in a mournful voice, "Calm down. Things have already happened. Wendy is also having a hard time, and she's already trying her best to redeem her mistakes!"

Henry was even angrier seeing that she was still speaking for Wendy. His temples swelled up. "Get out of here! Otherwise, I'll beat you too!"

Then, he blamed her angrily. "You spoiled her! If you hadn't given her that idea, how could she have become what she is today?!"

Magdalene was anxious and frightened, her lips trembling uncontrollably.

"Mom, step aside!" Wendy finally came back to her senses and whispered to Magdalene.

Then, she came out from behind Magdalene and looked up at her father stubbornly. "I didn't do anything wrong!"

Henry raised his hand and slapped her again. "You still won't admit your mistake even now? You'll only admit it if I send you to prison with my own hands, won't you?!"

Wendy held the side of her face, her eyes were full of madness.

She had not done anything wrong!

If there was something she did wrong, it was that she loved Byron too deeply at that time!

That man never treated her as a human being at all!

'I hate Byron Lawrence to the core!'

Henry almost fainted from anger at the unrepentant looks of the two. After a while, he calmed down and managed to suppress his anger. "Get out of here! Pack up your things!"

Wendy looked up at her father with a puzzled expression.

Henry glared at her viciously. "The Fuller family is bankrupt! This house is not ours anymore! They'll seal it off tomorrow. We have to get out!"

Bankrupt?

Although they had known for a long time that they would have to face this fact sooner or later, Wendy still could not believe it when she really heard her father say that!

'How can it be? How can it be so fast?'

Now, they did not even have a roof over their head!

She had nothing left!

"From now on, you'd better shut up and lay low! If you cause trouble again, I'm afraid we won't even be able to save our lives!"

Henry was afraid that if he stayed any longer, he would be so angry that he would beat his daughter to death. He turned around and left the room without another word.
