

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 254

Sharing Room With Other Parents As soon as Byron sat down with Estie in his arms, he felt the little girl moving around. He frowned in confusion.

Estie looked at Rosalie eagerly.

Aunt had not held her for a long time, so she also wanted Aunt to hold her.

Moreover, Daddy carrying her was not comfortable at all.

Rosalie wanted to ignore both father and daughter, but being stared at by the little girl, she had to turn around and take a look.

“Aunt.” Estie stretched out her hand to her, wanting Rosalie to carry her.

Byron noticed that the woman was already struggling to carry one child. He tightened his arms and trapped the little girl in his arms. “Estelle, don’t fuss.” Estie was feeling more and more uncomfortable and struggled even, “Aunt hug!”

Some people had already noticed the movement back here.

Rosalie did not want to attract any more attention, so she nodded to the man. “Give her to me. I’ll hold her.”

With that, she stretched her hand out to Estie.

Estie went into her hug almost immediately.

After holding Estie, Rosalie ended up having two children in her arms. Her seat was very crowded.

Byron frowned and said in a deep voice, “Why don’t I carry Lucian?”

Hearing this, Rosalie was stunned.

Thinking of Lucian’s relationship with this man, her emotions were complicated.

Moreover, Rosalie had seen the resistance the two boys had toward Byron during this period of time she figured that the boys would not be willing.

Lucian, in particular, had always been indifferent,

Unexpectedly, the little guy in her arms actually reached his arms out toward Byron.

Serig Lucian’s willons, Rosalie’s and Byron’s expressions changed

Byron did not expect the little boy to agree so easily Surprise flashed across his eyes before he tracted his arms out to carry the child over

Rosalie, however, lowered her gaze and was inexplicably terrified deep down.

Laktan just did not want things to be so hard on Mommy. Although he had taken the initiative to reach out to the family, his pallor was taut. After being held in Byron's arms, he just looked to the front, not unless

This was Byron's first time carrying another child apart from Estie, so his actions were also a little cautious.

Sitting in the middle, Nox could not help admiring his brother when he saw his father holding him in his arms.

The group fell silent at the same time.

Only Estie was truly happy as she sat in Rosalie's arms and played with Rosalie's fingers in high spirits.

It was silent the entire journey.

They finally arrived at their destination. As soon as the bus stopped, Lucian immediately jumped out of Byron's arms. Standing up with Nox, they waited to get off.

Rosalie also put Estie on the ground and let her return to Byron.

When getting off the bus, Rosalie was holding onto Lucian and Nox again while Byron held Estie. It was as if whatever had just happened on the bus had not actually happened. They saw a field of green the moment they got off the bus.

The tree-planting site the kindergarten had selected was a botanical garden in the suburbs. It was located on a hillside and surrounded by lush trees. It made the scene look very vibrant.

It was just located in a remote place, and so there was only one hotel nearby.

Back on the bus just now, Miss Leigh Ann had contacted the person in charge of the hotel as she wanted to immediately reserve another room for Byron and Estie. However, she learned that all the rooms were full. She felt anxious and regretful.

After getting off the bus, she immediately went to Byron. "President Lawrence, the hotel is also full. I may have to inconvenience you to squeeze into a room with other parents." Byron frowned and looked down at the little girl beside him. He did not mind squeezing in with others, but Estie might not want to.