

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 602

In the office, when Byron heard Rosalie's words, a bout of anger gradually rose in his heart.

However, when he thought about his purpose for sending the flowers, he suppressed his anger. His tone was a little cold though. "Of course I know what it means to send roses, I think you understand what I mean, Miss Jacobs."

Rosalie frowned slightly, feeling a little tired, she even felt that Byron was behaving somewhat inexplicably today.

"I don't understand. Boss Li has something to say, so let's just say it directly."

Byron's brows furrowed even more and in a fit of anger, he immediately said, "what I mean, is that I hope you can come back to me!"

Hearing this, Rosalie was stunned. It was as if she had been hit by a heavy hammer.

If it was her from six years ago, she would have been so excited to hear this.

However, after hearing this now, Rosalie only felt it ironic after being stunned for a moment.

What did Byron even mean by that? He was engaged to Wendy, yet he still gave her roses.

Just what was she and Wendy to him?

After a long silence, the anger in Byron's heart gradually subsided. He also realized what he had said and frowned a little regretfully. "Also, Estelle needs a mother. She likes you very much and I recall that Miss Jacobs also likes Estelle very much..."

Byron suppressed the emotions in his heart and added as if nothing had happened.

However, before he could finish speaking, he was interrupted by Rosalie coldly, "who do you take me for, President Lawrence? You think I can be Estelle's mother just because she likes me? If this is what you think, I think that Estelle's biological mother is probably more suitable for this position than me, so President Lawrence should give her flowers!"

Byron frowned sharply. He wanted to say he did not mean that, but before he could, the call was hung up on the other end.

Seeing the phone's darkened screen, annoyance and anger filled Byron's eyes.

He really did not know how to communicate with this woman.

He had already done things up till this point and he had been clear with his words.

Yet this woman still misinterpreted what he meant!

Just where had he gone wrong again?

“Lisa, please send the flowers back to the flower shop. Have them send them to Lawrence Corporation and into Byron’s hands personally.”

Rosalie turned to look at Lisa after hanging up the call.

Hearing this, hesitation filled Lisa’s face. “Miss Jacobs, this wouldn’t be good, right?”

Even she, an outsider, could tell Byron’s intention.

Moreover, as far as she had noticed, Byron could be considered to have treated Rosalie meticulously during this time.

Every time Rosalie fell ill, Byron would always be by her side, taking care of her.

There was no doubting Byron’s intentions toward Rosalie.

With Rosalie like this however... even if she did not accept him, there was no need to break Byron’s heart like this right?

Rosalie narrowed her eyes and said indifferently, “There’s nothing wrong about this, it’s not something I should accept.”

After she said that, Rosalie explained to Lisa gently, “Don’t misunderstand, the relationship between us is not the kind of relationship you’re thinking off. If there is a chance in the future, I will make it clear to you.”

Lisa was even more suspicious.

Hearing what Rosalie said, there seemed to be something more to them.

If this was really the case, then she, an uninformed outsider, really had no right to say anything.

Thinking of this, Lisa agreed despite her complicated feelings. “I’ll be back as soon as possible, you just stay here and don’t move, or the wound will open again.”

Rosalie pursed her lips and smiled.

