

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 322

The children swam for almost two hours. After they came out of the pool, Rosalie brought them to have lunch.

On the way over to the restaurant, Rosalie still could not forget the words that Lucian had said to the man just now.

Rosalie stared at the children through the rearview mirror for some time. Finally, she could not resist asking, "Lucian, why did you say that just now? Why would tell him that Mr. Byron is your daddy?"

Just now, she was afraid that the children's mood to play would be affected if she asked Lucian about it. Therefore, she restrained herself from asking any questions. However, she could no longer resist the urge to do so.

After hearing what she said, Lucian glanced at her innocently and said, "That's because Mr. Byron is more powerful!"

Rosalie could not help but feel stunned. At this moment, she could not tell if Lucian was telling the truth or if was he lying to her.

"Besides, I think that Mr. Byron would come over if you really called him," Lucian said. He felt an odd feeling in his heart as he said that.

Although he did not like his daddy because he was going to marry another woman, he was confident that his daddy would rush over in time if anything happened to his mommy.

If it were not for that evil woman, he would have accepted his bad daddy...

A hint of shock flashed across Rosalie's heart after she heard what he said.

She was shocked because she did not doubt the truth of Lucian's words at all.

After returning to the country and interacting with Byron during this period of time, she felt that Byron would rush over as well.

Nevertheless, she would not appreciate the favor.

Rosalie pursed her lips in a self-mocking manner after realizing the thoughts that were running through her mind.

So what if he came over right now? He would still have to marry Wendy Fuller in the future.

Both of them were destined to be strangers.

With this thought in mind, Rosalie stopped overthinking and having any suspicions about the children, she simply reminded them, "Don't say that to anyone in the future. Mr. Byron already has a fiancée. If this spreads out, it won't be good for US or him."

Lucian and Nox nodded obediently. Their grievances toward Byron grew deeper.

Byron was a bad daddy. He was going to marry another woman, yet their mommy was still being considerate toward him!

Rosalie recalled the scene just now. she still felt rather terrified. "If we encounter something like this in the future, both of you must protect yourselves. I'll look after myself. Both of you are still children.

There's no need for you to stand up for me."

The physique of the man just now was much larger and burlier than the two children.

If that man had acted rashly, Rosalie did not dare to imagine what would have happened.

She was afraid that it would be too late even if she called the security guard over.

After Rosalie spoke, the two children started making noise from the backseat.

Lucian and Nox sat up straight and spoke up in a righteous tone, "We want to protect Mommy! That man was a baddie, and there was no one by your side, Mommy. You only had us!"

Rosalie felt extremely comforted after hearing their words. Her expression softened as she said, "You guys can do that in the future. I'll only worry about both of you if you stand up for me now."

"We're already all grown up!" Lucian replied seriously as his expression tightened. "Mommy, you've looked after us for such a long time. We can protect and look after you as well. Although we don't have a daddy, we can do anything that a daddy can do!"

Upon noticing how persistent the children were, Rosalie did not want to scold them for wanting to protect her. she smiled and said, "In that case, I'll thank you in advance."

The two children nodded understandingly.
