

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 426

After Rosalie rested for a while, she gradually recovered and got up to change her clothes.

The yacht went a little farther.

“Hey kids, this is the area where dolphins are often spotted, so keep your eyes peeled!”

A staff member in front reminded them, “Those dolphins are very friendly and can interact with people. They especially love children, so don’t worry, kids.”

These words made the little ones agree obediently, and their faces were full of anticipation.

“Mommy!” Lucian and Nox called Rosalie.

Rosalie turned her head and looked over in confusion.

“Can you help US unbuckle this? We want to play with dolphins!” the little children asked cautiously.

Estie, who was at the side, was also looking forward to it.

Rosalie’s heart softened at the little ones’ pleading gazes, but she still worried about their safety, she hesitated and did not speak.

The little ones looked at each other, then at Byron on the opposite side.

Nox guaranteed in his impish voice. “We’ll be good and keep a safe distance. Can you please let US go?”

“Daddy...” Estie looked at her Daddy pitifully.

The little ones had already seen it. After they got to the sea, Byron had the final say in what they wanted to do.

Rosalie did not expect these little ones to change their target so quickly. She could not help but feel a sense of oddness in her heart and subconsciously glanced at the man opposite her.

She saw Byron raise his eyebrows slightly, but there was no sign of worry on his face. He only said, “As long as you’re not afraid, I’ll unbuckle your safety buckles for you.”

The little boys nodded vigorously. “We’re not! We want to play with the dolphins!”

Upon hearing this, Byron did not say anything more. He got up, walked over, and quickly unbuttoned the safety buckles for them.

As soon as the little children were free, they could not wait to run to the deck.

Byron followed closely behind.

Rosalie was uneasy, hesitated for a moment, then got up and followed.

The space on the deck was small, and the two adults had to leave enough space for the little ones. Hence, the distance between them became a little closer.

Looking from behind, the two seem to be snuggling together, and with the children's laughter, the atmosphere between them appeared cozy.

Rosalie realized that they were too close and wanted to take a step away, but the man grabbed her wrist.

"What are you doing? Let go!" Rosalie protested in a low voice for fear of scaring the little ones in front.

Byron frowned slightly as he looked at the woman beside him seriously. "Don't move, it's dangerous."

Seeing the man's expression, Rosalie could not help but be startled.

Just when she was about to say something, her eyes suddenly swept toward the distant sea as she caught a glimpse of movement among the waves.

The next second, the little ones cheered. "Dolphins! The dolphins are here!"

Hearing this, Rosalie and Byron could not help but turn their heads and look over.

Not far away, a group of dolphins jumped out and dived into the sea in groups, causing waves to splash as they swam in their direction.

The kids excitedly waved to the dolphins. "Hello! We're here! Come and play with us!"

As the children spoke to the dolphins innocently, Rosalie's eyes were full of smiles.

The dolphins suddenly increased their speed as if they understood the words of the little ones, and after a while, they were swimming in front of them.

The little ones moved forward cautiously and looked down at the dolphins swimming around in the sea.

Chapter 566 I Won't Do That Anymore

The little ones carefully stretched out their hands toward the dolphins.

Soon, a dolphin swam over and gently pushed their little palms with its snout.

"Wow!" The children exclaimed in surprise while looking at the dolphins in the sea with wide eyes.

Rosalie watched the little ones interact with the dolphins. Her gaze was soft, and she forgot the distance between herself and Byron, she lowered her eyes and took out the camera from her bag. she took photos of the little ones.

White gulls passed by in the distance.

Suddenly, a dolphin jumped up from the sea and touched Estie's face lightly with its snout.

The little girl was stunned for a long time, then she touched its slightly wet face. Her eyes widened with delight.

"Auntie! Daddy!" The little girl turned around excitedly, wanting to share the experience just now with Rosalie and Byron.

Rosalie had already photographed the magical moment just now. Seeing the excited look of the little girl, the smile on her face became wider. "I saw that! It seems that the little animals love our Estie very much!"

The little one smiled bashfully and turned back to play with the dolphins.

Lucian and Nox also saw the scene just now. Their faces were full of envy, and they tried their best to kiss the dolphins.

Nox leaned out tentatively, almost sticking his upper body out of the deck while looking at the dolphins expectantly.

After he waited for a long time, no dolphins came near him. Instead, they stayed away from him as if they were afraid of him.

The little guy was thinking of other ways when suddenly, someone grabbed his clothes, picked him up, and returned him to his original position just now.

"Careful. That's dangerous." Byron looked at the little guy seriously.

Seeing that it was Daddy, Nox could only nod his head embarrassingly and say apologetically, "I'm sorry. I won't do that anymore."

After that, he looked at his mommy pitifully.

Rosalie was also taken aback by the little guy's actions just now.

After all, they were not much bigger than these dolphins.

Rosalie was worried that if the dolphins really bumped into him, the little guy would fall.

Fortunately, Byron reacted in time and brought the little guy back.

Seeing the little boy's gaze, Rosalie's heart softened, but her face was still sullen. "Don't forget what you promised me."

The little boy felt even more remorseful.

'I got lost yesterday, which scared Mommy. But I made Mommy worry again today.'

Thinking of this, the little boy pursed his lips, turned around, and walked to Rosalie's side. He carefully grasped the hem of Rosalie's clothes. "I'm sorry, Mommy. I won't mess around anymore."

Rosalie was helpless as she watched the little boy at a loss. With a sigh, she raised her hand and stroked the little guy's head.

"I don't blame you. It's just like how you became worried about me when I was diving for a long time. Although I know that you can swim, I'm still afraid that you'll fall."

The little ones were still so young. If they were hit by dolphins and fell into the sea, they would inevitably feel scared.

She was afraid that the little ones might not remember how to swim then.

Hearing Rosalie's words, the little guy nodded obediently, "okay, Mommy. I understand."

Rosalie smiled. "Alright, now go play. I'll be here to watch you."

The little boy stood still, still feeling remorseful.

It was not until Rosalie stretched out her hand and gently nudged his shoulder that the boy lifted his feet and walked back to the deck.

"Thankyou for that." After the little guy walked away, Rosalie turned her head and thanked Byron. The man nodded coolly.