

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 696

When Rosalie saw that it was noon, she suddenly remembered that she forgot to tell the two boys about lunch when she left.

“Sorry, I need to make a call.” Realizing this, Rosalie got up apologetically and excused herself with Xander.

Xander was puzzled, but he did not ask more. He nodded and watched her get up and go to an empty corner.

At the same time, Lucian and Nox were watching TV with Estie at home when they heard the landline ring. They hurriedly got up to pick up the phone.

After they returned to Somerland, only Mommy would call the landline at home.

Nox glanced at Estie beside him, then took initiative to say, “ Mommy! when are you coming back? Little Estie came to our house! We’re playing with her!”

After speaking, the little boy handed over the receiver to Estie’s ear.

Knowing that it was Rosalie, Estie’s eyes squinted into curved lines from smiling hard. Her voice was sweet. “Auntie!”

When she heard their little voices, Rosalie’s heart softened, “why is Estie here?”

Estie explained in a milky voice, “Auntie, you got wet yesterday.

I’m worried that you’d get sick, so I came to see you.”

Rosalie was even more soft-hearted knowing that the little girl cared about her so much, she said to the little one, “ΓΓ sorry, I won’t be able to go back for a while. I’ll find another auntie to get you kids something to eat, okay?”

The little one nodded obediently and agreed.

Rosalie told her two little ones to take good care of Little Estie before hanging up and calling Mary again, hoping she was not too busy today.

On the other end, Mary picked up quickly. “Rosie, what’s the matter?”

Rosalie said, “Are you at home?”

Mary sighed long and hard. “It’s rare for me to have time off. of course, I have to stay home for a few more days. “

In order to rest more, she persuaded the dean persistently for several days.

Hearing that she was at home, Rosalie breathed a sigh of relief. " I'm outside now. Lucian, Nox, and Estie are at home by themselves. I haven't had time to prepare lunch for them. So... what are you going to have for lunch later? Could you help prepare a little extra for them as well?"

Since it concerned the three little ones, Mary naturally agreed without hesitation.

However, on her rare day off, Mary would not cook by herself.

After thinking about it, she simply ordered takeout for herself and the kids, she then packed up the food and knocked on Rosalie's door.

The little ones first glanced at the doorbell camera, saw that it was Mary, and then opened the door.

"Godmother!" Nox's eyes lit up when he saw the takeaway bags in her hand.

Mary planned to save the trouble and ordered fried chicken with burgers for the little ones, thinking that the children should all like these.

It was exactly what Nox wanted.

"Your mommy can't come back yet, so let me deliver food to you. None of you can't eat fried food, right?" Mary brought the takeaway into the house and put the food on the table.

Having said that, Mary's gaze swept across the faces of the little ones and finally landed on Estie.

She had only seen this little girl once, and her impression was a little vague.

It was uncertain if it was her illusion, but at first glance, she always felt that there seemed to be something about Estie that looked very similar to Rosalie.

Mary wanted to take a closer look, so she squatted down and approached the little girl. "Are you Estie? Do you remember me?"

The little girl blinked her big eyes and nodded sweetly. "Yes, I do remember. Hello, Auntie!"
