

My Ex-Wife and Kids Came In Like A Wrecking Ball Chapter 699

Halfway through the meal, Xander went out to answer the phone.

After he came back, he looked at Rosalie apologetically. "Sorry, Grandpa told me to go back. I don't know what's going on."

Hearing this, Rosalie smiled coolly. "Since Grandpa Lancer is looking for you, then you'd better go quickly. I'll go back by myself in a while."

Xander apologized again, then got up and left.

Rosalie ate for a while and glanced at the time. It was already one o'clock in the afternoon. She was still worried thinking of the three little ones at home, so she did not stay any longer and got up to get the bill.

"The gentleman had already settled the bill just now," the cashier said with a smile.

Hearing this, Rosalie could not help but be taken aback.

They clearly agreed that this meal was to express her gratitude to Xander.

That man actually paid the bill himself...

"By the way, this was given to you by that gentleman. You're so lucky." The cashier took out a bunch of flowers from behind and looked at Rosalie enviously.

Rosalie was stunned knowing that their relationship had been misunderstood again.

Just as she was about to explain, she saw the bouquet in the cashier's hand.

'Although I don't know what Xander means, I'm afraid that people will misunderstand his actions...

'If I attempt to explain it, I'm afraid it'll only get worse.'

Thinking of this, Rosalie did not say anything, she just smiled helplessly, took the bouquet from the cashier, turned around, and left the restaurant.

After waiting for a while at the intersection, she got into a taxi.

Rosalie got into the car with the flowers and received a text.

Xander: [I'm home.]

Seeing this, Rosalie wanted to ask about the flowers when another message came in.

Xander: [Have you received the flowers?]

Seeing this news, Rosalie frowned slightly. She glanced at the bouquet she had put aside and swiped her fingertips on the screen.

Rosalie: [I received it, but I don't quite understand what this means, Young Master Xander.]

It stood to reason that Xander should not have feelings for her as she was just his colleague.

However, this bouquet, along with the things he said, was making her misunderstand...

When Xander saw her reply, he raised his brows slightly and bit his lower lip in deep thought.

Xander: [You invited me to dinner, and I sent you flowers in return. Isn't that fair?]

Looking at the newly sent message, Rosalie felt puzzled.

Rosalie: [But you also paid for the meal.]

Moreover, his reasons were too clumsy.

They were so clumsy that she felt more and more certain that Xander really had other intentions for her.

Xander had a faint smile in his eyes.

Xander: [The Lancer family will never let a woman pick up the tab. It's enough that you accompanied me to lunch.]

Rosalie's expression did not look good.

The next second, she saw another message.

Xander: [Just kidding. That bunch of flowers is mainly to thank you for helping Pippin. After all, our family has always been in charge of the orphanage. Your efforts have greatly helped US a lot, Miss Jacobs.]

Then, as if afraid that Rosalie would not believe him, he added.

Xander: [There are mostly lilies inside the bouquet. Lilies mean 'thank you' in flower language, so even if two little ones see it, there'll be no misunderstanding.]

Seeing this, Rosalie noticed that there were indeed many lilies in this bunch of flowers. There were also a few flowers that she could not name, but they were just fillers.

Thinking of Xander's words again, Rosalie's eyes flashed with chagrin.

Even the two little guys would not misunderstand, but she did. 'What's been going on with me these past few days...'
