

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 624

After Xander left, Rosalie got up, found a vase, and put the roses in it.

Looking at the roses in the vase, all her bottled-up thoughts that were suppressed just now finally flooded out in an instant.

Rosalie frowned slightly and sat back at her desk distraught, she looked at the information on the screen, trying to force herself to work hard.

However, after reading for a long time, not a word entered her brain.

When it was time to get off work, Rosalie, who always worked overtime, went home early.

When she was in the office, she could not help but look at the bunch of roses on the table. The more she looked at them, the more confused she became.

Back home, before Lisa and the little boys came back, Rosalie took over the job of making dinner so that she could distract herself.

Just after dinner was done, the door of the villa opened.

"You're back?" Rosalie set the meal and glanced at the door with a smile.

The little ones saw her at home, and their eyes were full of joy. "Mommy!"

Lisa was also a little surprised. "Miss Jacobs, why did you come back so early today?"

In the past, as long as Rosalie went to work, she would only come home after them.

Today, Rosalie not only came back earlier than them but even made dinner.

Rosalie smiled casually. "It just happened that I had nothing to do today, so I came back first."

After speaking, she urged them again. "Dinner is ready. Quickly wash up. Come and eat while it's hot!"

The little boys were excited. They agreed, ran into the bathroom to wash their hands, and ran out again. They obediently sat down at the dining table.

"Mommy, what about your injury?" During the meal, the little boys did not forget to ask about Rosalie's injury.

Hearing this, Rosalie smiled with relief. "I don't feel any pain now. I'll be fine when the scab is gone."

Feeling reassured, the little boys nodded.

After a while, the voices of the little boys rang again. "Mommy, you came back so early, why didn't you pick us up?"

Hearing this, Rosalie could not help but be stunned.

Her mind was full of what Byron had said to her at noon, and she was so flustered that she never thought that she could pick them up.

Moreover, subconsciously, she still wanted to avoid Byron and Estie.

Of course, she could not say this to the little boys.

Rosalie was silent for a few seconds before trying to come up with an excuse. "I haven't gone to work for a long time. I had a long day today, and I was a little tired, so I didn't go. My babies, you won't blame me, right?"

When the boy heard that she was tired, they shook their heads quickly. "If you're tired, come back early to rest! We'll be fine!"

Rosalie breathed a sigh of relief, pursed her lips, and smiled at them.

In the end, the boys looked at her cautiously again. "Mommy, can you drop US off tomorrow morning?"

The little boys had not been fetched to school and home by Mommy for a long time. Seeing other children being picked up by their parents every day, it was inevitable that they felt left out in their hearts.

Initially, Rosalie thought that the boys' requests were still because of Estie, but as she looked closely at the expressions on their faces, it seemed that it was not the case.

"Can you tell Mommy why?" Rosalie could not help asking.

The two little guys looked at each other and sheepishly said, "other children have their daddies and mommies to pick them up..."

After that, the boys looked at Rosalie eagerly with a little grievance on their faces.

Rosalie felt a tingling pain in her heart, and her throat choked.

She did not expect that the little boys would be so emotionally sensitive.

"Okay, I'll drop you off tomorrow." Rosalie paused for a while before replying softly.
