

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 404

Rosalie turned to look at him, her expression horrendous.

“I was looking over them just now. Nox was still there when I was speaking to the peddler,” Byron explained.

In other words, the boy likely had not gone far.

Rosalie frowned slightly and said anxiously, “Then, I’ll go look for him nearby!”

“I’ll go too!” Lucian quickly agreed.

He was the one who lost his younger brother, so he had to find him quickly!

Seeing Lucian and Auntie so anxious, Estie quickly added, “I’m going too!”

Rosalie did not even have the time to think, she just wanted to go searching for Nox while still holding onto the children.

She had just taken two steps when Byron stopped her. “You take the children away and wait. I’ll look for him here.”

Rosalie frowned. She wanted to refuse.

“Nox is already missing, and there are so many people here. You don’t want Lucian and Estelle to go missing too, right?” Byron looked at her with a frown.

Hearing this, Rosalie hesitated.

Byron consoled in a deep voice, “Those who come to this resort are either rich or wealthy. You can rest assured that there won’t be anyone who has any bad intentions toward children here. You just need to worry about whether Nox can take care of himself.” 2

Rosalie lowered her gaze, she tried to calm herself down and nodded to Byron slightly. “I’ll leave Nox to you.”

Byron agreed. He then turned around and walked into the crowd.

Rosalie, on the other hand, held onto the children and squeezed themselves out from the crowd.

“Mommy, did Nox wear a watch?” When they came to a place with fewer people, he reminded his mommy urgently.

Hearing this, Rosalie looked down. The boy was pointing at the watch on his wrist.

Both of the boys had one, and the watch could be used to track their location.

Rosalie could not help but feel chagrin. She was so anxious that she forgot something so important.

When she came back to her senses, Rosalie quickly took out her phone to locate the boy.

After going through a few steps, she then saw the location displayed was at the hotel. It was not moving.

It was obvious that the boy had slacked when he went out today and did not wear his watch.

After staring at the red dot on the screen for a long time, Rosalie could not help her eyes from turning red.

The boy had been by her side since young, and this was the first time she encountered such a situation.

Although Byron said that there would not be anyone who had bad intentions toward children here, Rosalie could not help but feel worried.

The little boy must be so scared knowing that he was lost...

Seeing his mommy about to cry, Lucian lowered his eyes in reproach. "Mommy, I'm sorry. It's because I didn't take good care of my brother..."

Rosalie looked down at the boy beside her. She pushed down the panic in her heart and patted his head in a placating manner. "I don't blame you. I'm the one at fault. I didn't take good care of you."

If she had known earlier, she would never have taken her children somewhere with so many people.

It was useless to regret it now, however.

Estie was also very worried about Nox, but seeing Auntie and Lucian so sad, the little girl blinked her eyes and tugged on Rosalie's clothes gently.

Rosalie turned to look at her.

The little girl opened her arms to her with a worried look on her face, she said in a childlike voice, "Auntie, hug!"

Seeing this, Rosalie felt her heart sour. She squatted down and hugged the two children into her arms. Tears were welling up in her eyes.

"Auntie, don't be sad. Daddy will find No!" Estie tried hard to appease Rosalie.

Rosalie patted the little girl's head and nodded silently, afraid that she would cry if she were to open her mouth.