

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 438

Nox was still a child, after all. Although what happened just now was unpleasant, after going back to play with the dolphins for a while, the little boy quickly became happy again.

The time was almost up, so the staff member in front hollered at the group as a reminder. "President Lawrence, it's time for US to return!"

Byron responded briefly in acknowledgment, then looked at the little ones still on the deck. "Kids, we're going back now. Come here."

The little guys reluctantly touched the dolphins' heads and refused to move their feet.

Seeing this, he frowned slightly, not knowing how to call them back.

Seeing the embarrassed look on the man's face, Rosalie could not help but feel a little amused. She walked up to the kids and said softly, "We're going back now. Say goodbye to the dolphins!"

Rosalie reached out and held the wrists of the little ones.

Only then did the little children withdraw their attention and wave at the dolphins reluctantly, " We're going back, bye-bye dolphins!"

The dolphins jumped up from the sea one by one as if they understood their words.

Lucian and Nox were waving to the dolphins when suddenly, a slippery and wet touch slid across their small faces. It was just a fleeting touch.

The little boys froze for a moment, then looked in surprise at the two dolphins that had just fallen back to the sea.

They had worked hard for a long time just now, wanting to be kissed by the dolphins.

Only when they were about to leave did the dolphins unexpectedly kiss the boys.

"The dolphins also like you both very much. Now say goodbye to them. We'll come back next time," Rosalie said with a smile.

The little guys nodded vigorously and waved their hands. "Goodbye! We'll come back again to see you!" On the way back to their seats, the little children still looked back from time to time.

However, it was empty behind them as if those dolphins had never appeared.

Seeing this, the children could not help but feel a little sad.

When they turned around, they saw dolphins jumping up and down on both sides of the yacht as if to send them off.

There was a smile on the faces of the children.

“These dolphins will still be following US for a while. You can properly bid your farewells,” a staff member smiled and said to the little ones.

They nodded happily, looking intently at the dolphins on both sides.

As the yacht traveled farther and farther, the dolphins on both sides gradually decreased.

The expressions on the faces of the children gradually became sad.

When they came ashore, the children had not yet recovered their spirits.

Seeing the appearance of the children, Rosalie patted their heads soothingly and took out the camera to show them the photos just now.

“Don’t be sad. Look, aren’t the dolphins still with you? II

The children looked at the photos she took and saw the scene of themselves playing with the dolphins. Then, they gradually began to smile again.

Aside, Byron saw the photos in the camera, and his face softened.

“Mommy, we must see them again in the future!” Nox looked at his mommy seriously.

Rosalie smiled and agreed. “Okay, I’ll definitely bring you here again.”

The kids were not the only ones who liked it here as she also liked the underwater scenery here.

She put away the camera and suggested to Byron, saying, “Let’s go back first. The children have to change their clothes.”

The children were engrossed in playing with the dolphins earlier. They were also splashed on, so they were drenched.

Furthermore, it was getting late, and the sea breeze was gradually getting cooler.

Rosalie was afraid that if this continued, the little ones would catch a cold.

Byron nodded in agreement.

The two took the children back to the hotel again.