

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 423

Not long after, Rosalie changed into a diving suit and put on diving equipment under the guidance of the diving instructor.

Seeing the woman being led into the water by the diving instructor, Byron's eyes darkened, and his heart became inexplicably nervous.

"Mommy!"

"Auntie!"

The little ones also looked at the two in the sea nervously.

Hearing the voices of the little children, Rosalie raised her head with a smile, made an okay gesture to them, and turned her head to the instructor to signal that she was ready.

After a while, the two held their breaths and slowly submerged underwater.

From the yacht, only the occasional bubbles churning could be seen from where the spot they dived.

The little children looked at each other, their faces were full of worry. They even regretted letting Rosalie try.

"Uncle, will Mommy be in danger?" Nox could not help but look at Byron on his side.

When Byron heard this, he suppressed his own anxiety and comfortingly patted the boy's head. "No, she won't. The instructors here are good, and they'll definitely take good care of your mommy."

The man's eyes were always locked on the position where Rosalie was diving.

The staff member on the yacht also reassured them, saying, "There'll be no problem. Over the years, there have been many tourists diving here, and I haven't seen anyone have an accident."

Hearing him say this, the kids nodded and continued to wait for Rosalie to resurface.

At the same time, Rosalie was led by the diving instructor and continued to dive deeper.

The instructor always held one of her arms, for fear that she would have an accident.

Unexpectedly, after diving for a distance, he found that Rosalie did not behave like a novice at all. She was even somewhat comfortable in the water.

The instructor slowly let go of her.

The scenery of the seabed gradually appeared in front of Rosalie. Her eyes lit up when she saw the scenery in front of her.

There were all kinds of corals and colorful fish in front of her. The sunlight fell on the marine life after being refracted by the seawater, which gave them a mysterious color.

Rosalie could not help but stretch out her hand.

Soon, a small fish swam around her fingers affectionately.

The instructor on the side was a little surprised when he saw this scene and instinctively picked up the camera to take a photo.

In the camera, Rosalie was like a beautiful mermaid, living in harmony with the beautiful creatures underwater.

On the yacht, everyone waited for a long time and did not see them coming back, so they started to worry.

Nox even more anxiously shouted at the sea, " Mommy!"

Estie also clenched the railing nervously and looked up at her daddy, "Daddy, why hasn't Auntie come up yet?"

Hearing the little girl, Byron's eyes darkened. Even so, he calmly appeased the little girl, "She'll be up in a while. Don't worry, Estie darling."

After speaking, Byron took out his phone and glanced at it.

Rosalie and the instructor had been diving for nearly 10 minutes. 1

It stood to reason that for a novice, it had been too long. There was no way that the instructor did not know this.

Thinking of this, he frowned slightly, and a thought crossed his mind.

'Could it be that they had an accident underwater?'

This thought flashed in Byron's mind.

Byron's expression became more and more solemn as he kept his eyes on the waters.

It was uncertain how much time had passed, but Rosalie was still nowhere to be seen. Even the other two staff members became a little anxious. 1

"I'll go down and have a look!" Another diving instructor picked up the diving equipment with a distressed expression.

Just as he was about to go into the sea, there was a sudden movement on the ocean's surface.

After a while, Rosalie and the instructor surfaced with a smile.
