

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 361

After getting into contact with some people, the only gain for the two was that they knew the real intentions of those suppliers and that somebody was targeting them.

However, the medicinal materials that were needed later for the research still needed to be acquired.

In this state of urgency, Rosalie thought of Leon.

During the conference at that time, she remembered that Leon said they might develop locally and there was a high chance of him staying in Coast City.

With Leon's reputation in the medical profession and the Martin family's position in Coast City, they would certainly have a broad network.

The thought of this made Rosalie's heart well up with hope. She said to Yves, "I'm going to call a friend."

After saying this, she took her phone out and called Leon.

Just as the call got through, Leon picked up and his elegant voice sounded, "what's up, Rosalie?"

Rosalie hesitated for a few seconds. Come to think of it, it seemed like she was always the one accepting help from Leon, she felt a little embarrassed to speak for a moment.

On the other line, Leon heard her silence and frowned in confusion. "Rosalie? Do you need my help with anything?"

Rosalie responded, feeling a little embarrassed. "Senior, do you have a good medicine materials supplier in Coast City? Could you introduce them to me?"

Leon agreed almost without putting any thought and did not even ask her why she needed a medicine materials supplier. He said, "Sure. Let me make some contact and update you."

Rosalie did not think that he would agree to it that happily. She was stunned for a few seconds and then replied to him gratefully, "Thankyou so much, Senior. I'll wait for your good news."

After saying this, she heard slight displeasure in Leon's voice, "why are you being so polite to me? You saved my parents. This is nothing compared to what you've done for us! Even if I dared to accept your gratitude, my parents would refuse it."

Rosalie pursed her lips and smiled, she took back what she said a few sentences earlier. "I'll wait for your good news, then."

Leon agreed and hung up in an instant.

While in the office, Yves was looking at Rosalie in confusion. He had no idea who she had just called. From the sound of it, the person on the line seemed to be of quite some age.

Besides, Rosalie's expression had clearly eased after the call.

"Dr. Jacobs, can this person... be trusted?" Yves asked vaguely.

Rosalie nodded slightly. "He's a senior I met when I was overseas. I'm sure you've heard of his name before. Leon Martin."

"It's him?" Yves was completely stunned.

Today, Leon's name was well-known all around the world, especially among young doctors. He was simply the best out there with his excellent medical skills and wealthy family background.

Rosalie actually knew him, and it even sounded like they were pretty close!

Yves felt a sense of shame flash across his heart.

Rosalie was outstanding with many excellent people around her. Compared to them, he was not really worth mentioning.

Realizing this, Yves secretly made up his mind.

One day, he must stand out in the medical profession and become a man who was worthy to stand beside Rosalie!

Rosalie was clueless about his thoughts and was anxiously waiting for Leon's call.

She did not mention the research institute being targeted and how she was still clueless about who was the culprit behind this.

She had no idea if Leon could compete with the opponent. If she dragged him down again...

The thought of this instilled panic inside Rosalie.
