

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 390

The remaining children had the same issue. Rosalie used the exact same method to coax them to lie down in bed for their check-ups.

Most of the children were healthy, and they went out happily after getting candies from Rosalie.

There were a few children with congenital diseases. They shrank at a corner, sobbing. They would not cooperate with their check-ups during their turn and continued to hide in the corner.

The little ones were abandoned when they were young. They did not even dare to cry out loud. They just kept whimpering.

All of a sudden, the atmosphere in the room became very depressed.

Looking at the little ones, Rosalie had a heartache, she suppressed the unbearable feeling in her heart and stepped forward to comfort them. "Don't cry. We're all brave, aren't we? You all are just feeling a little uncomfortable. It's nothing major. We're just here to help you solve this problem. As long as you're obedient, your body will get better soon!"

The children only knew that they were sick and were extremely afraid. They could not get Rosalie's words into their minds at all and continued to sob.

Rosalie felt distressed and could not help reaching out to touch the cheek of one of the little kids. "Don't be afraid. I'm with you. You'll all get better and grow up healthily."

As she spoke, it reminded her about her child who passed away and also Estie who had similar heart conditions. Her eyes reddened unknowingly after looking at these children.

The kids saw that her eyes turning red, and they knew that it was because of them, so their whimpers got softer.

Seeing how the kids were very cautious, Rosalie did not know what to say at that moment as she feared that once she spoke, they would hear that she was about to cry.

Leon and Xander stood somewhere behind her and kept quiet as they looked at her comforting the little ones patiently.

They naturally pitied the kids, but they could not bring themselves to say anything to comfort them. They could only stand and stare.

It was not Xander's first time witnessing such a scene, but it was his first time feeling touched.

Lucius, on the other hand, seemed to be impatient. If Rosalie continued doing this, when should they wait until?

Lucius went over and grabbed one of the children's wrists anxiously. "Here, let me do some checks on you. otherwise, you won't recover."

The little guy was shocked, and his eyes widened in fear.

Lucius frowned. He assumed that frightening the children might work, so he looked down at the little guy. "We won't entertain kids who won't listen!"

Seeing how fierce he looked, the little guy immediately let out a cry in fear.

Noticing what was going on, Rosalie immediately got up and said, " Dr. Rand, they're still kids and can't be shocked. Please be patient."

Leon and Xander, who were behind them, also came over with a frown.

"Let Dr. Jacobs handle them. The children trust her more," Xander said with a deep voice. Back then when they faced such a situation, there was such a way if things got desperate.

However, today was different as one of the kids here could be shocked or it might cause a huge reaction.

Just as they were worried about the kid being shocked, there was a small commotion at the corner.

"Pippin! Auntie! Look at Pippin..." One of the kids ran over anxiously and pulled Rosalie's shirt.

Rosalie quickly ran over to take a look.

All she saw was a little boy curled up on the floor with a pale face. There were still tears on his little face, and his expression was all contorted.