

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 391

Seeing the scene in front of the four of them, their hearts sank.

Lucius quickly let go of the kid in panic and walked over.

The child on the floor was obviously frightened, which caused the overreaction.

According to their diagnosis, this child had a special physique. When frightened, it would trigger a severe pain response in the child. Speaking of which, this was the first time they had seen such a case.

Lucius only wanted to speed up the progress of the free clinic with another method, but he did not expect to frighten the little boy.

Seeing how much pain he was in, the expressions of the four turned ugly.

Rosalie was the first to react. Suppressing the panic in her heart, she got up to evacuate the little children around. "Don't be afraid. We'll treat Pippin. You go out and wait first, okay?"

The kids were unwilling to leave Pippin alone.

One girl said while sobbing, "Pippin... This has happened to him before as well, but he'll be fine after a while. We'll wait for him to get better."

Hearing those words, Rosalie felt a piercing pain in her chest.

'It's so painful. How did this little guy tolerate it back then?'

The other kids would obviously not leave easily, so she could only turn back to look at Leon for help.

Leon understood her. He carefully carried the little boy and placed him on the bed.

The little boy almost completely lost his consciousness due to the excruciating pain. He was curled up like a dried shrimp earlier, and now, he could not even clench his palm tightly. He was just lying in bed.

Seeing the condition of the little boy, the four had no idea what to do now.

They did not have time to investigate his clinical records, and neither could they hesitate.

Cold sweat broke out on Lucius' forehead.

No matter what, it was his recklessness just now that caused the child to become like this.

If anything happened to the kid, his reputation would go down the drain.

Thinking of that, Lucius wiped off his sweat and went to the bed to check the kid's pulse.

Before Rosalie and the rest reacted, Lucius had already taken out the acupuncture instruments and was about to start sanitizing them.

Seeing what he was doing, Rosalie asked worriedly, “Dr. Rand, do you know how to treat him?”

Lucius was already nervous to begin with. He got more irritated after hearing her voice.

In fact, he did not need to frighten the kid earlier. It was all because this lady was wasting time. Now, she still dared to question him! “Would you know if I don’t?” Lucius glanced at her with dissatisfaction and turned back to continue sanitizing the needles.

Seeing how annoyed he was, Rosalie got even more worried.

Leon and Xander were also suspicious and continued asking, “What do you think the kid is suffering from based on your diagnosis?”

Lucius’s expression froze as he answered stiffly, “No matter what, we should relieve his pain first since that’s the most obvious thing that he’s suffering from!”

As he spoke, he took the needle and was about to use it on the boy.

Leon and Xander did not object to what he said.

Indeed, it was right to relieve the boy’s pain before proceeding with anything else.

They were too worried until they forgot about the basics.

Noticing the acupoint he was going to approach, Rosalie got triggered and immediately stopped him. “Wait, you can’t use that point!”

That being said, the three looked over at her at the same time.

Lucius got even more impatient. “Dr. Jacobs, don’t make trouble if you don’t understand. This is the most basic pain relief point.

Don’t you know this?”