

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 664

Rosalie had not bought clothes for the little boys either since she returned to Somerland. It was Mary who bought them and sent them over.

Byron had no experience in buying clothes for children.

Looking at the various shops in the children's area, their eyes were dazzled by the clash of colors. They two just resorted to letting the kids choose the clothes they liked for themselves.

"Auntie!" Estie suddenly tugged Rosalie's sleeve.

Rosalie followed the little girl's line of sight in confusion, only to see a shop with simple decor. The shop had adult and children's clothes hanging together.

It was apparent that the store sold parent-child matching sets.

The parent-child clothes here were mostly gowns and formal wear because the store was in a high-end shopping mall.

This was the first time the little one saw adults' and children's clothes that looked almost the same, she wanted to wear the same gown as Rosalie, and her face was full of expectations.

Rosalie was a little hesitant.

She could more or less guess the little girl's thoughts, but she had already made a big concession to pick clothes for her. If she wore parent-child matching sets with the little girl...

It would be too easy for them to be misunderstood.

"Estie, let's go to another store, shall we?" Rosalie leaned over, trying to persuade the little one to divert her attention.

However, the little girl just stared at the parent-child clothing store, her watery eyes full of yearning.

Lucian and Nox on the side were also seeing this kind of clothes for the first time. They stole a glance at Byron. There was slight anticipation in their eyes, but they kept mum.

The kids just stood still and did not move. Rosalie reluctantly looked up at Byron and asked him for help.

Unexpectedly, the two only looked at each other for a moment, then the man looked away as if nothing had happened. He was obviously leaving the mess to her to deal with.

Rosalie could not help but have a headache.

Before she had time to say anything, the little girl had quietly dragged her sleeve to the entrance of the store.

Seeing this, Rosalie had no choice but to get up and follow, hoping that the little girl would not make any excessive demands later.

“Welcome!” The shop assistant had been paying attention to them for a long time. When they finally walked into the store, her eyes were full of excitement.

This was the most beautiful family she had encountered since she worked here. If they were willing to take a photo and let them hang it in front of the store, the clothes in their store would definitely sell!

Thinking of this, the shop assistant’s attitude toward them became more and more enthusiastic.

“You kids are so cute! If you have any clothes that you like, I can take you to try them on!”

The little ones were dazzled as they picked their own clothes for the first time.

Originally, Rosalie intended to pick clothes for the kids, but when she thought about this being a parent-child clothing store, her mind was in chaos, she could not focus on looking at the clothes and just let the kids choose for themselves.

Suddenly, Estie pulled Rosalie’s sleeve again.

Rosalie came back to her senses, her heart pounding as she followed the little girl’s line of sight.

She saw two gowns hanging in front of them. One was a simple fishtail gown with tiny diamonds scattered on the shoulder straps and skirt, which looked simple yet chic. The other smaller one was a pure white, puffy princess gown. The skirt was decorated with pearls, which made it look lively and adorable.

Although the details of the two gowns were different, the overall style was clearly a matching set, which could be seen at a glance.

The little girl looked at the shop assistant, then looked at Rosalie. Her little face was full of anticipation.

