

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 257

You Should Be Honored Rosalie had wanted to go back directly after dinner, but after coming out of the dining hall, the children saw the scenery outside and stopped walking

Rosalie looked up.

They were on a mountain. The installations of the botanical garden were much simpler than that of the city, so there was not much lighting equipment.

Only a full moon was hanging in the sky, and its light sprinkled onto them through the woods particularly softly. The plants in the botanical garden also looked very beautiful.

Many parents had taken their children for a walk in the garden,

“Mommy, let’s go and have a look!” Nox tugged Rosalie’s hand.

It was rare for Rosalie to have such free time. Coupled with the beautiful scenery, she also felt like going sightseeing. She turned around and said to Byron, “I’ll take the children for a walk. President Lawrence, you can bring Estie back first.”

With that, she released Estie’s hand and asked her to go look for Byron.

Estie, on the other hand, would not let go.

Helpless, Rosalie had to bring the child with her too.

They came to an area with fewer people. Nox looked at the tall trees around them and excitedly proposed, “Mommy, let’s play hide and seek!”

Rosalie complied with a smile. “Alright, but don’t run too far away. It’s not safe.”

The children promised obediently.

Rosalie wanted to go look for them with Estie at first, but the little girl was also itching to have a go.

Estie was already so big, yet no one had ever played hide and seek with her before. Hearing the brothers mention it now, she looked forward to it.

Rosalie instructed the boys to take good care of her before closing her eyes and asking them to “Ready or not, here I come!” After counting down, Rosalie raised her voice and exclaimed.

The moment she said that, Estie’s childlike voice sounded from behind a tree. “Ready!”

Hearing this, Rosalie could not help laughing

Although short bus were the little girl was based on her voice, she still pretended that she did not and pretended to be looking for the

*Are you Miss Jacobs?" A female voice sounded in Rosalie's car

Rosalie looked up, only to a woman in luxurious clothes standing in front of her she was holding a leather bag and was smiling at her

Rosalie could believe it

Instantly as the woman's face came into view she looked at the person in front of her calmly "That's me Who are you?"

The woman glanced at her disdainfully. "It doesn't matter who I am. I just want to remind you of one thing. I hope you can take it to heart."

Hearing this, Rosalie frowned slightly. "Estelle is the apple of President Lawrence's eye. He's friendly with your two children, and he's also close to you. Therefore, President Lawrence also thinks highly of you. You should be honored."

Speaking of this, the woman's tone was slightly cold. "However, you'd better show some self respect. Don't think that just because President Lawrence is close to you that you can seize the opportunity to take advantage of him. President Lawrence is only doing this because of the children. It has nothing to do with you. Don't think that you can climb up the social ladder so easily."

Hearing the woman's words, Rosalie could not help but feel her head throb.

She already knew that if she were to bump into Byron here, she would inevitably be criticized, but she did not expect it to happen so soon. "I think you may have misunderstood something," Rosalie said calmly. The woman interrupted her with disgust. "I misunderstood? Everyone saw how close you were with President Lawrence today. Miss Jacobs, you'd better recognize your position. You should know that President Lawrence's fiancée is Miss Fuller. Their relationship is going very well, so stop insulting yourself!"