

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 324

At the same time, Wendy received a call from one of her subordinates.

“President Fuller, we saw Rosalie driving toward the hospital.”

Wendy glanced at the man sitting outside and lowered her voice, “which hospital is it?”

Her subordinate replied, “She should be heading to Carlton Hospital.”

Carlton Hospital was the top private hospital in Coast City. Wendy was there right now as well.

A glint flashed across Wendy’s gaze when she heard that Rosalie was coming to Carlton Hospital. “How long more will it take for her to arrive?”

“Approximately five minutes.”

Wendy hummed and said, “I got it. Continue following her. Call me when she arrives at the entrance of the hospital.”

Her subordinate agreed.

After hanging up the call, Wendy placed her phone by the side and glanced cautiously at the man standing by the door, when she noticed that he was not paying any attention to her, she looked at the cup of water on the table, she then got up and reached out for the cup.

Byron was looking through the company’s email account through his phone. He did not notice her actions at all.

Suddenly, the crisp sound of glass breaking rang out.

After that, Wendy let out a hushed scream.

Byron returned to his senses at once. He then got up and looked inside the ward.

The cup of water that he had just filled up for Wendy had spilled all over the floor, and the cup had shattered into pieces. Wendy leaned against the headboard of the bed. she seemed to be in shock as she glanced at the cup on the ground. She remained frozen in that state.

Byron frowned at once after noticing this scene. He then took large strides over to clean up the mess.

“Byron.” Wendy looked at him weakly with an apologetic look in her eyes. “Did I disturb your work? You seemed to be working hard, so I didn’t want to disturb you. I tried picking up the cup myself, but I didn’t expect that I’d drop it. The cup broke, and I disrupted your work as well.”

After speaking, she tried to get down from the bed to clean up the mess. “Work is more important. I can do this myself. I won’t disturb your work.”

Byron stopped her from moving and said in a heavy tone, "Since I'm here to look after you, you can ask me to help you out with such tasks. You're giving me more trouble by trying to do everything on your own."

Wendy bit her lip and stood by the side silently.

After cleaning everything up, Byron took another cup and filled it up with water for her. He then placed it somewhere she could reach easily.

"Ask me for help if you need anything." After speaking, he turned around to leave the ward.

Wendy raised her gaze to look at the time. She knew that Rosalie was about to arrive at the hospital. Her heart lurched as she called out at Byron, who had already walked to the door. "Byron!"

Byron stopped and turned around to look at her. He responded to her in a deep voice.

Wendy had a rather embarrassed expression on her face. She lowered her gaze and said, "I don't want to disturb your work, but after thinking about it, I think that what you said is right. If I keep trying to do things on my own, I might cause you plenty of trouble. Therefore, I think I shouldn't try doing things on my own anymore. Can you accompany me to look for the doctor? My arm feels a little uncomfortable."

Byron frowned after hearing what she said, "what's wrong?"

Wendy seemed extremely apologetic. "It's all my fault. I hit the fractured part of my arm when I was reaching out to take the cup just now. I don't know if anything happened to my injury."

There was a cautious and guilty expression on Wendy's face as she spoke.

It looked like she was really blaming herself for causing Byron trouble and disrupting his work.

Byron cast a heavy glance at the cast on her arm and nodded without hesitation. "Let's go."

A grateful smile appeared on Wendy's face as soon as he agreed. However, she was planning out a scheme in her heart.

If they went down right now, they would definitely run into that treacherous b*tch.

She wanted to see if Rosalie would still approach Byron if she saw him taking such good care of her! 1
