

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 308

After Rosalie's fever subsided, the two little boys were still worried and asked her to rest at home for two more days.

She finally recovered completely. Early in the morning, Rosalie sent the two little guys to the kindergarten and was about to drive to the research institute. As soon as she got in the car, the phone rang.

Looking at the caller ID, it was Professor Quentin Luke.

Rosalie thought it was about the project, so she picked it up quickly. "Professor Luke, how can I help you?"

Professor Luke's voice was a little solemn, "Did you offend someone?"

Hearing this, Rosalie could not help but be confused, "What do you mean?"

"It seems that someone has been checking your affairs abroad in the past two days." Professor Luke replied in a deep voice, "The other party may be up to no good and want to take advantage of your affairs overseas. So, I wonder if you have offended someone in Somerland."

Hearing this, Rosalie's heart shuddered. "Can you find out who that is?"

Professor Luke shook his head, "You know, my connections are mainly in the medical field, the other party has greater connections than mine, so my hands are tied at the moment."

Rosalie bit her lower lip, a calculated guess went through her mind.

When she treated Old Master Quirke long ago, Byron once expressed interest in her experiences abroad.

After knowing about the two little boys, Byron asked her more than once who their biological father was.

Now that he has spent a considerable amount of time with the boys, is he suspicious of their background? That's why he went abroad to check?

The professor also mentioned that the opponent's connections were much greater than his...

Thinking of this, Rosalie only felt panic.

If he finds something, will he take the two little boys away from her?

The more Rosalie thought about it, the more frightened she became, and her voice became tensed. "Do you know what this person is looking for?"

Professor Luke said, "I feel that the other party seems to be interested in your interpersonal relationships over the years. They've been checking who you've been with."

Sure enough.

Rosalie pinched her palms, trying to calm herself down, "Then... did he find anything?"

If Byron really found something, she had to be prepared.

Professor Luke reassured her. "Although I can't recheck past information, I still can stop him from checking. After I noticed that someone is investigating you, I immediately tried to hide everything you had done over the years. They shouldn't have found anything."

Rosalie breathed a sigh of relief and thanked her mentor gratefully. "Thankyou for the trouble."

Professor Luke insisted nonchalantly. "Don't mention it. I can still take care of things for you abroad. Now you are in charge of the research institute yourself, you must be careful in your affairs, otherwise, you will unknowingly offend people."

Rosalie pulled her lower lip bitterly.

In her memory, she did not feel that she had offended anyone. The only person who would go back to check her experience in those years was that man.

However, there is no need to tell the professor about this.

"Understood, thank you, sir. I have one more thing to trouble you." After a few seconds of silence, Rosalie said in a low voice.

Professor Luke happily agreed, "Tell me."

Rosalie said, "No matter what happens, please help me hide Lucian and Nox's background, and don't let anyone know that I was already pregnant when I went abroad..." 1

The child's biological father will be revealed if the other party finds out that she went abroad pregnant.

Professor Luke did not ask any further questions and immediately agreed.
